HOUSE PASSES BILL TO LIMIT HENRY WALLACE

Beats Revisions of George Measure.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—The house today overwhelmingly adopted the George bill divorcing federal lending agencies from the department of commerce, after an attempt by opponents of Henry Wallace to kill the measure was beaten by only eight votes. The bill now goes to the White House.

In approving the bill 399 to 2 on the final vote, the house joined with the senate in voicing lack of confidence in the ability of Wallace to fill the shoes of Jesse Jones, who administered the vast federal lending setup as commerce secretary. Jones was fired by President Roosevelt to make way for the former Vice President.

The drive to kill the measure by recommitting it to the house banking committee was made by a coalition of the Republican membership and southern Democrats.

Protection Against Spending.

They declared further restrictions on the commerce post should be written into the bill to protect the nation against Wallace's "leftist" dreams for global spending and social reforms.

The recommital motion, by Rep. Wilson [R., Ind.] was defeated, 204 to 196.

Voting for the motion were 174 Republicans and 22 Democrats; against the motion, 200 Democrats, 2 Republicans, and 2 minor party members.

If the President signs the George bill, as is expected, the battle over Wallace will revert to the senate, which is scheduled to vote on his confirmation for the commerce secretaryship about March 1.

The President reluctantly agreed to legislation taking the lending powers from the commerce post after Democratic leaders in congress advised him Wallace would almost certainly be rejected by the senate unless his powers were shorn.

Still Faces Opposition.

Administration leaders predicted the senate will confirm Wallace for the restricted job, but conceded there will be strong opposition from anti-Wallace senators.

Senators Taft [O.] and Wherry [Neb.] were among the leading Republicans who announced they will still oppose Wallace's confirmation.

"Wallace is no more acceptable to me than he was before. There is going to be a battle," Taft said.

Three attempts by Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.] to write further restrictions into the George bill were balked today, when Acting Speaker Bulwinkle [D., N. C.] ruled the proposals were irrelevant.

The first Wolcott proposal was to abolish the President's war power to shift federal agencies into new departments without approval of congress. This, it was explained, would bar the shifting of such agencies as the huge export-import bank into the domain of Wallace as commerce secretary.

Other Defeated Revisions.

Wolcott also sought an amendment setting up the export bank as an independent agency under a five man board responsible to congress. The bank presently exists under executive order, whereby the board of trustees includes the commerce secretary.

The third Wolcott proposal was to make all federal corporations, both owned and controled by the government, subject to annual audits by the controler general. The George bill requires audits of only government owned corporations.

Aachen Army Court Begins Trial of Nazi

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AACHEN, Germany, Feb. 16.—In a courtroom where the Nazis once held forth, the little men who had long been silent today accused a well to do contractor, Otto Meyer, 46, of having instigated murders and organized brutal assaults on his fellow Germans while he was head of Hitler's storm troopers [SA] in the near-by town of Kolscheid.

If convicted, Meyer can be sentenced to ten years in prison and 10,000 reichsmarks [$4,000] fine, the maximum penalty possible at this trial, which is before what is known as an intermediary court.

This was the first trial of any alleged Nazi party leader in the territory occupied by the United States 1st army, and provided a picture of how American military courts are administering justice to German civilians accused of violating our military laws and ordinances.

View of Nazi Brutality.

Conjured up, too, thru the defiant voices of the prosecution's witnesses, was another picture of booted, brutal storm troopers shooting, killing, and slugging any nonbelievers marked for "treatment."

Meyer owned a large construction company, a fleet of 65 trucks, and several stone quarries. When the war started, he began to prosper, hauling for the army, building air fields in Russia, and providing material to build the west wall. When the Germans retreated he remained behind.

Meyer once was investigated cursorily by the Yanks and given a clean bill of health and a pass permitting him to circulate freely behind our lines. But he aroused the suspicions of the army, which investigated further and then charged that he had deliberately given false statements on matters of official concern to the allies.

Was Propaganda Leader.

Meyer had been a Nazi party member and a propaganda leader for the Aachen area between 1933 and 1938. In a sworn statement he had said he had never been a member of the SA, and that "I was considered an enemy of the state, and any one who dared talk to me was threatened with expulsion from the party." This happened, Meyer said, after he had been expelled from the party for being "democratically minded and friendly to Jews."

Capt. Lewis H. Burke of Los Angeles, Cal., the American prosecutor, charged that Meyer lied to hide his background. Meyer ostensibly was ousted from the party, Burke said, because his brutalities as an SA leader had inflamed the populace, but in reality he remained a party member, acquiring fat contracts thru his influence.

Plans to Call 10 Witnesses.

While the opening statement was being made, Meyer sat, scribbling notes, beside his German lawyer, Max Klein. Klein planned to call at least 10 defense witnesses. They were expected to testify that Meyer really was expelled from the party, and that as far as they knew he was no Nazi.

A court of four officers, presided over by Maj. Arthur Limbach of

TRANSMIGRATION OF SOULS?

SELASSIE REPORTED DRAFTING BILL FOR U. S. TO HAND ITALY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, is reported to be preparing a fat bill for presentation to Italy demanding full payment by the Italian government for all the material damage done during the conquest of Ethiopia.

Since the emperor has refused to have diplomatic relations with Italy he plans to send the bill, together with a dossier detailing the destruction and atrocities committed by the Italians, to the British and American governments for presentation to the Italians, it was said.

Diplomatic observers suggest that London and Washington are awaiting the emperor's communications with embarrassment, since the Ethiopian charges won't help their policy of restoring Italy's status.

CALIFORNIA JAPS ARE HARASSED BY SHOTGUN BLASTS

Fresno, Cal., Feb. 16 (AP).—Unidentified assailants fired into the home of a recently returned Japanese-American family last night for the second time within five days and early today the unoccupied home of a third evacuee family was destroyed.

Six shotgun blasts startled the family of S. J. Kakutani, 35, at dinner last night in the home near Parlier. Nobody was injured. Fire destroyed the home and furnishings of Bob Morishige, a former Selma garbage man. Fire officials said it apparently was of an incendiary origin.

The sheriff's office still has reported no clews to the identity of the person who fired three shots into the home of Frank Osaki last Saturday.

Conductor, 90, Wills Fortune to Help Young

John L. Holden, 90, a retired Burlington railroad conductor who was known to thousands of commuters between Chicago and Aurora for nearly half a century, left an estate of more than $100,000. This figure was indicated yesterday when his will was filed in the Kane county Probate court at Geneva. His home was in Aurora.

His will disclosed a great liking for young folks and their problems. His interest in youth, which he maintained for more than half a century, arose from his sister's 50 year career as a school teacher. He established a $30,000 fund to assist boys and girls, $4,000 to fight juvenile delinquency, college scholarships for two neighborhood youngsters, and in other ways dedicated his fortune to youth.

Judge to Administer Funds.

The $30,000 trust was willed for administration to Judge O. C. Allen, of the Kane County court, to be used for child welfare as the judge deems wisest. The $4,000 fund also was intrusted to Judge Allen with the stipulation to use it to "prevent juvenile delinquency." In addition, Holden left $8,000 to the Juvenile Protective Association of Aurora, and $5,000 to Aurora college.

To Ronald Price, 530 Talma st., Aurora, a high school boy, Holden left $4,000 for college, and to Jessie Cousland, 520 5th av., a high school girl, he left $3,200 for similar purpose.

To Miss Rose Krug, Aurora school nurse, Holden left $4,000 and his home at 540 5th st., Aurora, and to the Young school, in Aurora, of which his sister, the late Miss Alice Holden was principal, he left $8,000 for the establishment of a library.

A direct offshoot of Miss Holden's 50 years' service in the Aurora schools was a $4,000 bequest to Ray D. Smith, 2150 Lawrence av., who years ago was her star pupil.

Remembers Scores of Friends.

The veteran conductor remembered a score of individuals, friends of himself and his sister, with bequests of $800 to $4,000. He also left $8,000 to the Sunnymere Home for Old People, and $4,000 to Trinity Episcopal church.

Holden was born in England, and was brought to Aurora by his family when he was 2. His father was a pioneer weather observer there, and he and his sister for a time also were weather readers. Holden retired at 70, after 50 years with the Burlington, more than 40 as a suburban line conductor. He died Feb. 9. He was a bachelor and left no close relatives.

LOSES LIFE IN SAVING CHICAGOAN; AWARDED HIGHEST U. S. MEDAL

ROME, Feb. 16 (AP).—The medal of honor was awarded posthumously today to Lt. David R. Kingsley, Portland, Ore., a 15th air force Fortress bombardier, who sacrificed his life for a wounded tail gunner, Sgt. Michael J. Sullivan, 1201 Roosevelt rd., Chicago. It was the first of the nation's highest decorations awarded to a member of the 15th air force.

Kingsley was cited for heroism on a mission over the Ploesti oil fields of Romania last June 23. The incident was disclosed when survivors returned last September from a Bulgar prison camp. During an attack on the Fortress, Sullivan was injured. Gunners carried him to the radio compartment where Kingsley began administering first aid. The plane had been damaged both by fire and anti-aircraft fire and developed a terrific vibration. The pilot ordered the crew to bail out.

"After every one else had cleared the ship," Sullivan said later, "Lt. Kingsley picked up my parachute harness and discovered it had been ripped by cannon fire. He took off his and placed it on me. Carrying me in his arms, to the bomb bay, he told me to be sure and pull the rip cord after I had cleared the ship. I did and as I was floating down I saw the Fort fall off and go into a spin. It crashed, exploded and burned. The last time I saw Lt. Kingsley, he was standing on the catwalk over the open bomb bay doors."

GERMANS PLEAD WITH BRITISH TO SPARE HOMES

WITH BRITISH TROOPS IN GERMANY, Feb. 16 (AP).—The Germans are resorting to appeals in an attempt to escape the destruction of their property.

Allied troops advancing into Germany on this northern front are greeted by English language signs such as the following in almost every house: "Please treat this home as you would your own." "We have done you no harm—do not harm our little home."

Income Tax Check Tours War Fronts in Magazine

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 16 (AP).—Mrs. Olive E. Grismer's income tax check reached the federal internal revenue office today after a tour of the European war fronts. Corp. Frank W. Guarino returned the check from Belgium, writing that he found it in the pages of a magazine that had followed him to England, then to France.

SEA-AIR BLOW SILENCES CORREGIDOR; FLEET CONTINUES TO SHELL IWO ISLE

U. S. Ships Remain Within 300 Miles of Jap Mainland.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, Feb. 17 [Saturday]—(AP).—Tokyo is undergoing the powerhouse assault of more than 1,500 carrier planes today for the second straight day and bombarding battleships and cruisers still are shelling the already heavily damaged enemy air base of Iwo Island, 750 miles south of the Japanese capital.

Adm. Nimitz disclosed in a terse bulletin that the 5th fleet of Adm. Spruance, in strength the like of which the world has never seen before, is remaining within 300 miles of Japan—apparently still unchallenged by Nippon's home defense fleet.

"Carrier aircraft of the 5th fleet are continuing to attack the Tokyo area," Nimitz said.

Shore Batteries Silenced.

"Preliminary reports indicate that substantial damage was inflicted on enemy installations on Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands in spite of adverse weather conditions during the bombardment by battleships and cruisers of the Pacific fleet on Feb. 16. Our carrier aircraft set two luggers ablaze and three bombers were probably destroyed on the ground. A Kingfisher seaplane from one of the cruisers in the bombardment force shot down a Zero land plane fighter. One of our aircraft was destroyed by enemy anti-aircraft fire, but the pilot was rescued.

"Enemy shore batteries which fired on the bombardment group were silenced by the guns of the fleet. The bombardment is continuing."

Admit New Attacks.

Tokyo radio belatedly confirmed the resumption of the attacks, saying they began at 7 a. m. this morning with the appearance of three waves of raiders which were met by interceptors and anti-aircraft fire.

"The fiercest fighting is still going on," Tokyo said.

[The National Broadcasting company heard Tokyo radio beam a claim in the English language that Japanese air units had set fire to an aircraft carrier and a destroyer, damaged other vessels, and "definitely" shot down at least 145 American planes. The claims were without allied confirmation.]

Smoke Shrouds Tokyo.

Smoke billowing thousands of feet over the Tokyo-Yokohama area testified to the terrific power of the American raid against one of Japan's prime industrial sections.

The first attack, announced Friday within a few hours after the operation opened, lasted by enemy admission, at least nine hours.

The tremendous armada—ruler of the Pacific—was strung out for 200 miles in waters almost within the shadow of Japan. There it challenged the Japanese fleet, which slunk into retirement following its stinging defeat last October in the battle for Leyte gulf at the outset of the invasion of the Philippines.

[Whether the enemy fleet would come out of hiding was speculated on in Washington, D. C., where a naval spokesman said "now is the time" for the Japanese to accept the challenge. If it does come out, he added, it will be rubbed out quickly, for there is no doubt the American navy has complete control of the seas. He said the navy has a "pretty good idea" where the entire Japanese fleet is. As to an invasion of Iwo, which Tokyo forecast, the spokesman said the navy is capable of effecting a landing anywhere.]

FLYER GIVES EYE AND EAR WITNESS ACCOUNT OF RAID

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, Feb. 17 [Saturday]—(AP).—An eye and ear witness account which disclosed that scores of Japanese planes were caught on the ground in the American carrier plane blow at Tokyo yesterday was given by Lt. [jr. g.] David C. McMillin of San Francisco.

He was the navy observer in a B-29 Super Fortress which was over the target for reconnaissance while the raid was under way.

McMillin and army Lt. John G. Garvin of Las Vegas, Nev., pilot of the B-29, observed the raid both visually thru breaks in clouds and by listening in on radio conversations between the carrier planes.

Raid Lasts Six Hours.

The attack on Japanese ground installations and grounded planes and accompanying aerial combat continued for at least six hours, McMillin said. It was no hit-run affair, he commented.

They listened to Tokyo radio for first evidence that the momentous raid was under way and heard the Tokyo announcer start screaming; then a Japanese language broadcast abruptly ceased at about 7:25 a. m.

The announcer returned to the air momentarily for a few quick words now and then. Continuous broadcasting was not resumed until after five p. m.

Japs Taken by Surprise.

The grounded Japanese airmen were surprised and their planes destroyed before they could get them into the air at dozens of fields around the Nipponese capital, judging by the radio conversations.

"There's 60 planes on it. Give 'em hell," crackled one airman reporting on field No. 5.

"There's 50 single engine planes on field No. 85," said another.

"Burned three on the ground," chimed in another happy pilot as he zoomed upward.

"Five in the air," came the gleeful shout from another Yank pilot.

Orders, too, barked over the radio. "Clearing over targets, go and get them," was one tart command to the carrier flyers that came thru to the listening ears of McMillin and Garvin.

See City Only Briefly.

Tokyo was seen only briefly thru holes in the clouds, McMillin said, "especially the northern end of what our B-29 pilots have begun to call 'flak alley.'

"There was a big fire there," he added. "Smoke was rolling up to the clouds. It must have been 7,000 feet high."

When the Super Fortress left the Japanese coast at 12:30 p. m. [Friday, Japan time], the raid was in full swing. Those aboard could not hear the carrier planes' radio talk much later than that.

"But that Jap radio announcer," McMillin said, "didn't come back on the air to stay until after 5."

McMillin, weary after the long trip, said the weather continued bad on the way back to the Marianas and the wings of the big plane carried three inches of ice before the B-29 finally broke into the clear.

MANILA, Feb. 17 [Saturday]—(AP).—Recapture of historic Bataan peninsula was proclaimed today. Eleventh corps Yanks landed at the south tip Thursday under Corregidor's silenced guns and seized Mariveles harbor and airdrome.

"We have captured Bataan," Gen. MacArthur announced. Thus the general made good his famous slogan, "Back to Bataan," in a campaign of a little more than two weeks. It took Japan more than three months to do it in 1942. Then, hundreds of Americans died before survivors were forced by lack of arms and food to capitulate April 9, 1942.

The American battle for Bataan's recapture opened Jan. 29 with Yank landings on the Zambales province coast in a push toward Olongapo.

Swing Around Bataan.

The master stroke was an amphibious swing by the 11th army corps from Olongapo naval base on Subic bay around to Mariveles, the south tip of Bataan, protected by guns of the American 7th fleet and planes of the far east air force.

Maj. Gen. Charles P. Hall's 11th corpsmen landed at Mariveles after the harbor was cleared of mines "in a daring and skilful operation," today's bulletin said.

The 38th division units commanded by Brig. Gen. William C. Chase pushed quickly inland from a beachhead of 500 yards. Bombed and shelled Mariveles was occupied immediately. Two near-by air fields were seized.

American losses were light.

The amphibious convoy under command of Rear Adm. Arthur D. Struble sailed thru a gap a little more than four miles wide between the rock of Corregidor, the fortress which guards the mouth of Manila bay, and Cochinos point on Bataan. Planes and warships neutralized Corregidor's defense batteries.

Steam Past Corregidor.

American bombers which have pounded Corregidor almost daily for weeks dropped a heavy load of 147 tons of explosives on the fortress.

An Associated Press correspondent aboard the attack force flagship said the invasion fleet steamed unscathed past Corregidor, which fired only a half dozen shots.

Seizure of the Bataan peninsula puts the Yanks in position for knockout blows against Corregidor. The rock can be shelled also from Mariveles. Only Corregidor and the Cavite coast to the south bar the way into Manila bay.

"In the meanwhile," Gen. MacArthur's bulletin said, "the encirclement [of the Japs] was completed by the 1st infantry regiment of the 6th division, now attached to the 11th corps, driving south from Pilar, capturing Limany and Lamao [on the east side of Bataan] in passage toward a junction with the 38th division."

Bataan Japs Doomed.

The Japanese sealed off on Bataan peninsula are doomed. They are unorganized and forced to take refuge in the hills, a correspondent said.

A fourth division—the 6th—was thrown into the raging battle for Manila, meanwhile. The thus reenforced 14th corps drove thru to the bay front on an 800 yard front to reduce Japanese holdings in the city's heart to a triangle of about 3,000 yards by 2,000. The enemy still was resisting bitterly.

East of the capital American troops seized two air fields at Mandaluyong.

To the south of the city patrols reached the west gate of Fort William McKinley.

Despite poor weather American fighter planes crossed the China sea to attack Kato airdrome on Formosa, strafing a parked bomber and a train.

Three small freighters were sunk or damaged in the Mansei Islands and another freighter was sent to the bottom off Hong Kong.

A small, heavily laden freighter was left ablaze and sinking from a direct hit in the lesser Sunda islands south of the Philippines.

More Jap Brutality.

Increasing reports of Japanese brutality seeped out of war-ravished southern Manila today as more civilians escaped from the enemy-held battle area.

A reliable Chinese merchant told an Associated Press correspondent that he saw a score of Chinese mowed down by machine gun fire as they attempted to flee from a burning building.

Another correspondent reported that seven men who escaped thru a shell hole in the thick wall of the Intramuros [walled city] and swam the Pasig river to safety confirmed stories of machine gunning civilians. They told American medical officers that the Nipponese segregated men and women within the walled city and in some instances carried out their threat to shoot any civilian who attempted to escape from the besieged stronghold.

Photograph Bayoneted Bodies.

Two 37th division sergeants reported that they found and photographed a heap of Chinese bodies, all bayoneted. They identified 11 as men, four as women and six as babies. All had bayonet wounds. The hands of some were tied behind them.

American medical officers yesterday treated two girls with bayonet wounds thru the soles of their feet.

Brines reported numerous Filipinos said that during the Japanese occupation of Manila Nipponese lecturers repeatedly said, "We know that at least 95 per cent of the Filipinos are pro-American.

"If the Americans do return to Manila, we will unhesitatingly execute any Filipinos who show sympathy or give assistance to the white invaders."

FOREMAN PUPIL WINS IN LEGION ORATORY FINAL

Norman Kozy, 4104 Nelson st., yesterday won the county championship in the final events of the oratorical contests sponsored by the American Legion. His subject was, "The Right We Defend." He represented Foreman High school.

Second place went to Gloria Elrod, 1323 Independence blvd., of Austin High, who spoke on "The Constitution in a Changing World," and third place to James Morris, 4862 N. Rockwell av., of Amundsen High, who talked on "Our Constitution —Then and Now."

Elliodor M. Libonati, state Americanism chairman of the Legion, said that Kozy will compete Feb. 21 with four downstate champions at Bloomington. The state winner will receive a four year scholarship to the University of Illinois.

NEW ZEALAND PLANES OPERATE IN SOUTHWEST

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Feb. 16 [Reuters].—A New Zealand air task force is now operating from the Admiralty Islands, as well as from Green Island and Bougainville in the Solomons, Frederick Jones, New Zealand defense minister, said today.

The 55,000 Japanese remaining in the Solomon and Bismarck Islands constituted a threat to the security of Australia and New Zealand, Jones said, adding that the task of clearing them out, therefore, logically fell to Australia and New Zealand.

Jones paid tribute to the American forces which had neutralized the Japanese in this area and said that it would be particularly pleasing to the Anzacs to coöperate again in this task which, he said, should not be underestimated.

Manila Yanks Capture Man Who Bows to M. Ps.

AT A 14TH CORPS COMMAND POST, Manila, P. I., Feb. 16 (AP).—Three military policemen led a prisoner into this post today and turned him over to interpreters. When the M. BOMBERS BLAST JAP BRIDGES IN BURMA AS ALLIED TROOPS GAIN

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Feb. 16 (AP).—Continuing a campaign to blockade Japanese forces in southern Burma by air as allied ground forces press down from the north, heavy bombers of the eastern air command wrecked or damaged three rail and highway bridges on the enemy's main overland supply lines from Thailand yesterday, headquarters announced.

A bridge on the main Burma-Thailand rail line was destroyed by direct hits, while a span on the Bangkok-Chiengmai route also was struck. Other bombers attacked an enemy supply dump south of Mandalay, on which allied ground troops are closely pushing from the north and west. One allied plane was lost.

57 TARS STICK TO REFUSAL TO SAIL 3 VESSELS

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 16 (AP).—Fifty-seven British seamen, who refuse to ferry three Great Lakes tankers across the Atlantic, have rejected a British ministry of war transport appeal to reconsider their stand. They termed the vessels unseaworthy.

A court of inquiry was held here by the Canadian section of the British ministry of war transport into the crew's refusal. Recommendations made at the inquiry were not made public.

The men, in Canada for more than a month, say they came here from Britain with the understanding they were to pick up new tankers, but that the three ships to which they were assigned were all more than 40 years old, had flat bottoms unsuitable for deep sea travel, and faulty boilers.

TELLS HOW JAPS LET 1,800 YANK CAPTIVES DROWN

Prisoners on Sinking Ship Clubbed Into Water.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 16 [Special].—The inhumanity of Japanese who clubbed American prisoners of war back into the water when they tried to escape drowning was told here today by Lt. Robert S. Overbeck, 28, one of only five known survivors of 1,800 Americans aboard a Japanese transport sunk by an allied submarine last Oct. 24.

Lt. R. S. Overbeck.

Back in his native Baltimore for the first time in seven years, Overbeck described his capture when Corregidor fell, his months of captivity, and his miraculous escape in the midst of wholesale death following the torpedoing of the Jap prison ship.

While others were drowning all about him, Overbeck, a powerful swimmer, was one of those who swam to a nearby Jap destroyer and grabbed iron rings.

Clubbed Back Into Water.

Laboriously he clambered upward and finally got his shoulders to the deck. Six Japs ran to him with clubs and beat him back into the water, one blow laying open his left arm.

[Army Sgt. Avery E. Wilber, 32, of Navarino, Wis., one of the other survivors, told of the disaster in an interview today at Appleton, Wis. The sinking, he said, was preceded by two weeks of heat, thirst, stinking sanitary conditions, aching bodies, and sickness among the suffering men aboard the Jap transport.]

Overbeck was a civil engineer just outside Manila when the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor. He offered his services to the army and was sent to Corregidor with the United States engineering forces where he helped build beach defenses.

Put Aboard Freighter.

After Corregidor fell, he was taken by the Japs to Cabanatuan prison camp on Luzon, where he stayed from May 23, 1942, to Sept. 1, 1944. He was transferred to Bilibid prison in Manila and on Oct. 11, 1944, was put aboard a 5,000 ton Jap freighter.

There were 1,800 men, Overbeck said, crammed into an area 9 feet high, 50 feet wide and 90 feet long, divided into three tiers each three feet high. They couldn't even sit erect.

Their ship hid in islands near-by until Oct. 20. The heat was almost unbearable, with the sides of the ship "so hot nobody could touch them a... the men lay naked."

Torpedoed Off China Coast.

They were told they were headed for Japan as part of a convoy guarded by some Japanese destroyers. On Oct. 24, four days later, their ship was torpedoed in the China sea about 250 miles off the China coast.

"The third torpedo struck squarely amidships and buckled the vessel but it didn't break in two," Overbeck said.

The Japs took the two lifeboats aboard as all 300 of them abandoned ship.

Chaplains Quiet Men.

"For about 15 seconds there was panic among us, but there were five or six chaplains who prayed fervently and quieted the men," Overbeck said. "The chaplains were great fellows."

Overbeck and others in his hold climbed to theh deck where they saw many Japs in the water with destroyers picking them up.

"We broke into the ship's stores to get food, cigarets, and water—mainly water, we were so thirsty.

"All of us figured we were going to die anyway. The Jap ships except the destroyers had disappeared. All we had were life belts which the Japs, fortunately, had thrown down the hold the day before."

Lifeboat Abandoned.

When the Japs in one lifeboat were picked up, they threw the fresh water, oars, and sails overboard, leaving the tiny craft half-filled wth sea water. There was a strong wind, blowing the lifeboat away from the prisoners.

"Thirty-five of us began swimming toward it. I've always been a pretty powerful swimmer. I swam after it for about a mile as the wind kept driving it away in a fairly heavy sea. I was the only one to get there," he said.

Overbeck finally reached Sgt. Wilber and pulled him aboard about 10 p. m. Two hours later he got Corp. Onton E. Cichi of New York Mills, Minn. At daylight they picked up Corp. Don E. Meyer of Wilmington, Cal., and Master Sgt. Calvin R. Graef of Silver City, N. M., who had been on Bataan and the death march.

Bail All Night.

With a bucket the men bailed all night to keep warm and keep afloat. A large box came drifting along and in it they found a sail and a sea anchor which they dragged aboard.

"About 9 a. m.," Overbeck said, "a Jap destroyer came back. We lay in the bottom of the boat as it passed on each side about 100 yards away. We really acted as if we were dead. We sweated it out. Finally they left. About noon we put our sail up and reached a friendly country two days later".

From there they were flown to Washington, arriving Dec. 2.

The sinking, if confirmed, would be the second involving Japanese prison ships carrying allied prisoners. Last Sept. 7 a ship carrying approximately 750 prisoners was torpedoed off Mindanao in the Philippines. There were only 83 survivors.

ELEVATED AGENT ROBBED.

Daniel Finnegan, 4418 Union av., agent in an elevated railroad station at Pershing rd. and State st., was robbed of $18 by two Negro gunmen in the station, he reported to the police yesterday.

Ladic, whose home is in Butte, Mont., and his family were interned in Camp Holmes at Baguio, Luzon, by the Japanese on Dec. 27, 1941, and remained there until they were transferred to Bilibid in December. Their children, Mary Ann, 10; Marie, 9, and Cele, 8, all were born in California. Ladic worked for the Bolotoc Mining company.

ISLAND OF IWO HALF WAY FROM SAIPAN TO TOKYO

If American forces invade Iwo Island they will have moved almost half way over the sea road from Saipan [American base in the Marianas] to Tokyo.

Iwo is a semi-tropical island about 700 miles northwest of Saipan and approximately 800 miles, almost due south, from Tokyo. Americans would find it a strange land. Bats grow to the size of small chickens. When submarine volcanoes in the vicinity are active, masses of mud and ashes, accompanied by a rumbling sound and the odor of sulphur, shoot up from the water.

Iwo, known also as Sulphur Island, is the central island of the three island Volcano group, which in turn forms a part of the larger group of Bonin Islands. They were annexed as part of the Japanese empire in 1891. The Bonins got their name from a corruption of the Japanese "munin," which means "empty of men."

The island lies east of the monsoon belt and Yanks should find the climate remarkably fine. The mean annual temperature is 70 degrees and the coldest months, January and February, maintain a monthly temperature of 55 degrees. The highest mean temperature, 80 degrees, is reached in August.

JAP EX-CHIEF HAS CONFIDENCE IN YAMASHITA

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A vote of confidence was extended yesterday to Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, Japanese commander in the Philippines. Radio Tokyo quoted Adm. Isamu Takeshita, former commander in chief of the imperial combined fleet, as extending the compliment.

Takeshita likened Yamashita to a disciple of the legendary Japanese swordsman, Miyamato Musashi, who "never wasted a single stroke," and predicted the harassed general would yet be known as the "tiger of the Philippines."

He added: "I am confident that the will of God is upon us to teach the Yanks some good lessons."

TRIBUNE WRITER IN RINGSIDE SEAT SEES JAPS GET 'IT'

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 15 [Delayed].—"Just have a chair," said 1st Lt. John Robohm, Minneapolis, Minn. "The show is about to start; the curtain will go up in just a minute."

We were all seated comfortably on the top floor of a tall building on Manila's river front. Six blocks away the city hall, a fine modern, four story building topped by a high tower, was visible. American shells were playing an overture to the performance by bursting near-by.

"Our big guns are now about to open up," said Pvt. Leon West, Anna, Ill., looking at the city hall thru field glasses. "Hey," he said, passing the glasses to Sgt. Orion Copeland, Pinehurst, N. C., "look at that Jap."

Carrying Sword, He Struts.

We could see a Jap officer with a sword strutting up the avenue between the Philippine legislative building and the city hall. Thru a telescope that magnifies 20 times he seemed near enough to be picked off with a slingshot. But one ordinarily does not fire from artillery observation posts, altho Col. John D. Frederick, Springfield, Ill., commander of the 129th regiment, succumbed to temptation at this very spot the other day. He sprayed a column of Japs and is reported to have achieved good results.

"Here she comes!" shouted Pvt. West. There was a roar like an approaching express train's, and before the explosion could be heard a shower of dust and debris rose from the roof of the city hall. Then came a shattering blast of sound.

The next shell was too high, and Lt. Robohm spoke quietly into a telephone. Two direct hits on a side of the building followed. They must have penetrated deeply, for much debris flew up.

"Just across the river," said Lt. Joseph Gallagher, Youngstown, O., "is Jap territory. You can see them moving around over there. City hall seems to be their headquarters. So far, we have put 200 rounds in there."

Big "Babies" Go to Work.

"Now we're calling off the peashooters to let the big babies do the work," said Pvt. West as he poured light refreshments for the press. There was another thunderous blast. The tower, which had served as a Jap observation post, rocked under a direct hit.

Lt. Robohm whistled and reached for the telephone. "Just look at that!" he exclaimed, pointing to the thick wall which bounds the Jap-held Intramuros [walled city].

Thru the glasses we could see a file of Japs led by an officer. They had moved from beyond the wall and were running toward Taft av., carrying their rifles.

"Twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen," counted Pvt. West. "Now they're flopping." The Japs dropped to the grass, weapons ready.

Now for the Finale.

Lt. Robohm was speaking into the phone. The Japs got up and moved forward again. From the wall moved 10 more soldiers, following the first group. It was a platoon.

Lt. Robohm put down his phone with a smile. "Just watch," he said. Even as he spoke a black umbrella of smoke blossomed from the middle of the last group of Japs. Other bursts followed.

"One of those babies hit just where a Jap was standing," the lieutenant exulted. The remaining Japs ran rapidly forward and disappeared behind the Metropolitan theater building. Two bodies could be seen on the grass when the dust cleared.

Another shell smacked into the city hall. "The Japs seem to have got into the theater building, sir," said Sgt. Copeland, squinting thru his glasses.

"That's all right," said Lt. Robohm, reaching for his telephone again. "We'll put on a little matinee for them!"

Wins Housing Suit

KATHERINE DUNHAM.

New York, Feb. 16 [Special].—A court move to prevent Katherine Dunham, Negro interpretive dancer, from buying a house in the heart of Manhattan's silk stocking district was blocked today by Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag. "Nobody can stop anybody from buying a piece of property," he said.

The action, pertaining to the purchase of a six story, 17 room house at 14 E. 71st st., was brought by Dr. I. Daniel Shorell, who lives next door at No. 18. The doctor, a plastic surgeon, sought to prevent Miss Dunham from closing the deal next Monday.

He charged she intended to violate the local zoning laws by converting the house into a public dancing school and using parts of it as living quarters for herself and her troupe of Negro dancers. The doctor contended the neighborhood is restricted to residential uses.

"If it were Agnes DeMille or Martha Graham [white dance impresarios] instead of Katherine Dunham, we wouldn't have to be here," Miss Dunham's lawyer commented.

"The color idea doesn't enter into it at all," Dr. Shorell's counsel replied.

DUTCH OFFICER IMPRISONED IN LONDON TOWER

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP).—A Dutch officer, member of the underground army in Holland, has been a prisoner in the Tower of London since shortly after the battle of Arnhem, it was disclosed tonight. He is awaiting trial for treason on charges of betraying allied military secrets to the enemy.

The officer crossed to allied lines when underground forces struck in coöperation with the allied air borne attack that ended in disaster.

His papers were in good order, but the officer was watched by intelligence men and his arrest followed indications that he was in touch with the Nazis.

VALUE OF R.O.T.C. TRAINING HAILED BY ARMY CHIEFS

Credited with Developing Officer Material.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—The great contribution made by the Reserve Officers' Training corps in colleges and high schools to the mightiest army the United States has ever put into the field was emphasized today by the army high command.

Brig. Gen. Edward W. Smith, executive for reserve and R. O. T. C. affairs, recalled that Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, credited the R. O. T. C. with furnishing more than 100,000 officers, or 75 to 90 per cent, of the officer strength which began building the army in 1941.

In addition to making this initial contribution, the R. O. T. C. has furnished many thousands of the 800,000 officers now in the army, the general said. He urged high school youths to join R. O. T. C. units as the best way to prepare themselves physically for the army and for advancement in the services upon induction.

In emphasizing the value of the R. O. T. C. in the war, Gen. Smith was joined by Col. Ralph C. Bishop, field artillery, on duty in the war department here.

Enrollment Drops.

There has been some concern in military circles over a drop in high school R. O. T. C. enrollment this year, allegedly inspired by advice to youths to concentrate on building themselves physically and to let military science go until their induction into the army.

"The training received by students in the junior R. O. T. C. units has enabled them to adjust themselves more rapidly to army life on induction into the service and it also has benefited the army in that these students can be trained more easily than those with no military experience," Gen. Smith said.

"In basic military training, these inductees can immediately be pointed out by the instructors because they previously had learned much of the elementary fundamentals of soldiering, had developed habits of precision, orderliness, courtesy, correctness of posture and deportment, leadership, and respect for, and loyalty to, constituted authority.

"The war department recognizes the pre-induction benefits of the junior R. O. T. C. and has maintained the junior R. O. T. C. units during the war."

Average 50,000 a Year.

Col. Bishop said the full extent of the contribution of R. O. T. C. high school units will not be known until individual records have been compiled after the war. For 25 years junior R. O. T. C. units have given training to an average of 50,000 high school students a year and currently are giving training to 59,358 students, he said.

"At present there are 81 high school units of the R. O. T. C., some of which are multiple units," he said. "The Chicago high schools' unit is an example of the latter type. It operates in 27 Chicago high schools and is the largest single R. O. T. C. unit in the United States, having an enrollment in the current school year of 8,077 military students.

"The high school units of the R. O. T. C. have been the means whereby literally hundreds of thousands of young men have been enabled, thru their military training, to serve their country more effectively in time of need. During the years of peace those units stood forth as symbols of service, enriching the educational resources of the schools, and affording opportunities for young men to meet definite responsibilities and to develop habits of coöperation and desirable traits of character."

In September, 1941, R. O. T. C. enrollment in Chicago was 7,891. It rose to 8,035 in 1942, to 8,420 in 1944, and dropped to 8,077 last September.

ICKES RULING IS UNCONTESTED BY TAX BOARD

Court Action Left to 30,000 Owners.

Taxpayers who were granted lower 1943 assessments by the county board of tax appeals, but too late to avoid having their properties advertised for tax sales, apparently will have to fight in court to get the cuts accepted as valid.

Members of the appeals board, James J. McDermott and John Toman, said yesterday, after conferring with Asst. State's Atty. Jacob Shamberg, that they would not litigate against Thursday's ruling by County Judge Edward K. Jarecki. He directed that all properties ordered subject to tax sales, and on which there had been no objections before Dec. 26, 1944, must be sold for the full advertised amount of taxes.

Misinformation Laid to Ickes.

Attention was called to the anomalous situation now faced by some 30,000 taxpayers, when Shamberg asked County court that a State street store building owned by Secretary of the Interior Ickes be sold for the full amount of $10,283 [second instalment]. Ickes had been granted a reduction by the board, amounting to $4,274, and County Treasurer Schlaeger had accepted $6,009 in full settlement of the tax debt.

County Assessor Clark reported that the reduction had been based on erroneous information; that Ickes and his representatives said that the building was of three stories when it was five, and that annual rents were $24,000 when they were actually $61,000.

Judge Jarecki ruled that the Ickes building must be sold, in its proper turn, like any other tax delinquent real estate. He said that the treasurer and the appeals board could not ignore or change the amounts specified in his judgment order for sale.

No Court Action by Board.

McDermott said that he and Toman were interested in protecting their assessment orders, but that they had been advised to take no court action. He suggested that a taxpayers' suit, filed in behalf of all those who fail to get the benefit of the board reduction, asking an injunction to prevent the treasurer collecting more than their revised tax bill, might succeed.

Schlaeger said that he was selling only one property a day for taxes, to comply with the law. Only about 1 per cent of the tax delinquent parcels have been sold so far.

THEATER OF AIR GIVES 'DESERT SONG' TONIGHT

Romberg's music, inspired by the men of the French Foreign Legion, will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber.

The dramatic cast will include Sondra Gair, William Everett, Carl Kroenke, and John Barclay. John Mallow will be the narrator.

India Orders 2,500 Cars of British Make for Civilians

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 16 [Reuters].—The government of India has ordered a large number of motor cars for civilian use. Informed circles here say about 2,500 cars, of British make, are expected in India in the next three or four months. The necessary shipping space is being arranged.

HUNDREDS PLEAD TO SPARE 'WOOF,' KILLER OF BABY

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 16 [Special].—Sgt. and Mrs. Charles Derdenger tonight were deluged by pleas of hundreds of dog lovers thruout the nation to spare the life of Woof, their Staffordshire bull terrier which killed their 21 month old daughter, Marguerite Theresa, Tuesday night.

From Florida to Montana came messages of protest by mail, phone, and telegraph against the decision of the parents to have the family pet executed to prevent "even a possibility that such a tragedy could happen again."

"We're so upset we haven't even opened all the letters yet," said Sgt. Derdenger, who arrived here from Camp Barkeley, Tex., for the child's funeral.

Dog Offered a Home.

"We want to bury our baby and then maybe we can think this thing out."

The phone jangled constantly in the Derdenger home today with calls from persons asking that Woof's life be spared. Several letters offered Woof a home in the country "where there are no children." One suggested that the dog be inducted into the army's K-9 corps where "she could kill Japs."

Most of the pleas insisted Woof merely followed her instincts when she grabbed Marguerite Theresa by the neck as the child attempted to stroke her back. The dog held on for several minutes, refusing to loosen her grip despite frantic efforts of Mrs. Derdenger and her father, Albert Lange, to free the child.

Court Order Sought.

Others criticized the parents for keeping the animal after it had previously showed jealousy of the baby. A cafe owner, Grady G. Terry, who said he had two dogs but no children, asked Superior Judges Edward R. Brand and William R. McKay if he could obtain a restraining order to halt the execution. He was advised to retain an attorney.

Meanwhile Woof is being held in the city animal shelter for observation for rabies. Bert Morse, shelter superintendent who also has been swamped with calls from dog lovers, said he was powerless to save the dog's life because the parents of the child, as owners of the dog, have a legal right to have the pet put to death.

CHINESE REGAIN 25 MILES ALONG CANTON RAILWAY

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 16 (AP).—Chinese troops counter-attacking in southern Hunan province have broken the Japanese hold on the Canton-Hankow railway for almost 25 miles, an army spokesman said today. Maj. Gen. Kung Chi-kuang, the army spokesman, said the Chinese now held the area on the railway between Pingshek in Kwangtung province and Liangtien to the north across the border in Hunan.

A Japanese loop east of the railway, linked by the enemy capture of the former United States 14th air force bases at Kanhsien, Namyung, and Suichwan, was pierced by the Chinese capture of Chihing, 30 miles east of Kukong, Gen. Kung declared.

The high command said the Chinese had reached points six miles northeast of Suichwan. But the Japanese, striking toward Chihing, also made gains, the Chinese said.

RED CROSS DOES BETTER JOB IN SOUTH PACIFIC

DRIVE STARTS MARCH 1.

The national Red Cross war fund drive starts March 1 with a goal of $200,000,000. The Chicago area quota is $11,300,000. The following story is one in a series of objective, factual surveys being made by Tribune correspondents.

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 16.—Despite unfavorable comments from some of the front line G. I.'s, the Red Cross seems to be doing an increasingly better job in the Southwest Pacific theater.

On Luzon, 31 fieldmen landed in the first three days. Five temporary canteens were set up on the beaches on D-day. By the 30th day of the operation 102 Red Cross workers were on the island. They distributed 150 tons of supplies.

When the Rangers rescued the American prisoners at Cabanatuan the Red Cross was there with cigarets, comfort kits, and 486 messages from relatives at home. At Bilibid and Santo Tomas prisons in Manila, where 4,142 prisoners and internees were released, 10 Red Cross workers distributed 3,600 messages from home and assisted in sending 3,500 letters out. These were flown by a Red Cross man to northern Luzon.

14 Girls Fly from Leyte.

Comfort supplies, candy, and reading material were distributed at both prisons. Fourteen Red Cross girls were flown from Leyte for the occasion. They included:

Leandine Steinlauf, 4921 N. Avers av., Chicago, Ill.; Mary Blaschke of La Crosse, Wis., and Monica Kickham of Saginaw, Mich.

A service club will open next week in a downtown three story building with showers, a barber shop, reading and writing rooms, ping pong tables, and a canteen.

The Red Cross also has 26 men on Mindoro, and staffs at Biak, Sansapor, Owi, Wakde, Maffin Bay, Morotai, and Manus. A large administrative staff is divided between Hollandia and Leyte. Skeleton staffs remain in Sydney, Brisbane, and other Australian cities.

Supplies Are Lacking.

The Red Cross also maintains a large promotional staff of "war correspondents" who mail stories and pictures to Washington, D. C., headquarters for transmission to local chapters who present them to newspapers.

A lack of supplies still hampers the work of the Red Cross in the Southwest Pacific theater and the organization says its pleas for priorities to bring in supplies are largely ignored altho the situation is growing brighter.

LUZON ATROCITY REPORTS BACKED BY WITNESSES

Massacre at Convent Told by Refugee.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

SANTO TOMAS, Manila, Feb. 16.—The worst reports of Manila massacres of Filipinos and foreigners by the Japanese have been confirmed by refugees who reached this camp after escaping death by fire, grenades, bayonets, and bullets. One of the worst was the Concordia convent massacre, in which an estimated 3,000 persons were slaughtered as the Japanese took vengeance on people they yesterday called brothers.

Mrs. Ambero Allmond, wife of Chief Petty Officer Dennis Allmond of the United States navy, told of her escape with two small children. She was assisted by a Spanish priest who carried her unconscious to the American lines and then returned for Jeannette Allmond, 5, and Dennis Jr., 4, while the Japanese were burning the convent and shooting fleeing refugees with machine guns at the front gate.

Woman Tells Story.

Mrs. Allmond said: "About one thousand of us, most women and children, had been staying at Concordia college as refugees. Concordia is on Herman st. in the Pago district where the Japs seemed to have a particular grudge against the Filipino residents.

"Last week more refugees commenced pouring into the gates, seeking safety and food. It was most difficult to accommodate them but the sisters did their best. I think there were between 3 and 4 thousand people in the inclosure by last Friday.

"The trouble started Saturday, Feb. 10. In the evening Japanese dressed in civilian clothes started filtering in and circulating among the people already terrified by the sounds of shooting, the crash of American shells on Jap positions, and the lurid skies over the burning city.

Grenades Tossed Inside.

"Between 1 and 2 a. m. the Japs started throwing thru the windows of the convent hand grenades wrapped in kerosene-soaked rags, setting fire to the building and killing and wounding many with the explosions.

"Panicky crowds surged toward the front gate, where the Japs shot them down with machine guns trained on the entrance. Father Garcia thinks 3,000 died, burned to death in the building or trampled to death, or shot down. Father Garcia is the Spanish priest who saved my life. I somehow got out of the building and started toward the rear gate instead of the front with my children, and then I fainted. Father Garcia picked me up and carried me thru the gate to the Paco railroad station, where American soldiers were, and then returned to the convent and brought back my children. The soldiers brought me to Santo Tomas."

Mrs. Allmond weighs no more than a hundred pounds, due to lack of nourishment.

KSTP SUBMITS TO PETRILLO IN 10 MONTH SIEGE

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 16 [Special].—Officials of radio station KSTP announced today they had "capitulated and accepted terms" of James C. Petrillo, czar of the American Federation of Musicians, after a 10 month contract dispute during which, the company charged, Petrillo "circumvented our courts and daringly defied the regional and national war labor boards and the President of the United States."

The station signed a two year contract with the AFM's Minneapolis Musicians' association providing for the employment of at least eight musicians at a minimum of $52 a week with the leader receiving at least $75 a week.

A station spokesman said the contract requires KSTP, a St. Paul station, to regularly employ the eight men as an orchestra in its Minneapolis studio, regardless of whether their services are needed.

Cited for Contempt.

During almost a year of negotiations, Petrillo, president of the AFM, was cited for contempt of court by Judge W. W. Bardwell of Hennepin county for violating a restraining order of the court by advising eight union musicians of the station to strike. The contempt warrant was never served because a contempt charge is not extraditable.

Petrillo also ignored a national war labor board order to instruct the musicians to return to work last July and four months later the regional war labor board recommended that the AFM demands be denied.

Statement by Executive.

In a statement today, Stanley E. Hubbard, president of the station, said:

"We have fought for a fundamental American principle but it has been made clear to us the government is unable to assist us. We have no alternative but to accept the situation temporarily, at least.

"We, therefore, have capitulated and accepted Petrillo's terms and have acceded to his demands that we employ men under contract regardless of whether or not we need them."

HIS ROLLS ROYCE ROLLS BACK TO GEN. M'ARTHUR

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 16 (AP).—The Americans have recaptured Gen. MacArthur's Rolls Royce. The big car, still in good condition and highly polished, was found in a garage near the government palace north of the Pasig river. It apparently had been used by a Japanese officer who didn't have time or the opportunity to take it with him. A Cadillac, also used by the general before war, was found earlier.

MONTGOMERY'S FORCES BATTLE ON 10 MILE FRONT

3d Army Seizes Heights on Pruem River.

PARIS, Feb. 16 (AP).—A battle raged today on a 10-mile front south and east of Kleve, where Field Marshal Montgomery's offensive crunched southeastward yard by yard into a strongly-reenforced German line standing between his forces and the Ruhr and Rhineland.

Hundreds of big guns blazed, and swarms of allied warplanes attacked with bombs, bullets, and rockets, trying to knock the Germans from rising ground before the three strategic road networks of Goch, Uedem, and Calcar.

The Canadian 1st army—now disclosed to be made up of 75 per cent British forces—was about two miles from Calcar, five miles from Uedem, and two and a half miles from Goch. More allied tanks were joining the struggle as the ground became firmer. The 1st army has taken 6,000 prisoners so far.

Units of Eight Nazi Divisions.

Scottish infantry driving eastward and gaining nearly a mile were attacking bitterly-defended heights south of Moyland, within two miles of Calcar and 17 from Wesel at the gateway to the Ruhr.

The Germans had thrown in elements of eight divisions to block the path to the Ruhr—last great source of enemy munitions.

Massed German artillery and mortars for a time pinned down the advance on pivotal Goch along the Niers river, but a late dispatch said that once more the British were advancing on Hassum, three miles west of Goch.

Three battles southeast of Kleve—at the approaches to Calcar, on the road to Uedem, and over rolling hills in between—were merging into one.

Rhine Flood Ebbing.

One of the fiercest was southeast of Bedburg on the road to Uedem, where the Canadian charge by foot and armored troop carriers over sandy fields was met by salvos from multiple mortars.

The Germans were throwing in ceaseless counter-attacks, which sometimes broke into the allied lines, but they were finished off with bayonets and flame throwers or hurled back to their own positions.

A front dispatch said German resistance was ended along the flooded Rhine, where the enemy appeared to be relying on breached dikes for a defense. The floods on the Maas [Meuse] and Rhine were believed to be ebbing.

The Germans stepped up artillery fire on the flooded Roer river, which for the moment is keeping idle the United States 1st and 9th and British 2d armies, poised for a smash toward the Rhineland. First army patrols crossing the Roer last night ran into machine gun fire, mines, and barbed wire entanglements.

Seize Heights Above Rivers.

Lt. Gen. Patton's United States 3d army on the only other active sector of the western front won a tactical victory in the Schnee Eifel mountains by seizing heights overlooking the Pruem and Enz rivers, which protect the south flank of Bitburg, eight miles to the north.

In the advance the Americans captured a German air field half a mile northwest of the fortified village of Ferschweiler, and found four burned out planes on the ground.

The 5th infantry division occupied the ground overlooking the Pruem and Enz rivers in gains of a quarter of a mile along a five mile front stretching from two miles north of Echternac. to three miles north of Bollendorf.

The 76th infantry division in this same Sure river bridgehead gained a half mile along the river a mile and a quarter east of Echternach.

Landing on Dutch Island.

Five and seven miles to the south mechanized cavalry pushed into Born and Wasserbillig west of the German fortress of Trier, but withdrew under heavy fire.

The 3d army announced that since it went into action in France it had knocked out 1,988 German tanks, including 718 Tigers, while losing 1,044 tanks and tank destroyers.

In the battle of the Ardennes, the 3d destroyed 515 tanks and 202 pieces of mobile artillery against the loss of 168 tanks and tank destroyers and 91 artillery pieces.

The German war bulletin said a British attempt to land on Schouwen, a Dutch island at the mouth of the Rhine from which it is believed rockets are being launched against England, had been repulsed Wednesday night.

A Berlin broadcast said that three allied landing vessels had been damaged and two assault waves were repulsed. There was no allied confirmation.

TIRE AND WHEEL STOLEN.
Mrs. Lucille Newton, 8243 Ellis av., reported to the police that a spare wheel and tire were stolen from her automobile in a parking lot at 1000 W. 120th st., yesterday.

TRIALS OF NAZIS BEGIN IN AACHEN 1ST ARMY COURT

Party Leader Accused as Murderer.

New Philadelphia, O., a Yale law school graduate, conducted the trial according to continental custom. This follows none of the American rules of evidence, but permits almost any kind of testimony and offers wide latitude in examination to the prosecution and defense.

Seated before a large American flag and smaller British and French ones, Maj. Limbach swore in each witness in a dramatic voice, making him repeat:

"I solemnly swear by God, the almighty and omniscient, I will speak the whole truth and will withhold nothing nor add nothing."

Some Communists.

With Pvt. Arich Hartmann of Albany, N. Y., who left Germany at 16, translating, each witness repeated the oath except an atheist, who said merely he affirmed. Most witnesses for the prosecution were former members of either the Social Democratic party or the Communist party. One mine manager, himself under arrest, was a professed Nazi.

One witness, Hubert Harff, a restaurant owner and party member, told of seeing Meyer in SA uniform "hundreds of times." A friend, Hans, said Harff, had been attacked by Meyer and his gang, and Meyer had booted Hans in the face as he lay on the ground until his jaw was broken and all his teeth knocked out.

"If they weren't still afraid of Meyer," said Harff, "hundreds of other Kolscheiders would be here today."

Harff said he had seen Meyer take affectionate farewell of Kolscheid's Nazi Mayor Zimmerman when the Gestapo was cleaning out the district and grabbing all anti-Nazis who were not in hiding. At that time, said Harff, Meyer roamed the streets freely.

Had Gang of "Kommandos."

As organizer of the SA there, said Harff, Meyer had formed a gang known as Roll [mobile] Kommando, which the people called Murder Kommando or Terror Kommando.

While half drunk in Harff's restaurant, the witness said, Meyer sent one of his Kommandos, Peter Bremen, to break up "some Social Democrats and Communists" in another beer hall. Bremen flung open the door and fired a shot, killing Peter Dahmen, 18.

According to the prosecution, the Nazi party held a kangaroo court and tried Dahmen's corpse for felonious assault, refusing admittance to Dahmen's father and 19 eye witnesses to the murder.

Another witness, a Communist named Brull, testified Meyer and his gang tried to murder him and his brother in 1933, but that they escaped an ambush.

Joseph Becker, who said he had been expelled from the SA, said Meyer was the organizer but later, because he was a political leader, assumed an inactive role, merely giving orders to the Roll Kommando.

Became Mayor of Town.

"After Hitler assumed power in 1933," asked Capt. Burke, "what happened to Meyer?"

"Meyer became mayor of Bardenburg," answered Becker.

On and on went the tale of beatings by Meyer and his men in their storm trooper uniforms. From Johan Prinz, grocer, who limped in with a cane, came testimony that Meyer had twice led the Roll Kommando in attacks on him. Prinz's left arm and foot were broken, his nose broken, and his head badly scarred. He was so badly injured the second time, said Prinz, that he was sent to a hospital for the insane.

"Another time they got the wrong man," added Prinz. "It was my friend, Ritzerfeld. He told me later that Meyer kicked at his eyes until he'd lost three-quarters of his vision, then said, 'Boys, we've got the wrong man. Out.' And they ran away."

SENATORS URGE U. S. TO PROTECT RIGHTS ABROAD

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16 (AP).—A bipartisan senatorial group today challenged the state department to evolve a national policy for advancing foreign trade and protecting the nation's overseas investments in air bases and radio stations.

Asserting that this country has stood too long "in the shadow of the British," Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.] indorsed the suggestion of Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] that "it's up to the state department to take over."

Agreeing with their view, Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] told reporters the state department "should come to congress for any statutory authority it needs."

Assert U. S. Lacks Rights.

The interviews came on the heels of a war investigating committee report by Senators Tunnell [D., Del.] and Burton [R., O.], who reported the United States virtually has no post-war rights in radio stations and air bases it has constructed all over the globe.

Chandler said it is up to the state department to lead the way to negotiations for post-war use of American financed facilities in the Mediterranean area.

"We ought to quit winning back possessions for other nations, then moving out and going home," he continued. "All we've done is take over, abandon, and retreat. The British are always on hand to take over possession and control."

U. S. Aid Bolsters Reds.

Russia's winter drive into Germany was bolstered by 3,447,000 tons of lend-lease cargo shipped during the last six months of 1944, Adm. Land informed congress today.

Urging extension of the lend-lease program for another year beyond its June 30 expiration date, the head of the war shipping administration told the house foreign affairs committee that the shipments to Russia were "substantially in excess" of earlier goals.

He said they included urgently needed foodstuffs for the Red armies, munitions, equipment for soviet war industries, railway equipment, and motor trucks.

Shipping Losses Negligible.

Shipping losses on the supply routes to Russia "are now negligible on both the north Russia and Mediterranean routes," Land asserted.

He said the supplies move into Russia thru routes to Murmansk, Archangel, and the Black sea. The latter service, he explained, was inaugurated early this year and places cargo directly at Russian rail heads at Odessa and other Black sea ports.

7TH ARMY COURT TO DEAL STERNLY IN NAZI TRIALS

WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY, Feb 16 (AP).—German civilians under military government of the southern part of the reich will have to hew to their own harsh Nazi laws, will be denied food imports, and will be expected to feed themselves, Lt. Col. Joseph Canby of Wynnwood, Pa., said today.

Canby, in charge of the 7th army's team to help rule Germany when the time comes, said "We have no sympathetic interest in the Germans as we did in the Italians. Our military courts will have absolute powers and sufficiently harsh penalties—and remember, we'll base the penalties on current German standards and not on Anglo-Saxin standards—will be administered."

RUSSIAN TROOPS FIGHT WAY INTO BRESLAU'S EDGE

LONDON, Feb. 17, Saturday (AP).—Red army siege troops crashed into the edge of Breslau yesterday, completely encircling that big Silesian capital on the upper Oder river, while the Germans announced that other soviet forces had captured the central Oder stronghold of Crossen, 63 miles southeast of Berlin.

An enemy broadcast said that the "decisive battle" for Breslau had begun, with soviet artillery slamming shells into the city from all sides.

Breslau is the biggest German city yet within the grasp of any allied army. It had a 1942 population of 630,000, later swollen to 1,000,000 by the influx of refugees from Berlin and other bomb-shattered Nazi cities.

Four Miles from City's Center.

The Russians officially were declared to be only four miles from the heart of Breslau. They broke into the edge of the city with the seizure of Drachenbrunn, adjoining Bischofswalde, a forest on the southeastern side of the city.

More than 100 miles northwest of Breslau a fluid battle had developed on the southeastern approaches to Berlin and a late Moscow dispatch said the Germans were rushing reenforcements of veterans and unseasoned home army recruits into the area in an effort to stop the Russians who were threatening to turn Berlin's eastern defenses.

Soviet front dispatches said that Marshal Konev's northern wing, moving toward Cottbus, huge rail center 47 miles southeast of Berlin, was within sight of the Spree river, last natural defense line guarding the reich capital. Cottbus, its military glutted rail yards shattered by Thursday's American air attacks, is on the Spree.

Gain 18 Miles in Day.

The Russians captured 50 localities and gained up to 18 miles during the day in cleaning out a big enemy pocket between the Bober and Oder rivers, hurling the enemy into a marshy stretch one to three miles wide between Crossen and Rothenburg.

Two hundred localities were taken in the encirclement of Breslau, first announced two days before by Berlin. In completing the ring around the city the Russians had cut eight railways and seven highways leading into Breslau.

Among the localities taken on the eastern side of the Oder were Margareth, three miles southeast of Breslau; Drachenbrunn, three miles northwest of Margareth on the highway into Breslau and five miles from the heart of the Lower Silesian capital; Hundsfeld, one mile east-northeast of Breslau and four miles from the heart of the city; Paschkerwitz, five miles on the northeast, and Schebitz, six miles north.

Take West Side Towns.

On the western side of the river other soviet forces captured the big suburban road junction of Deutsch Lissa, five miles northwest of Breslau; Klettendorf, at the southwestern edge of Breslau and four miles from its center; and Kattern, four miles away on the southeast.

Deepening their ring around the city the Russians also captured Wansen, 19 miles south of Breslau.

Northwest of Budapest, Hungarian capital which fell Tuesday after a siege of nearly 50 days, the Russians captured 3,400 more Germans, completing the destruction of a sizable enemy band which had broken out of the soviet siege ring and tried to escape.

Marshal Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian army attacking northward thru Polish Pomorze, or the "corridor" between German Pomerania and the Vistula river, captured seven villages in gains up to six miles on a 30 mile front.

'Human Torpedo' Raid Fails; 3 Nazis Seized

LONDON, Feb. 16 [Reuters].—Four German "human torpedoes" approached Split, harbor on the Dalmatian coast, early on Monday to torpedo boats, the new Yugoslav radio said. It asserted no ship was hit and one German was killed and three captured.

EX-PREMIER ASKS FIXING OF ALL POLISH BORDERS

Urges Lwow and Oil Fields Be Retained.

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP).—In a letter to the London Daily Herald today the former premier of the Polish government in London, Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, advocated simultaneous settlement of Poland's eastern, western and northern frontiers, and urged that the city of Lwow and the Galician oil fields remain within the nation's borders.

The Curzon line settlement proposed by the Crimea conference would give both Lwow and the oil fields to the soviet union.

Tells Two-Fold Problem.

"The essential aspects of the Polish problem are two-fold," Mikolajczyk said. "The question of frontiers and the question of the government.

"I maintain the view that the three great powers should share the responsibility in the frontier settlement in which Poland also should participate . . . and I also maintain the view that by such a settlement the frontiers of Poland in the east as well as in the west and north should be fixed simultaneously. Moreover, I have always held that at least Lwow and the oil fields should remain within Poland."

Favors Democratic Rule.

"On the question of government," Mikolajczyk continued, "I have pronounced myself in public favor of convening a round table conference of all leaders of the Polish underground in Warsaw and of basing the government in Poland on all democratic elements and guaranteeing to such a government the means for unhampered action. I have never suggested that this should be accomplished by the broadening and reorganization of the so-called provisional government in Lublin.

"One cannot assert therefore, that the 'Crimea plan' concerning Poland both on the subject of frontiers and on the subject of new government in Poland, is based on my suggestions."

92D FALLS BACK TO ITS ORIGINAL LINE IN ITALY

ROME, Feb. 16 (AP).—American troops on the extreme left flank of the 5th army front near the Tyrrhenian coast have fallen back onto the southern slopes of Monte Canala, four miles southeast of the road hub of Massa, after enemy infiltrations threatened their outposts, allied headquarters announced today.

This withdrawal put the Negro 92d infantry division back in the positions it held prior to its two day attack in that area a week ago, the announcement said.

Lt. Gen. Clark told the Italian people yesterday a German effort to withdraw from Italy appeared "more and more likely." He said the allied air forces, consequently, were loosing an assault against communications lines leading from northern Italy and urged patriots there to attack these lines in coördination with the allies.

Rescuers Dig by Hand for British Victims of V-Bomb

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP).—Men and women clawed away tons of rubble by hand after a German V-bomb exploded and trapped a number of persons under demolished buildings in southern England recently. Rescue workers brought up steam shovels and bulldozers but dared not use them for fear of injuring those trapped by the blast. Volunteers recovered a number of bodies and rescued several injured. Among the dead were three generations of one family—two children, their mother and their grandmother. Southern England was under attack again last night.

HITLER, HIMMLER DECREE MARTIAL LAW FOR REICH

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Gestapo Chief Himmler imposed martial law upon virtually all Germany and poised the executioner's ax today with a decree establishing courts martial to "handle ruthlessly" any one who shirks the Nazi death struggle.

The "courts of summary justice" will be set up immediately in all invasion-threatened areas of the reich, with power to deal the death sentence to any one who attemtps, "especially thru cowardice or selfishness," to evade his duties.

The decree, broadcast by the German radio, meant that even in deepest Bavaria a German could be sentenced to death for selfishness in refusing shelter to a refugee from an overrun province or for "damaging the reich" by uttering or repeating a rumor.

Nazis Control Courts.

The summary courts are to be established, said the decree, "on orders of the Fuehrer in agreement with the reichsminister of the interior [Himmler]."

Judges will be "assisted" by political leaders or section leaders of the army, the SS elite guard or the police. Since Hitler is commander in chief of the army and Himmler controls the SS and the police, it will be a thoroly Nazi setup.

Before the summary courts will be brought all persons charged with "crimes by which German fighting strength or fighting determination are endangered."

Devotion Demanded.

The announcement of the decree said, in part:

"The difficult struggle for the continued life of the reich requires that every German should be ready to fight and display his devotion unto the last.

"Whoever tries to escape his duties to the community, especially out of cowardice or selfishness, must immediately be dealt with, applying the necessary rigor so that the reich shall suffer no dire result from the failure of an individual.

"The procedure shall be governed by the spirit of the regulations laid down in the reich criminal proceedings order."

The Moscow radio reported that the German high command was demanding the prosecution of Dr. Hans Franck, Nazi governor of Poland, on charges of cowardice and desertion.

U. S. Army Hangs Yank for Murder Near Brest

PARIS, Feb. 16 (AP).—An American soldier convicted by a court martial of murder and assault with intent to rape was hanged yesterday at Plabennec, on the Brest peninsula, it was announced today. His name was not disclosed. Gen. Eisenhower had reviewed the case and confirmed the sentence.

CHARGE DEATH OF SALESMAN TO FOOD POISONING

Indiana state and Porter county authorities are investigating the death of John Shellhorn, 36, of 4443 Lowe av., a paint salesman, who died in Chesterton Thursday night, presumably of ptomaine poisoning. Four other men also became ill. They are John Carlson and Emil Carlson, both of Porter; William Nulf and George Kleiner, both of Chesterton. Coroner Hallard Flynn of Porter county said that all had eaten at the same restaurant in Chesterton before becoming ill. Coroner Flynn quoted Dr. J. W. Dale, who attended Shellhorn, as saying that the latter's death was attributable to food poisoning.

Transportation System Is Broken Down.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LANDERNEAU, France, Feb. 16.—Several hundred miles of travel thru Normandy and Brittany discloses four outstanding facts of the present situation in France.

FIRST—The country has food to supply the big towns if it could be distributed and administration were efficient.

SECOND—Transportation has been almost suspended.

THIRD—A surprisingly large number of French towns have been heavily damaged by aerial bombardment.

FOURTH—The irregular F. F. I. [French Forces of the Interior] formations which formerly exercised local authority have been disbanded or absorbed into the regular army.

Believe Reds Hid Guns.

There seems reason to believe, however, I was told, that many of the communist groups which disbanded have hidden their arms instead of turning them over to the authorities. Still, the menace of a communistic movement or uprising seems less acute in the provinces than in the big towns.

All this indicates that since last fall regular constituted forces of the provisional government have succeeded in establishing centralized authority and there seems no possibility of a clash between resistance elements and the government, such as was threatened last October.

The roads from Normandy down to Rennes, capital of Brittany, are heavily worn by heavy military traffic—over these roads the Germans hauled immense quantities of materials to construct the so-called west wall. Nearly every town has its area of houses destroyed by bombs and artillery.

Need Order to Travel.

In these towns there is food but no fuel. Fortunately, spring has almost arrived in Brittany and there is less suffering. No trains run. People can travel only if they have a special order from the government. In some places the villagers told me that small groups of German soldiers still lurked in the woods hiding and hoping to make their way back to Germany.

In Alencon the prefect of police said they had just rounded up a band of seven German soldiers who had been hiding since last summer's fighting.

In these towns of Normandy and Brittany there are stationed detachments of American military police to guard roads and pipelines running from the coast to the Rhine front. There are also American civil affairs officers who collaborate with local authorities to improve civilian conditions.

No Power or Materials.

The economic outlook everywhere is discouraging. There are no power for factories and no materials. Only on the farms is activity on the same scale as before the war.

Many French people are employed by the American military authority. They are well paid and also get food. I noticed in passing that the towns of Mayenne and Laval were severely damaged by bombardment. About a third of the houses in Rennes were destroyed. Most of the damage was done in the summer of 1944, when about 6,000 persons were killed.

From Rennes an excellent road runs to Brest thru Lamballe and St. Brieuc, stretching thru country over which the war passed lightly. It is poor country, hence less tempting to conquerors.

In some towns and villages, life seemed to be unaffected by the political and martial storm of the last five years. I saw peasants in native costume taking their cattle to the fair and while there was no abundance there were ample stocks of foods.

Tip of Brittany Untouched.

At St Brieuc there were a few restaurants. There was no food problem but no fuel. Guingamp, Morlaix, and Landerneau—towns on the tip of Brittany, have not been affected by the war.

I was headed for Brest but found there were no hotels or other accommodations. Brest has been hard hit last September. Consequently I stayed overnight here, a few miles away. Landerneau is the center of the Brest refugees, overcrowded but stocked with food.

SEVEN RAIL AND FUEL TARGETS IN RUHR BOMBED

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP).—More than 3,500 allied warplanes—paced by perhaps 1,700 heavy bombers—scourged Germany today, shifting the main weight of attack from the eastern to the western front as the record non-stop bombardment extended thru its third day.

Uncontested by the luftwaffe, a United States 8th air force fleet of 1,000 Fortresses and Liberators and 200 Mustang fighters raided two natural oil refineries, two benzol plants and railyards at Hamm, Osnabrueck and Rheine.

Ruhr benzol plants at Dortmund and Gelsenkirchen and natural oil refineries at Dortmund and Salzbergen, were hammered by the fleet of heavyweights.

Bombers of the 15th air force in Italy struck an airdrome near Regensburg in southern Germany and rail yards east of Innsbruck in Austria and Rosenheim, 35 miles southeast of Munich, and Bolzano on the Brenner pass line in the Italian Tyrol.

STIMSON ASKED: WILL U.S. LEAVE ARMS IN EUROPE?

Rep. Engel Questions Wisdom of Policy.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—Secretary of War Stimson was called on in the house today to disclose whether the army has adopted a new policy that would abandon vast stores of military equipment in Europe after the defeat of Germany and keep American factories in full operation turning out weapons for the war against Japan.

Rep. Engel.

Rep. Engel [R., Mich.], known as the one man investigator of congress, said he had written a letter to Stimson asking him if the reported policy explained the war department's support of the labor draft bill.

"It looks to me as if this policy, which will cost many additional billions of taxpayers' money, may have been adopted to keep arms factories going at full speed when the need no longer exists," Engel told the house. "Is this the reason why the administration wants control over all man power? Is it a scheme to retard reconversion to civilian industry after victory in Europe?"

Expert on War Program.

Engel is conceded to be one of the congressional experts on the war program.

Engel said recent reports from apparently authoritative sources had disclosed that American troops shifted to the Pacific after Germany's defeat would leave the bulk of their equipment behind and be armed anew for Japan.

The legislator asked the war secretary if this policy was official and, if so, to give an explanation of why it has been adopted.

Army May Boost Demands.

Engel, a member of the war department appropriations subcommittee, disclosed that the army recently requested a postponement of hearings on its request for funds in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, on the ground that the requirements might be increased.

"Is this requested increase to be based upon this new policy?" he asked Stimson.

He asked the war department to furnish a statement showing how much money already is being spent under the new policy and to detail the cost of materials and equipment with which it proposes to duplicate the stores to be abandoned in Europe.

The army is reported to have admitted that it will cost additional billions to produce new equipment, but it insists that the wisest policy is to let soldiers from Europe and munitions from America converge for the assault against Japan.

Presumably, it was said, the bulk of the military stores abandoned in Europe would be sold as surplus there.

FRANCE PROPOSES TO PUT GERMANY IN ECONOMIC VISE

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 16.—A report recommending the economic hamstringing of post-war Germany was adopted unanimously today by the foreign affairs committee of the French consultative assembly.

Primary aim of this report, which was drawn up by Pierre Olivier Lapie, is to make a German comeback as a military power forever impossible. Its chief recommendations are:

1. Transfer to allied countries of all material that may be employed in war manufacture, and destruction of the buildings of all enterprises recognized by the allies as specializing in the manufacture of articles of war.

2. Establishment of a control system to prevent manufacture of airplane engines and to check up on engine imports.

3. An order prohibiting the accumulation of more than two months' stock of certain products.

4. Limitation, by international order, of exports of these products to Germany.

5. Allied control of research bureaus, industrial laboratories, and patents.

6. Confiscation of German investments abroad—especially in neutral countries—and control of all future German investments.

Lapie said that the measures proposed could be made effective only by an international economic council working under some sort of security council similar to that proposed at Dumbarton Oaks.

FRANCO'S BIDS TO BRITAIN FAIL, NAZIS ASSERT

LONDON, Feb. 16. (AP).—The German radio gave its version tonight of the recent correspondence in which Prime Minister Churchill rapped the knuckles of Generalissimo Franco of Spain and then concluded the broadcast cryptically by reporting that "Spanish circles" had failed in attempting to establish contact with England.

The Transocean broadcast did not explain what it meant by this, but there have been reports from time to time that the Germans might attempt to put out peace feelers thru Spain.

The broadcast said Franco had not written Churchill directly, but last November had addressed a letter to the duke of Alba, Spanish ambassador in London, "developing his personal views about the European situation in connection with English plans of a western treaty." Transocean said "Churchill in his reply declared in unmistakable terms that the British government would not commit itself to any plans or actions pointing against Moscow."

WAR DECLARED BY YALTA PACT, SHAFER ASSERTS

Flint, Mich., Feb. 16 [Special].—The Churchill - Roosevelt - Stalin agreement at the Yalta, Crimea parley was assailed tonight as a Big Three declaration of war by Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] in an address before the Genessee county Lincoln banquet.

"Under the commitments we become the guarantor of boundary lines which I do not believe can be preserved in peace," Shafer said. "They can be maintained only at the cost of perpetual fighting and it is quite clear we are to do the fighting.

"There will be wars piled upon wars because of the manner in which the loot of Europe is to be divided under the proposals. No international organization working under the Crimean agreement can save Europe from these wars. All that such an international organization can do will be to compel us to participate in those wars.

A Perpetual Emergency.

"It is also clear," Shafer said, "that if the United States is to maintain a European expeditionary force, we will have a perpetual emergency in America. This means that all the emergency war powers that have been granted to Mr. Roosevelt will continue indefinitely. There will never be an end to the emergency we are now in."

Shafer asserted he found no such unanimous approval for the Crimean agreement in congress as was voiced in the internationalist press. He said he was not alone in congress in being opposed to maintaining a standing army in Poland to preserve the territorial distribution approved at Crimea or in support of three spheres of military influence in Germany.

Change in Attitude.

"The Crimean agreements indicate that all Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill had to do at the conference was to agree with Mr. Stalin," he said. "This is well indicated by the fact they made a right about face when they agreed to recognize the Lublin government of Poland after having recognized the Polish government in exile [in London] only a few short weeks ago."

Shafer asked on which side American forces would be fighting in Greece if the agreement commitments had been operating a few months ago—for Britain or the ELAS who are reported to have the blessing of Stalin.

N. E. A. INQUIRY IN CITY SCHOOLS TO BE RESUMED

Donald Du Shane, secretary of the National Education association's commission for the defense of democracy thru education, which has been investigating the treatment of teachers in the Chicago schools, and several members of the commission are scheduled to arrive in Chicago today to resume their inquiry.

Du Shane and other commission members will review the evidence collected and investigate any new evidence that may be brought before them. A report on the investigation is expected by March 10, it was learned.

Last week Du Shane reported he had been barred from public elementary schools which he sought to visit to carry on the investigation. The board of education has denied the commission access to the schools and termed the inquiry a "fishing expedition."

WILL BACK BILL TO AID SCHOOLS' LUNCH PROGRAM

F. O. Washam, director of the bureau of lunchrooms for the board of education, is scheduled to appear at a congressional hearing Monday in Washington, D. C., to support an appropriation of 115 million dollars requested for federal aid to the school lunch program. Business Manager John Howatt said yesterday. The federal government last year subsidized the lunch program in schools to the extent of 50 million dollars, of which $1,400,000 was allocated to Chicago public schools. Chicago received an additional $400,000 from the state for its school lunch program, Howatt said.

Odd Lot Shoes to Be Sold Ration Free Till March 10

The ration free sale of odd lot shoes authorized for retailers to begin next Monday will continue thru March 10, instead of ending in two weeks as planned, the office of price administration said yesterday. The period was extended because the recent freight embargo delayed shipments.

UNRRA FAILURE BREWING STORM; 2 INQUIRIES SEEN

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP).—A storm over the united nations' relief and rehabilitation administration [UNRRA] was brewing tonight, with the strong possibility investigations would be precipitated in both the United States congress and the British parliament into the organization's failure to get relief work under way on a larger scale.

Congress and parliament are the two chief sources of revenue for the mercy agency once envisioned as the first major test for international nonmilitary collaboration.

Within a week UNRRA has drawn criticism from opposite sides of the globe, with authoritative quarters insistent that the chief difficulty lies in a lack of understanding between UNRRA and the army.

Funds Up to Congress.

Among UNRRA personnel from the United States belief mounted that congress, probably thru the house appropriations and the senate finance committees, would call for a thorogoing inquiry before approving the $550,000,000 balance of a $1,350,000,000 American contribution.

Here in London the Laborite Daily Herald demanded, "What has gone wrong—why should this vast organization stand paralyzed in an hour when its activities should be mounting to a peak?"

This criticism followed a statement by Dr. H. V. Evatt, Australia's minister of external affairs, that "something of a crisis is emerging in relation to UNRRA's functions."

Earlier in the week M. A. Lamping, representing the Netherlands, and Vicomte de Thieusies, delegate for Belgium, told UNRRA's European committee that their people were first led to believe that they could expect everything from UNRRA, but that subsequently they came to the conclusion after liberation that they could expect nothing.

Agencies' Hands Tied.

UNRRA's hands remain tied, especially in the cases of France and Belgium. As the British minister of state, Richard K. Law, has pointed out, the organization can enter a liberated country only upon the invitation of its government. Neither France nor Belgium has invited UNRRA.

Inside and outside of commons, where debate on the situation is expected within two weeks, there has been speculation on the failure of the western European countries to extend such an invitation.

Generally, it is believed to result from a combination of reasons—partly national pride, with fear that sovereignty would be impaired if an international organization were called in to handle relief, and partly belief that they will be able to obtain more food and other necessities by dealing directly with the source of supplies.

Complicating the situation is a conflict between civilian and military demands for many of the "must" items. Also, there is a lack of transportation.

GUNNER DOWNED OVER HUNGARY IS ON WAY HOME

Sgt. Irving B. Malawsky, 20, who is among the Chicago soldiers returning home on the Gripsholm in an exchange of war prisoners with Germany, was reported missing in action last June 16. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Malawsky, 1324 N. Homan av., who said they had a letter from him Dec. 24. An air corps radioman and gunner, he was shot down in aerial combat over Hungary. Recently he was transferred from a prison camp in Hungary to Germany. He was employed by the treasury department before he entered the army two years ago and had been overseas since last May. Besides his parents, a sister, Ida, awaits his return home.

"You know what I miss the most since we moved to the suburbs? The last bus to town!"

YANK OFFERS SELF AS BUDDIES' TARGET TO KNOCK OUT NAZIS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16 (AP).—Here's a real hero: A doughboy who risked his life to warn his comrades of a German trap in which he was being used as the bait. He is Pvt. Leo T. Zingale of Cleveland, O. The war department today announced the award to him of a distinguished service cross.

Pvt. Leo T. Zingale.

Zingale's squad was advancing against a German machine gun position in France last July 10 when he was wounded. An artillery barrage forced the squad to fall back. German machine gunners seized Zingale and placed him in open ground 30 feet from their three guns, hoping to lure Zingale's buddies in to help him.

Zingale struggled to his feet and shouted: "Fire right at me, boys. Fire at me and you'll hit the Heinie machine guns." Then he flopped to the ground, just as his squad fired into the machine gun nest. Eventually all the enemy gunners were wiped out.

ALLIED CONVOY SINKS 2 U-BOATS ON RUSSIA RUN

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP).—An allied convoy on a Russian run recently sank two U-boats and shot down two Nazi torpedo planes and a scout plane, the admiralty announced today.

The Germans sighted the convoy on its second day out and trailed it all the way to a Russian port and back, but were unable to attack, the admiralty said.

American and British merchantmen made up the convoy under the protection of British and Canadian warships. One U-boat was sunk on the way to the Russian port and several others "undoubtedly damaged," the admiralty said. In the first two hours of the homeward trip, 10 U-boats were spotted. The allies lost one plane.

REVEAL 264,000 DRAFT AGE MEN IN WAR OFFICES

Army Advised to Survey Own Employe List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—Disclosure that the war department has 264,000 male civil service employes in the military age group of 18 thru 37, brought a demand from the senate military affairs committee today that the army survey the possibility of drafting such men for military duty.

The information on war department civilian employes was given to the senate committee by Lt. Gen. Thomas T. Handy, deputy chief of staff, at the committee's final closed hearing on the New Deal's "work or jail" bill.

60,000 in 18-25 Group.

Gen. Handy said the war department has 1,178,000 civilian employes in the United States. Of these, 537,000 are women and 641,000 are men. The men, he said, are divided into the following age groups: 18 to 25 inclusive, 60,000; 26 to 29 inclusive, 55,000; 30 to 37 inclusive, 149,000, and over 37, 377,000.

Gen. Handy told the committee occupational deferments had been asked for only 56 men in the 18 to 25 age group and for 11,990 in the 26 to 29 group. He gave no figures for the other groups.

Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.], acting chairman of the committee, told reporters the committee had "expressed concern" over the large number of draft age civilian employes in the war department. He said members recalled that the army had been criticized by the committee a year ago for employing large numbers of civilians.

Advised to Survey Group.

Johnson said Gen. Handy defended the army's use of civilian man power, even in the military age group, with the assertion that all were needed, despite the army's demand for more combat soldiers. The committee asked Gen. Handy to survey the employment of men between 18 and 37 to see how many can be inducted for military service.

The committee has a breakdown on navy figures on the employment of civilians, but Johnson said it could not be released because the information was "restricted," which means it is intended for the eyes of military personnel only.

Gen. Handy's statement on the number of civilian war department employes did not agree with figures obtained from the congressional joint economy committee today. The committee reported that the Feb. 1 total of war department civil employes in this country was 1,936,534, compared with Gen. Handy's total of 1,178,000. In addition, the economy committee records showed, the army has 327,000 civil employes overseas.

May Have Shifted Employes.

An employe of the economy committee said the discrepancy might be explained by the war department's shifting of its employes to the pay rolls of firms holding war department contracts, especially in the air forces and the army service forces.

As part of its campaign for the "work or jail" labor draft bill, the war department has asserted critical labor shortages exist in industries making war material. Military personnel has been released to provide extra man power for such firms, and it can be assumed that civilian employes of the army may have been similarly shifted, the economy committee spokesman said.

EX-SEN. HOWELL GOT $750 BRIBE, COURT INFORMED

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 16 [Special].—Testimony that Chester M. Howell, Saginaw, former Republican state senator, was paid $750 in his hotel room for helping to gain passage of a bill favored by the Michigan State Dental society was placed in the record today at the preliminary examination of five defendants charged with a conspiracy to corrupt the 1939 legislative session.

Henry Gerber Jr., executive secretary of the dental society, who had been granted immunity from prosecution, appeared as the state's chief witness. He told of the $750 payment as the hearing opened before Judge Leland W. Carr.

Gerber said that a $50 payment was made to the late Sen. Warren G. Hooper [R., Albion], then a representative, and $150 to Francis J. Nowak, Detroit, a former Democratic representative. Nowak, three other former lawmakers, and one dentist are the respondents.

The three ex-lawmaker defendants in addition to Nowak are D. Stephen Benzie, former Democratic senator from Norway, and Ernest G. Nagel and Earl C. Gallagher, both former Detroit Democratic representatives. The dentist named is Dr. Edwin J. Chamberlin, Grand Rapids.

POLICE IN LEGION AWARD DIAMOND STAR TO MAYOR

A diamond studded gold lapel star was presented to Mayor Kelly yesterday by Police Sgt. Terence Ryan, commander of the Chicago Police post No. 207, American Legion, in recognition of the mayor's help in supporting post activities.

"This satisfies my life ambition—at last I'm a policeman," said the mayor, whose father was a policeman and a fireman.

Sgt. Ryan and his committee gave Police Commissioner Allman a service flag with the numeral 4 in a gold star for the four Chicago policemen who have been killed in this war, and the numeral 797 in a blue star for the policemen who are in military service. Ryan was accompanied by Park Policeman Edward Nelson, Police Sgt. Nick Reidy, and Policeman Edward Charvat of the police post, and Arthur Canty, commander of the Illinois state department of the Legion.

ARMY PAROLES TO KEEP LEASH ON JOB HIKERS

Men inducted into the army under War Mobilizer Byrnes' "jail or fight" edict and who are not fit for general military service can escape after four weeks if they volunteer to return to essential industry, the war department said yesterday in Washington, D. C.

To make sure that men who left war work for nonessential industry stay on the jobs they take after four weeks of basic training, the army will hold the threat of return to military tasks as a club over their heads.

The war department said the former 2-A and 2-B draft registrants who lost their deferments because they changed jobs will go into the general military service if physically fit. They will not have any choice and will be trained for combat.

Unfit Men to Be Trained.

The unfit men between 18 and 38 will be sent to Camp Ellis, McDonough county, where they will undergo physical conditioning, learn the army's methods of sanitation, get some drill, and learn to shoot a rifle and live in barracks.

Camp Ellis will be the training center for all men in this category in the United States. Instructors have been sent to the camp and the war department said the first group will arrive "in a few days."

After the basic training, skilled men will get a chance to volunteer to return to war industry. Volunteers will be placed on inactive status in the enlisted reserve corps. If recalled, they will be assigned to labor in camps, posts, stations, hospitals, or wherever the army finds use for them.

Nonvolunteers Go Into Army.

The army plans to assign skilled men who do not volunteer for work in plants needing their skills—but as uniformed soldiers.

Of the 1,400 Illinois men—800 in Cook county—who were reclassified to 1-A for leaving their jobs, 450 have been examined physically. About 300 were found unfit for general military service, but physically able to undergo the four weeks training. Like other draftees, they will have a 21 day furlough before they are ordered to Camp Ellis.

When called they will go to reception centers for uniforms and necessary equipment before shipment to camp.

Vote to Exempt Nurses Under 20 in Draft Bill

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16 (AP).—The house military committee voted today to exclude nurses under 20 from the group it proposes to draft for military service. It left unchanged the maximum age limit, 45, as it raised the minimum from 18 to 20. Chairman May [D., Ky.] predicted final committee approval for the legislation tomorrow.

Divorces Comedian

Mrs. Venita Oakie in Los Angeles court yesterday.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 16 (AP).—Mrs. Venita Oakie was granted a divorce today from Jack Oakie, screen comedian, after testifying tearfully that she endeavored repeatedly to make a success of their marriage. "My husband would stay away from home at night and then tell me it was none of my business where he had been," Mrs. Oakie said. "He called me names and otherwise humiliated me before guests." Her attorney, Jerry Giesler, said she and Oakie had arranged a property settlement. The couple married a Yuma, Ariz., March 22, 1936. They have no children.

U.S. JOB OFFICES SEEK MORE AIDS TO SPEED WORK

BY JUNE GESERICK.

Chicago area offices of the United States employment service have been authorized to employ 60 additional workers and William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, has requested that the state unemployment compensation lend workers to the USES, it was disclosed yesterday. There are 18 offices in Cook and Du Page counties.

Spencer said increased staffs will enable area offices to handle more speedily the heavy traffic which has resulted from the labor control program. He said the additional workers will be sought immediately. All will be trained interviewers, civil service workers, and will receive from $2,200 to $2,600 per year.

63d St. Office Speedy.

A survey at USES office No. 4 at 654 North av. revealed that the average time spent yesterday by applicants seeking permission to take jobs was two hours, while the average time spent in the office at 4711 South Park way averaged two hours.

W. M. Gist, manager of the South Park way office, said his workers interviewed yesterday nearly 1,200 persons seeking permits to accept jobs. His staff consists of 32 persons, all of whom, Gist said, are well trained and efficient. He said the slow handling of cases is due largely to an insufficiency of employes.

A visit to the office showed the applicants nervous, irate, and uncomfortable from waiting several hours in the hot, crowded room.

Staff Shrinks as Traffic Grows.

I. H. McIntire, manager of the North av. office, also attributed the slow handling of cases to the fact that his office operates with an undersized staff. He said there were 57 employes in the office in September, 1943, but now there are only 46. Traffic volume has become four times as great, and the office now handles more than 600 cases each day.

Managers of each local office visited admitted that some applicants sent out to take specified jobs find when they arrive at the hiring plant that those jobs have been filled. In none of the agency offices is there a practice of telephoning to the employer before applicants are sent there.

B. P. BACHRACH, COUNTY PUBLIC DEFENDER, QUITS

Benjamin P. Bachrach, Cook county public defender since the office was put in operation in 1930, resigned yesterday to Chief Justice Harold G. Ward of Criminal court. Mr. Bachrach said his resignation, effective March 1, was due to ill health.

Leaving a lucrative law practice to become public defender, Mr. Bachrach won the esteem of judges and prosecutors.

Leading candidate for the vacancy was reported to be Francis T. McCurrie, leading prosecutor of State's Atty. Tuohy's office. Selection of Mr. Bachrach's successor will be made at the next meeting of judges of the Circuit, Superior, and Criminal courts.

Kankakee Colonel in 9th Army Wins Silver Star

Lt. Col. Laroy E. Frazier, 32, has received the silver star for gallantry and outstanding leadership in action, his father, D. O. Frazier, 429 S. Greenwood av., Kankakee, has been informed by the war department. Lt. Col. Frazier is with the 9th army in Germany.

TRADE UNIONISTS ASK FOR PLACE IN PEACE COUNCILS

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP).—The world trade union conference today formally welcomed the Big Three's Crimea declaration, recommended that the trade union movement "be associated with the peace settlement in all its phases," and urged the governments of more than forty nations to crack down economically on Spain, Argentina, and "other fascist countries."

The statement on the Big Three declaration was in the form of a report of a committee headed by James B. Carey of the CIO, which was adopted virtually intact after hours of debate.

The conference resolved that measures must be taken to bring to justice all war criminals and those guilty of Nazi atrocities, end the Nazi system, dissolve all Nazi organizations, confiscate party funds and properties, place under allied nations' control not only heavy industries but German transport and banking systems and property owned by German trusts, cartels, and Junkers, utilize German industries and resources for rehabilitation of all countries plundered and devastated by Germany, and to secure full compensation for damages to allied countries.

J. H. MARHOEFER TO FIGHT BLACK MARKET CHARGE

Plans to fight office of price administration charges that the Marhoefer Packing company, 816 Fulton st., dealt in black market meat and falsified its records to cover more than four million red points were announced yesterday by John H. Marhoefer, the owner.

"We're going to go down there and fight these charges," said Marhoefer. "We have had no dealings on the black market." He blamed the multiplicity of OPA forms and regulations for confusion in keeping of records. He denied all accusations made by the OPA.

Charges filed with the OPA hearing commissioner also named the John H. Marhoefer company, 837 Fulton st., operated by Marhoefer's father, Michael, and the dissolved Marhoefer Packing company, Inc., allied interests of the principal defendant company.

THE HEART OF THE BEAST.

Tokyo has had its blackest day of the war, a day made hideous by the ceaseless roar of American planes, by the ugly chatter of American machine guns making bonfires of neat lines of Zeros on dozens of air fields, by the remorseless, unending thunder of American bombs.

This is but the forerunner of yet blacker days ahead. The sword of America will continue to probe and slash until the last measure of vengeance is exacted for the infamy of Pearl Harbor, the torture of Bataan, and every other crime in the black record of Japanese imperialism.

Hirohito and his imperial general staff must have realized before now that their stolen empire was lost. They said that the decisive battle of the war would be in the Philippines. MacArthur is in Manila. They had begun to steel their people for a stubborn defense of the island fortresses of the homeland. Today they must realize that even that was a desperate, fleeting hope.

There is only one military fact in the Pacific today: That is the United States fleet. It goes where it pleases. If the Japanese dare send out what remains of their fleet, ours is waiting. The ocean is no longer a protecting bastion to Japan. It is a prison wall to the Japs and an open highway to the American navy.

Radio silence has not been broken to give details of the attack, but last night's announcement that it is still going on shows that Adm. Spruance and Vice Adm. Mitscher were not content with a single day's hunting. There are still plenty of targets on Honshu and there is always the prospect that the Jap fleet may be flushed for a final engagement. Tokyo radio fears an American invasion of Iwo in the Volcano Islands, a logical objective in the present campaign. It would establish American light bombers and long range fighters, even, within "milk run" distance of Tokyo, 700 miles away, and it would blind the Jap radio warning system against B-29 raiders from Saipan.

That Japan's leaders are not unaware of their position is hinted by another Tokyo radio announcement. Premier Adm. Koiso has taken as cabinet "advisers" two business men. One is Ginjuro Fujiwara, the empire's paper king and an associate in the Mitsui financial empire, and the other is Yoshiaki Hatta, former president of the national chamber of commerce. The government of Japan is still in the hands of the militarists, as it has been since they seized control early in 1941 and challenged the western world. It is too early to say that this limited grant of power to business men presages a plea for peace, but some such change is an indispensable preliminary to any peace plea.

The purported terms of such a peace have been published in one of the government controled newspapers of Chungking, and broadcast by the official Chinese radio. They include the allotment of separate zones of occupation in Japan to each of the allies fighting that country.

China is hardly the proper source for Japanese peace terms. The world's sympathy for the suffering of the Chinese during seven years of Japanese occupation cannot obscure the fact that that nation is not and has never been more than a third class military power. It could not even defend the air bases which our 14th air force established at such labor to aid the Chinese army.

With all due allowance for the aid given by the Australians in their own area of the Pacific, the war against Japan is being won almost single handed by the United States. We have freed more British territory than the British themselves have freed. We have freed the only Dutch territory that has been freed. We have broken Japanese power in the Philippines. We are thundering at the door of Japan itself.

There need be only two seats at the Japanese peace table—one for America and one for the vanquished. If our allies have requests, they should present them to us. They have no right to make demands on an enemy whom they have done so little to defeat.

MR. ROOSEVELT PICKS HIS 1948 SETUP.

Mr. Roosevelt in selecting the American delegates for the world security conference in San Francisco April 25 pointedly transferred what is jocularly known as the titular leadership of the Republican party to Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, now a navy commander. This left Gov. Thomas E. Dewey gasping on dry land like a netted flounder and deprived his self-appointed foreign policy expert, John Foster Dulles, of the opportunity of whispering in any ear with profit.

Mr. Roosevelt's designation of Stassen as a delegate at the expense of Dewey was more than a studied affront. In the 1940 and 1944 Republican conventions, Mr. Roosevelt, thru his Wall street connections, was able to pull the wires just about the way he wanted. Wendell Willkie and Dewey were the choices of the New Deal for the Republican nomination in the last two elections. Both were "me, too" candidates who tried to campaign as Republicans on platforms indistinguishable from that of the New Deal. They were cut to size for Mr. Roosevelt's purposes.

Mr. Roosevelt is now looking forward to the fifth term and, in conferring the mantle of Republican leadership on Stassen, has designated him for the honor of taking the dry dive as Republican nominee four years hence. Stassen's qualifications as the straw man are obvious. He is the heir apparent to Willkie, having seized that dubious distinction after some neat elbow work on Global Joe Ball, who slipped and fell on the first turn. Stassen is another all-out internationalist who yields nothing to the master himself in this respect, and can be counted on even more confidently than Willkie or Dewey to default any contest over foreign policy in advance.

The great mass of Republicans who have been looking for a leader who will represent them will not be deluded by Mr. Roosevelt's bush league Machiavellism. They will look upon Stassen as one of the leading Democrats of the country, and not as a Republican, and will discount his performance at San Francisco on this basis. Whether they can succeed in preventing the 1948 Republican convention from being delivered to him by Mr. Roosevelt's Wall street cronies is another matter, but it is worth an effort to get the party back into the hands of Republicans.

OUR MONEY ON OUR TERMS.

The time is fast approaching when congress will have to say yes or no to the Bretton Woods proposals. Rep. Spence of Kentucky who was a delegate at the monetary conference has introduced a bill which would authorize our treasury in due time to put up 6 billion dollars as our share of the international currency stabilization fund and our subscription to the capital of the international bank. Because this is an administration measure it will, no doubt, receive prompt attention.

As everybody knows, or should know, the weight of expert opinion in this country is opposed to the Bretton Woods program in whole or in part. That is true of the great majority of the leading economists who have specialized in monetary problems and it is true, also, of the bankers whose adverse judgment on much of the scheme was embodied in recent resolutions of the American Bankers' association.

We don't know whether congress is going to approve the Spence bill. We hope not for reasons which have often been recited in these columns and need not be repeated. If, however, congress does decide to join either or both of the proposed agencies we can think of two conditions which should be attached.

For one thing, no country should be permitted to benefit from the creation of these funds which does not freely admit foreign correspondents and accord them the unqualified right to travel where they wish to travel, to interview whomever they wish to interview, and to write and send whatever they believe worthy of reporting. If American taxpayers are to finance currency stabilization and recovery abroad, our people are entitled to know what kind of folks are running the countries to be benefited and what they are doing with our money. Any nation which seeks to conceal its acts and policies behind any kind of censorship ought, therefore, to be barred from access to the cash box automatically and as a matter of course.

The other condition would forbid advances from either fund to nations which include forced labor among their policies. We are not thinking particularly of the proposals to require the Germans to supply the labor for rebuilding the areas they have devastated, for perhaps that may be justified, but rather of the system highly developed in Russia, by which 10,000,000 or more of her own people—men and women—have been condemned to slave labor, without a trial and under conditions of the utmost hardship. We are thinking, also, of the labor policies pursued in many of the colonies of the European powers. Americans are in no position to prevent these abuses by direct action but certainly no American believes that this country should become in any sense a partner in these brutalities.

In short, nations which wish our financial help must make no effort to conceal from us what they are doing with the money; and if they get our help for reconstruction, they can have no excuse for continuing to recruit slaves.

SCHOOL TAX RATES.

The committee on education of the Illinois state senate has recommended the passage of senate bill No. 60, of which Sen. Ray Paddock of Libertyville is the author. This measure would make it possible for residents of school districts to decide, by a referendum, if they want to spend more on elementary school education than is permitted by existing law.

The present ceiling on tax rates in common school districts outside of Chicago is $1.80 per $100 of assessed valuation. In only a few districts in the state has the rate been increased to the permitted maximum. In those instances where the rate is $1.80 it is impossible at present to raise any more money for the grade schools without a change in the property valuation. The alternative has no local support at all.

Thus in some of the districts with a $1.80 rate there is an emergency. School costs have risen with the cost of everything else. The price of coal is up, and so are the prices of all the other things used in the schools. It is impossible to hire new teachers at the pre-war starting salary levels. One district has been unable to deal fairly with its old teachers by giving them the salary advances for seniority to which they are entitled under an established plan.

What the Paddock bill would do is to permit the rate to rise to $2.25, with the provision that the increase, to be effective, must be approved by the voters at a special election. The districts where the $1.80 rate is now in effect are, for the most part, nonindustrial areas, with a high percentage of homes owned by the occupants. Thus the proposed act would let people decide for themselves whether they wish to spend more of their own money for grade schools, or let the schools deteriorate.

We think that if taxpayers want to pay for better schools than they have, the state should let them do so. Here is one measure the legislature ought to be able to act upon without delay.

MR. PEPYS THAWS OUT.

17th Feb.—Watched the breaking of winter's backbone with great pleasure, in spite of the swampy conditions. Chicago's glaciers retreated grimly in the slow thaw, and among their last victims was my contributor, C. O. R., who came down with a broken rib in my own precinct. Otto's car would not move out of an ice rut; so he got out to push it, and while striving manfully his feet slipped out from under him. So he impaled himself upon one of the horns of his bumper.

Attended the Tavern club's annual dinner for dues-payers only, at which everything was free—a pleasant custom, especially when prime roast beef is a gastronomic novelty. Intended to depart early after the business meeting, but stayed past midnight talking with old friends and enjoying the general brouhcha.

Did some armchair traveling with Dudley Watson, who took me to the new Mexican volcano that has excited all the geologists in the world, and to a so-called fountain of youth. Also went junketing with Burton Holmes, who took me to Utah—a remarkable region. Found Mr. Holmes in fine form, and suspect he has a secret fountain of youth about which he has never lectured.

Now to view the Art Institute's great exhibition of early American landscape painters, which ought to take my mind off war and all forms of modern foolishness.

DARTS FOR HEARTS.

Dan Cupid, practicing at darts,
Sets him up a row of hearts,
Shatters each with a careful aim,
Never tiring of his game.
Quite indifferent to the hurt,
He waits to see the red blood spurt
From the mortal wound, then cuts
A new notch in his bow. He struts
A little in his pride and then
Goes to withdraw his darts again.
But look, he gasps in pained surprise;
One of his cherished arrows lies
Rudely broken in the mud!
The heart is whole. Stone sheds no blood.

Linemaster: After holding her fer 7 yrs. in "status quo," which to you clucks who happen to live on tha dumb side means "at a stand-still" [in Greek or mebbe it's Polish], she finnally is gonna get a new fur coat. A radio pesteroo blows off his bazoo to tha affect that now you can purchase a smart Kittzlepippick creation with no money down an 2 yrs. to pay.

I tries to tell tha Mama we shood wait until we cood pay cash, thereby saving a cupple hunderd per-cent, but she tells me that by tha time I'm 3 score an 10 tha cash wood hafta be used fer my wooden coat. I tole her I positive wood'n go looking with her, so when we got to tha joint a smart cookie greets us with a phoney smile on his puss which to me spelled, "Aha! sucker No. 57."

First he asks if tha charming lady wood be interested in Mink an when tha Mama seys as how she wants to see those $159 Models like tha radio tells ya, he changes his map to one which looks like we insulted him. After trying on 20 or mebbe it was 40, tha Mama asks what about a skunk an he says they have only one in tha house. I was gonna tell him as how he was lucky it wasn't under tha house, but I thought what tha hell an skipped it.

A little later he asks if we wood be interested in a pony an I tole him I'd rather have a big glass; gosh did my face turn red, I thought he meant brandy. Tha next coat he brung out he claims is a 6 yr. kolinsky er somethin. He explains that they don't kill tha animal 'til he's six yrs. old.

I kiboshed this act on a/c I tole tha Mama it wood be second handed if tha animal had already wore it that long; then I got to figgering if ya pay $159 cause tha animal had to live 6 yrs., mebbe we shood settle for unborn lamb, which if my arithmetic aint screwey shood figure about 2 for a cent.

I just knew there was a ketch in tha whole darn deal cause we had to pay a luxury tax.

LINES FOR A NEW FRIEND.

I lived so long in chaos, dark and cold,
I had forgotten that the earth grew sweet,
And warm, and green above my black defeat,
Above my heart's own dungeon, gray with mold
I lived so long in desuetude alone
I had forgotten there were stars and birds,
And blossoms far more eloquent than words
As I recalled them: syllables of stone.
I lived so long with hate's cold fingers curled
About my wrists and at my throat that I
Forbade my frozen lips to ever cry
Against injustice of my desolate world.
Yet in that maelstrom of despair you found
My hand and lifted me to common ground.

There is no time limi As long as a woman remains the widow of a veteran [does not remarry], she may file a claim. It is to the widow's advantage, however, to file within a year because the pension then is payable from date of death, whereas, if the claim is filed after a year, it is payable only from date of application.

W. C. F. asks: "Does a court-martial spoil a soldier's chance for a good conduct medal?"

Not necessarily. If the sentence is not longer than six months, a conviction does not preclude the award provided the enlisted man earns the award by giving the required service after serving the sentence.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

The following article was prepared in advance by Dr. Irving S. Cutter before the illness which resulted in his death Feb. 2.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DIETARY INDISCRETIONS AND GASTRITIS.

BAD eating habits may be responsible for conditions which imitate disease. For example, if one bolts a meal or fills the gastric pouch with an overplus of food, the mucous lining may take on a dry, red, dusky appearance—exactly what we encounter in the presence of chronic irritation. Allow indiscretions in diet to continue and shrinking [atrophy] of the membrane will ensue. Meanwhile, the sufferer may be filled with complaints, with a sizable catalog of real symptoms.

Other causes may be considered—namely, the employment of too much alcohol, tobacco, and peppery seasoning. Finally, we must emphasize the possibility of infection, particularly along the respiratory tract, which can lead to the swallowing of bacteria laden pus. Thus we think of growing nests of germs about the teeth, the tonsils, or within the sinuses.

Despite all this, we must admit that the "breadbasket" is long suffering, willing, and capable of accepting neglect, abuse, and ill treatment. But there comes a time—sooner in some, later in others—when rebellion will break out. Chief among the manifestations is pain which may be mild at times but severe, boring, and cutting at intervals.

Fortunately, we have a relatively simple way of ascertaining the true state of affairs. The electric lighted gastroscope can be passed down the esophagus into the pouch, where most of the "interior" can be viewed and studied. If there are erosions or ulcerations, they can be seen. Furthermore, changes in the blood vessels, with destruction of the surface cells, will be evident.

Even without this interesting and valuable instrument, we can adopt a careful, hygienic rôle and make certain, first of all, that the diet is well balanced and that it contains all the essential edibles, vitamins, and minerals. We can then reëstablish a normal, regular régime so that when foodstuffs enter the stomach they will be properly "conditioned."

A common but frequently overlooked source of trouble is too little hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice. A test meal will supply the needed information and the acid may then be administered as a matter of routine, if it is lacking. In addition, vitamin B may be helpful as is occasionally the old fashioned gastric digestant, pepsin. If anemia has developed, liver extract or ventriculin may be indicated.

But we must not blame the stomach for other serious maladies which affect the bowel reflexly. Certain portions of the intestine may be affected by disorders of the liver, disturbed circulation, or various types of infection.

Any one of us who has been ill in bed for more than a day or two will realize why the desire for food may disappear. When the temperature is elevated, the secretions of the alimentary canal are thrown out of gear so that nutrition drops to a low level. In such circumstances, the more edibles we take, the worse we feel. Nature comes to the rescue by destroying appetite.

NAIL CUTTING.

Mrs. R. writes: My 9 year old boy still cries when I cut his finger nails. He says they hurt for a while thereafter. Is he just fussy or could something be wrong?

REPLY.

If you clip carefully, and file down the rough edges, he probably will not complain. Perhaps he should do the job himself. I assume there is no infection or irritation present.

LOWER BACK.

P. Y. writes: Where are the sacroiliac joints?

REPLY.

These structures are formed by the union of the outer borders of the sacrum [the keystone shaped bone at the base of the spine] and the flaring bones of the pelvis. Here is where the lines of force from the upper and lower portions of the body meet whenever we sit, stand, or move.

VITAMIN SHORTAGE.

H. A. writes: What symptoms follow a riboflavin deficiency?

REPLY.

If an adequate amount of this fraction of vitamin B is not included in the diet, the individual may exhibit cracks at the corners of the mouth, soreness of the tongue, roughened skin, and various eye disturbances.

The Voice Travels.

Word from a girl in England deals with the most fun she has had so far in the war. This is attending a Sinatra film because all the G. I.'s in the theater scream and pretend to swoon. "You can't hear a thing," she writes, "and no one cares."

This Changing World.

A lady in Champaign reports a recent visit to a dry goods store to buy some cotton material. While she stood hopefully at the counter, a woman and a little boy came up and asked for some muslin. "For pillow slips for his bed," the woman explained, indicating the child. The clerk merely shook her head and pointed at a sign which stated: "Muslin sold for dairy and agricultural use only." Whereupon the woman, highly incensed, turned on the boy and said, furiously, "You oughta been a cow!"

Interpretation.

The Book League of America placed an advertisment with this respected newspaper's Sunday book section, As is common in such matters, a proof of the advertisment was sent back to the Book League for approval. Back came this wire: "Aunt Sissy strange woman drowns himself in rum. Otherwise ok." Considerable research was necessary to disclose that in the ad a resumé of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" had Sissy spelled "Cissie" and a resumé of "The Strange Woman" had omitted the fact that a male character drowned himself in rum.

Discovery.

Hold your hats, ladies and gentlemen. You're going for a ride. A dispatch from a lady in Yellow Lake, Wis., imparts dire news. This lady and her husband operate the local golf course and converse with golfers from all sections of the country. As soon as a stranger appears, the husband buttonholes him and begins, "Say, mister, have you ever heard of any one that ever knew of any one that ever knew of any one—" At this stage the stranger always interrupts with a mocking laugh. "Ha!" he says, that being the appropriate ejaculation of strangers in Wisconsin and elsewhere. "No, I haven't, and if you think—" The husband jeers right back. "No, and neither has any one else!" The husband, forgetful of time and the eagerness of that little white ball to be swept over rolling green turf into a little dirt hole, then begins to talk. He talks and talks until the stranger has time for only nine hole instead of 18. This, the lady says, has gone on without change or variation for several years. Then, without warning, the lady's sister, a resident of Superior, Wis., came to visit them. The husband started on her. "Why, yes," she returned proudly, "I was questioned by a lady who supposedly was an agent for Dr. Gallup." For a week the lady and her husband were in a daze. Their world slipped from beneath them. No longer could they declare they had never heard of any one who had ever heard of any one who had been polled by Dr. Gallup. By the time they recoverd, the sister was gone, and they had forgotten to ask her what question she was asked.

Nothing New Under the Sun.

W. H. East of Evanston leaped up from his breakfast eggs the other day when he read an Associated Press report out of Cornell, N. Y. A professor of poultry husbandry at the New York state college of agriculture had announced a new method of preserving eggs: dip in boiling water five seconds, air cool, serve as table eggs a year later if you wish. Mr. East raced over to the Bible which has belonged to his family since 1841. In it was a clipping from a Joliet paper in 1854. The headline on the clipping said "Method of preserving eggs." The article told of a mariner who made annual trips to Africa. He always took eggs. His method: Place fresh eggs in colander, pour boiling water over them. Keeping time: a year.

WHY BUTTER IS SCARCE.

Newark, O., Feb. 8.—Never before in the 50 years the writer has been more or less active in the production of butter or butterfat have the producers of these products been so unjustly treated. More than two years ago, when the law of supply and demand had forced the local price up to 60 cents, John L. Lewis complained and Mr. Roosevelt ordered a rollback in the price and finally fixed the ceiling around 50 cents.

Farmers began selling their cows, and when the situation became alarming Mr. Roosevelt ordered a payment of several cents a pound from the federal treasury to producers. The red tape connected with the sale of farm made butter drove most of that off the market. The producer is held to the ceiling price, and then must wait three months before he can collect the so-called subsidy. We wonder what war workers would say if they had to wait three months for one-fifth of their pay?

But that is not all. It now takes 24 red points for butter, while substitutes made from cottonseed oil take but three. It is an eight to one shot against the dairy farmer. That may be good politics, since the surplus butter is produced in the central west, while the cotton grows in the solid south.

Our township not long ago had the largest cow population in our county, the second largest dairy county in the state. Today the cows are gone from a lot of the farms well adapted to butter production. It simply proves what Washington can do to deprive consumers of choice foods. DAIRYMAN.

HOLLYWOOD SALUTES THE HEROES.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—The Washington thinkers in one of their inspired moments figured that the way to celebrate the fall of Manila was a special broadcast by a string of movie stars. Are the burocrats so afraid of their jobs and so much in love with popularity that they fear to think that America also has writers, university presidents, ministers, lawyers, and others high in thought who might be equal to an occasion as historic as the fall of Manila is to us?

But the office of war information, in keeping with New Deal love of superficial popularity, selects a special movie broadcast to Manila as a climax to months and years of sweat and toil by American soldiers and workers. This is indeed cheap. S. N.

DIMMING OUT THE CROSS.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—To millions of people thruout the world during these difficult times their only refuge is in the word of God or in God's house. When the brown-out extinguished the flood lights lighting the steeple and cross of the Chicago Temple First Methodist church in the loop, we experienced a deep sense of personal loss. It seems to me that in applying these instructions we should never detract from the beacon of faith in God symbolized by the cross upon a church and that an exception could very well be made in such cases, thereby informing the world that our faith in God remains steadfast and unshaken. C. E. DORRINGTON.

WEBER AND ROOSEVELT.

Marshall, Ill., Feb. 14.—In fairness to Pvt. Weber, let us not forget the case of John Roosevelt. According to his mother, the garrulous Eleanor, John also had scruples against killing people. A place for him was found in the navy supply corps. MRS. AMERICA.

SEAMEN IN SHIPYARDS.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 12.—At Norfolk navy yard sailors, many of whom have just returned from combat areas, are being put to work on new construction in the yard. Imagine being out for two or three years and then being assigned to a ship that isn't completed. We're supposed to study the ship instead of working six days a week, without extra compensation, of course.

Naval regulations do not authorize this use of enlisted personnel. An all-time low has been reached when the navy employs thousands of civilian workers in this very yard for three or four times the pay an average navy man receives. Not only must he go out and fight the war at sea, but he must come home and build the ships as well. Somebody evidently is attempting to supply cheap labor to virtually any one who asks for it.

FOUR BOTS FROM CHICAGO.

"BATTLE STATIONS."

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Comdr. Chinnick's appeal to naval personnel in Washington: "Pass the word down the line—to all naval personnel—to stand by at your battle stations" would be humorous were it not so pathetic.

Private industry has a simple preventative for the difficulty which might well be used by the navy. The doors to cafeterias, etc., are kept locked except at certain specified hours. It works better than an appeal to patriotism, too.

Another heading on the same page of THE TRIBUNE reads: "11 Million Bear Arms; 1 Million Fight for U. S."; and still the navy has coffee drinking, too long lunch hours, and tardiness trouble.

It has long been my observation that, in offices where every one has plenty to do, people get down on time, take little time out for coffee, etc., and get back promptly from lunch. Maybe the navy could aid the current man power shortage by organizing more work for fewer personnel. HENRY WILLIAMS.

TAXES UP, EFFICIENCY DOWN.

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 14.—Now that employers are ordered to look over their employes and discharge 10 per cent, they are given an excellent reason for pruning out all their shiftless and worthless workers who, of course, will promptly be placed on the federal pay roll in war industries. Up go the taxes and down goes the war work efficiency. ALBERT KLINGER.

SINATRA'S BERTHS.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—I would like to know how this Sinatra guy had three reservations on the Chief to play the old shell game of hide and seek in when to all the rest of us reservations on the Chief are sold out a month in advance. H. P. GANSER.

TRACING STRAY HUSBAND.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—My husband and I have been separated five years, not by law but just by leaving each other. 1. How can I find out if he ever got a divorce? I have tried to find him but no one seems to know where he lives. T. F.

It would be necessary to inquire at the offices of the clerks of the courts of divorce jurisdiction where he has resided. If you cannot trace him, this amounts to saying that you cannot get the information and hence it would be advisable for you, yourself, to obtain the divorce. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRUDE CREATES 6TH VACANCY IN JUDICIAL SLATE

G. O. P. Expects to Name 3 for June 4 Election.

Announcement by Judge Daniel P. Trude of the Circuit court yesterday that he will not be a candidate for reëlection raised to six the number of vacancies on the Circuit and Superior court benches to be filled under coalition plans proposed for the June 4 election.

Judge Daniel P. Trude.

Judge Trude, who is 67 years old, said he sent letters of his intentions to Gov. Green, Mayor Kelly, and the Democratic and Republican county central committees. He will devote his time to law practice and real estate.

On Bench 27 Years.

He is completing 27 years as a judge, 11 on the Municipal bench and 16 as a Circuit judge. He has been a delegate to four Republican national conventions.

With Judge Trude out of the race there will be 10 Democratic and seven Republican incumbents seeking reëlection on the Circuit bench. Under coalition Republican leaders expect to fill three of the six vacancies in Circuit and Superior courts. The two other Circuit vacancies were caused by the death of G. Fred Rush and the appointment of Judge Walter J. La Buy to the federal bench. Superior court vacancies were caused by the deaths of Judges William H. McSurely and Oscar F. Nelson, Republicans, and James F. Fardy, a Democrat.

Others Older Than Trude.

Judge Trude's announced retirement raised speculation that other members of the Circuit and Superior bench might follow his example. Some are considerably older than Judge Trude.

Among Republicans Elmer Schnackenberg, former speaker of the Illinois house, and Leonard C. Reid, a cousin of Gov. Dewey, are rated as nearly certain of places on the coalition ticket. Most frequently mentioned for the third place are L. A. Wescott of Oak Park, Edwin A. Robson of Wilmette, and Charles O. Rundall of Evanston.

For the three Democratic vacancies John M. Tuohy, brother of State's Atty. Tuohy, and Charles E. Byrne, son-in-law of Richard Nash, are slated, with the third place reported to have been offered to former State's Atty. Courtney.

KUM BUM PASSES DEFENSE BUCK TO WOMEN AIDS

Spectators who crowded the courtroom of Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday hoping to get a glimpse of Hugh Greer Carruthers on the witness stand, were disappointed when the defense rested its case without calling the bearded Kum Bum, founder of the Neological Foundation, to testify in his own behalf.

The two co-defendants in the mail fraud trial, Miss Mary Morel, 42, and Miss Evelyn Kroell, 39, both testified. The three were charged by the government with obtaining $289,000 from scores of gullible "contributors" thru misrepresentation. The indictment included 26 counts charging use of the mails to defraud and nine counts charging violation of the securities and exchange act.

Each of the women defendants denied every count while under direct examination as defense Attorneys Walter Bachrach and Edward J. Hess read from the indictment.

Judge Sullivan accepted a motion for acquittal of the two women, but it will be held under advisement until after the jury delivers a verdict.

Each side was granted two hours for argument and the case is expected to go to the jury late Monday.

10° IS FORECAST IN COLD WAVE EXPECTED TODAY

A mass of cold air moving southeast from Minnesota and Canada is expected to reach Chicago today and send temperatures down to 10 degrees above zero tonight, the weather bureau reported yesterday. Today's highest recording probably will be 25 degrees, with temperatures possibly falling to 10 above zero tonight or tomorrow morning.

W. C. Blaesing, chief horticulturist of the Chicago Park district, said yesterday that the approaching period of cold weather may damage early flowering bulbs such as crocus, tulip, scilla, and narcissus.

Gardeners in the western suburbs report that some of these plantings, especially those on the south sides of houses, pushed thru the ground during the warm days the early part of this week. Blaesing recommends a two inch covering of straw, leaves, or peat moss to protect such plantings.

TAXPAYERS OPEN DRIVE FOR 1 CENT SALES LEVY CUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 16.—Opening a campaign to cut the state sales tax from 2 cents to 1 cent, the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois today contended the best way to build up public pressure for federal economy is to achieve economy at local and state levels.

"We must start close to home in making the people economy minded," said Thomas E. Fiske, executive secretary of the nonpartisan federation which is comprised of prominent Illinois citizens.

In a lengthy report the federation proposes a method of making the tax cut which it is contended would leave a $110,726,000 general fund surplus at the end of the next biennium June 30, 1947.

PRISONERS KEPT BEYOND TERMS, JUDGES CHARGE

Conference Seeks to Revise Sentences.

Solution of a situation in which numerous convicts in Illinois prisons are being held by the parole board beyond the terms intended by the judges who sentenced them was sought by Circuit court judges of the state at their midwinter conference in Hotel Sherman yesterday.

Prisoners affected are among those sentenced when the 1941 parole act was effective. It was held unconstitutional on the ground that it gave the parole board power to override court sentences, but, the judges asserted, the board has acted in some cases to keep men in prison by "setting" maximums of its own.

Seek to Regain Jurisdiction.

The judges agreed some legal means should be established to regain jurisdiction of these cases and to revise sentences in accordance with the 1943 minimum term act, which has been held constitutional. Judge Philip J. Finnegan, president of the association, said each judge would make recommendations for legislation in his annual report to the Supreme court.

Judge A. J. Scheineman of Sterling, secretary of the association, who initiated the discussion, said any prisoner may win revision of sentence by going to the Supreme court if he has the money. What is needed, he said, is procedure to return to court for resentencing all prisoners serving under the voided law. He said he had been told there is much unrest in the prisons because convicts without money for court costs feel they have no recourse.

Judge Roscoe South of Watseka said one prisoner had come before him on a "home made" writ he had contrived to get to the Supreme court.

Severe Treatment Cited.

"He had been sentenced to not less than one year and not more than two under the 1941 act, but the parole board had 'set' him at five years," said Judge South. "I hadn't heard 'set' used in that sense before. It seems to be a term used in prison. He already had served three years."

Judge Finnegan said the parole board was not under criticism on the ground of insincerity, but that the judges thought the board was too much inclined to treat each case severely. He said the judges regarded it as unjust to compel prisoners to serve terms imposed under a voided law when their sentences might be reduced under present statute.

The judges also arranged legislative contacts to promote the bill introduced in the state senate this week to raise their salaries $2,000. Their campaign will be aimed to pass the bill as an emergency measure so that judges elected June 4 may benefit from it.

MRS. OLIVER THROWS HER WEIGHT AROUND, AND IT'S 250 POUNDS

Seven policemen and the aid of numerous bystanders were needed to get Mrs. Ollie Oliver, 43, of 2043 Le Moyne st., who weighs 250 pounds, into a patrol wagon yesterday after she had a fight with a cab driver at Milwaukee and Damen avs.

Mrs. Ollie Oliver.

In Women's court later, Mrs. Oliver stood unruffled before Judge Joseph M. Braude on a charge of disorderly conduct. Evidence against her consisted of: [1] a banged head of a bystander; [2] the beaten cab driver; [3] the scratched throat of another bystander, and [4] the torn clothes of two policemen.

Mrs. Oliver denied the one woman riot charges and asserted the cab driver, Sam Garafolo, 145 pounds, threatened her. Judge Braude continued the hearing until Feb. 28.

FOOD OUTLOOK IN '45: LESS OF IT, POORER QUALITY

Cuts in Sugar, Fats Reduce Calories.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16 (AP).—The food civilians get this year is due to be less nourishing than usual.

This became apparent today in the translatior of the quantities of food expected to be available for civilians into terms of nutritive value.

The number of calories appears to be down about 4 per cent because supplies of sugar and of fats and fatty meats are expected to be considerably less than in 1944.

Two of the B vitamins—thiamine and niacin—may also be down as much as 5 per cent, largely on account of an expected 20 per cent decrease in pork. Calcium and another B vitamin—riboflavin—are expected to be about the same as last year.

The war food administration said that if war gardens are as productive as last year, supplies of vitamins A and C may not fall very short of 1944.

During 1945, supplies of all meats, chicken, butter, lard, potatoes, sweet potatoes, dry beans, some fresh vegetables, deciduous fruits, and sugar probably will be reduced from last year's level, the agency said.

Some increase in evaporated milk, milk by-products, margarine, and egg supplies also appears probable.

The per capita supply of meats may fall 15 to 20 pounds below last year's 147 pound average, while butter is expected to drop to 10.5 pounds compared with 11.8 in 1944 and 16.7 in 1935-'39. Lard supplies may decline from 14.3 pounds in 1944 to 12.5 pounds.

The WFA said this year's sugar supplies will be smaller—civilians getting only 78 pounds compared with 88 last year.

MORE WARWORKERS OR MORE WAR?

"We must have continued, energetic and unlimited support at home!"

—ADMIRAL NIMITZ

GET A WAR JOB! KEEP IT!

A trick phrase is working for the Axis. The phrase: "Victory is only a matter of time."

ONLY? A strange word to apply to time at war! For time is costing American lives. Every hour takes its toll of flesh and blood . . . time and lives that can be saved by increased production at home.

Today, you, the workers of this region, have your greatest opportunity to shorten the war. With more of you producing planes, shells, tanks, ships, big guns, heavy duty trucks and tires, and other critical items, victory can be achieved far sooner.

With more shells and tanks, our armies can blast enemy strongholds which now delay advances for weeks. With more landing craft we can put more troops ashore at a time, greatly shortening enemy resistance. And so it goes! The more you supply, the fewer of our men will die.

Right now, victories are being postponed for lack of other supplies you could help produce. Workers already in war plants are trying heroically to turn out this material, but they need your help. So do the brave men in our far-flung fleets, and the lads offering their lives for you in festering jungle swamps and arctic wastelands.

Get a War Job. Keep It. Protect the men who are protecting you.

Victory Is "Homemade"!

America's Navy is sweeping the seas!

But, while United States battleships slip through Japanese home waters, the Nip fleet in Pacific harbors is building up its strength for the day of the BIG SHOW-DOWN.

When that day comes, our fleet must be strong. It will be strong. Chicago warworkers are helping to make this certain. Their work is building the ships and planes our Navy needs.

For instance, among Chicago's war products Electro-Motive Division diesel engines propel Navy landing craft; Stewart-Warner and Western Electric provide its radio-radar detection apparatus; and, Douglas and Dodge provide the planes and the motors that support it from the air.

WAR MANPOWER EMERGENCY COMMITTEE

BROAD PROGRAM SET UP FOR WEEK OF BROTHERHOOD

Ministers Will Exchange Pulpits with Rabbis.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The 14th annual Brotherhood week sponsored by the national conference of Christians and Jews and the Chicago round table of that conference will open tomorrow. At least 16 Protestant ministers and an equal number of Jewish rabbis will exchange pulpits during the week.

Dr. James M. Yard, executive director of the round table, stated that the national observance, set for the week of the anniversary of George Washington's birthday because of his plea, "to bigotry no sanction," will attempt to immunize the public against bigotry and intolerance which might arise in postwar hate movements. The slogan for the week is: "In Peace as in War—Teamwork."

Five Awards Announced.

Dr. Yard said that in addition to the exchange of pulpits between church and synagog, 76 other churches have announced plans for the observance in other ways, including occasional sermons and programs in youth and women's groups. A new feature this year will be five Brotherhood week awards of merit to men, women, and programs in radio broadcasting that have made outstanding contributions to human relations and to the concept of collaboration among Americans of all faiths. Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago will be one of the judges in the selection of winners.

Among notable exchanges of pulpits tomorrow will be the appearance of Rabbi Louis L. Mann of Chicago Sinai congregation in the pulpit of Central church, Studebaker theater, and Dr. Harold W. Ruopp of Central church before Sinai congregation in K. A. M. temple, Drexel blvd. and 50th st.

Ministers in Synagogs Friday.

Some of the exchanges will call for rabbis to appear tomorrow or next Sunday in the church pulpits and the ministers to be in the synagogs on Friday, either Feb. 23 or March 2. Other notable exchanges include Rabbi George Fox of South Shore temple and the Rev. Wilbur Childress of South Shore Community Methodist church; Rabbi Maurice Lazowick, Logan Square temple, and the Rev. Maurice McCrackin, Waldensian Presbyterian church; Rabbi Felix A. Levy, Emanuel congregation, and the Rev. Dr. J. L. Horace, Monumental Baptist church, and Rabbi Simon, Congregation Rodfei Zedek, and the Rev. D. D. Turpeau, Indiana avenue Methodist church.

Rabbi Benjamin Birnbaum of Ner Tamid congregation and president of the Chicago Rabbinical association, will speak tomorrow night at Bethel African Methodist Episcopal church, 4448 S. Michigan blvd.

In addition to church and synagog observance, more than 100 other programs have been set up. Trios of Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish representatives will appear before civic groups, clubs, schools, and youth organizations.

Religious News Notes

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch has issued his annual appeal for missions' alms, stating that "never perhaps in modern times were missions so much a responsibility of the church" because other countries, formerly generous supporters, are today themselves the objects of charity. "Only in the America's do the faithful have alms for missions," he said. The appeal will be read in all churches of the archdiocese on the second Sunday in Lent. . . . The Rt. Rev. Msgr. James J. Horsburgh, commenting on the archbishop's appeal, said that a Catholic must be mission-minded, just because he is a Catholic, and that anything short of this is "a stunted half-life. Charity does, indeed, begin at home, but the Catholic's home is the church." . . . The Rev. Dr. J. W. Behnken, president of the Lutheran church, Missouri synod, has issued a letter to all pastors calling on them to observe tomorrow as a "Day of Prayer and a Call to Repentance," preparatory to a similar day to be observed March 11 in the Chicago Stadium. On that Sunday afternoon the music will be provided by the choir of Valparaiso university, a mixed choir of 1,000 voices, and an auxiliary children's choir of 1,200. The liturgy for this service has been assembled by the Rev. Adalbert R. Kretzmann, pastor of the Church of St. Luke, Belmont and Greenview avs.

Bishop J. Ralph Magee of the Methodist church, Chicago area, will address the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall tomorrow night. His topic will be "A New Earth." . . . Authorized by the Cantors and Ministers' association of Chicago, a seminary for cantors has been organized at Glickman College of Fine Arts, 228 S. Wabash av. Todros Greenberg, president, says this is the first cantor seminary to be established in the United States. . . . President Ralph C. Hutchison of Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa., will preach tomorrow morning in Rockefeller Memorial chapel, University of Chicago. . . . The Easter institute of the Chicago Graded Union of Sunday School Teachers will be held Thursday night at 32 W. Randolph st. Florence Towne of Erie neighborhood house will be the chief speaker. . . . Adjutant William Blomgren, Detroit, Mich., will be guest speaker Wednesday night at the Salvation Army's temple corps, 1512 Madison st. . . . Marcus F. Otterbein will be ordained at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow by the Rev. Dr. Armin G. Weng, president of the Illinois synod of the United Lutheran church, in North Austin Lutheran church, Mason av. and Le Moyne st. The Rev. Dr. F. W. Otterbein, pastor, will preach the ordination sermon for the first member of his congregation to be born, baptized, confirmed, and now to be ordained, within the confines of the parish. He is Dr. Otterbein's son. . . . The men's auxiliary of the Evangelical and Reformed churches in the metropolitan area will meet at 3 p. m. tomorrow in Epiphany church, 3734 N. Damen av., the Rev. Harry W. Brueckner, pastor. The Rev. Harry F. Baumgaertel Jr., Eden church, will be the speaker. William J. Schug Sr. will preside.

Limited to 50 delegates, a statewide Methodist student conference representing that church's students in colleges and universities, convened yesterday in St. Paul's church, Ashland av. and Harrison st., for the week-end. The Rev. Joe Brown Love of the University of Illinois Wesley Foundation is presiding, Dr. Lynn J. Radcliff of Oak Park was yesterday's keynote speaker, and Harold Bremer of Nashville, Tenn., is representing the National Council of Methodist Youth Fellowship. Bishop Magee speaks this afternoon. . . . Mar Shimun XXIII., patriarch of the Church of the East [Assyrian], 6346 Sheridan rd., has received a message of thanks from the new Russian Orthodox patriarch, Sergei, for his congratulatory salutation. . . . Many members of the Assyrian church reside in Russia, to which land, Patriarch Mar Shimun said, the Assyrian church was first to send missionaries. He added that the Assyrian church in Russia was granted tolerance by the soviets thruout the bolshevik revolution. . . . Twenty-five thousand Methodist pastors and lay leaders have been sent instructions by that church's peace commission, the Rev. Charles F. Boss, 740 Rush st., secretary, on how to register opposition on the post-war military conscription proposal before congress. . . . The Chicago committee on the All-India Christian Medical college, Vellore, India, supported by 40 communions, will hold a dinner in the Hotel Sherman Monday night. Dr. Edward H. Hume, noted missionary physician, formerly in China, and Ida S. Scudder, M. D., founder of the Vellore Medical College for Women, will speak. The committee announced that persons not wishing to attend the dinner may come at 7:30 for the addresses.

Pearson Files Libel Suit Against Pegler

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Drew Pearson, Washington columnist and news broadcaster, sued Columnist Westbrook Pegler for $25,000 in a libel action filed today in New York County Supreme court. The Bell Syndicate, Inc., distributors of Pearson's "Washington Merry-Go-Round," also asked $25,000, alleging Pegler injured Pearson's "name, fame, and credit as a news reporter" in a syndicated column Jan. 30.

DR. H.L. SIPPY TOOK OWN LIFE, INQUEST FINDS

A verdict of suicide because of "despondency over family difficulties" was returned yesterday at an inquest into the death of D. Harold L. Sippy, 44, Chicago physician, who was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning Thursday night in a garage at his home, 1320 Westmoor trail, Winnetka.

Bertram W. Sippy Jr., Grand Rapids, Mich., brother of the dead man, told the inquest, conducted by Deputy Coroner Louis J. Nadherny, that he had known "there was friction" between Dr. Sippy and his wife, Camilla, and that "they weren't getting along." He was the only member of the family to attend the inquest.

The widowed Mrs. Sippy was expected by plane late last night from Tucson, Ariz., where Sippy testified, she went two or three weeks ago with the couple's children, Camilla, 10, and Carol, 4.

Lt. Harold C. Lewis of the Winnetka police told of finding a suicide note on the seat of the car beside the body. The note said, "This suicide is the result of too much psychoanalysis promoted and enforced by a cruel wife."

WOMAN'S DEATH HELD NATURAL; HUNT HER MONEY

A coroner's inquest found yesterday that natural causes resulted in the death Jan. 24 of Mrs. Alice Brand, 49, a widow and tavern owner, in her home at 2714 N. Sawyer av. The verdict was based on a negative chemical analysis of vital organs.

Meanwhile Jack T. Rubens, public administrator, said that approximately $6,215 cash and some jewelry have been recovered in a search for the widow's assets. Her tavern at 2556 Milwaukee av. was reported to have had an annual $75,000 business, and Rubens said 25 to 30 thousand dollars is unaccounted for.

Rubens said the cash and jewelry were turned over to him by Mrs. Teres Jurgenson, 38, of 5040 N. Central Park av., a sister-in-law. Mrs. Jurgenson admitted, Rubens said, taking the property from Mrs. Brand's safety deposit box after her death. She and her husband, Helmer, have been cited to appear Tuesday before Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. Rubens said they are accused of concealing assets. He added that a search for a will also has been futile.

CONTEMPT CASE FILED AGAINST TEN IN OIL FIRM

For the first time in the United States, officials of an oil company were brought under contempt proceedings yesterday when Marion W. Isbell, area OPA director, asked Judge William J. Campbell in federal District court to hold two officers and eight employes of the Martin Oil company in criminal contempt.

Isbell charged that despite a permanent injunction issued last Nov. 3 every one of the company's six Chicago stations has sold gasoline without coupons at prices of 35 to 50 cents a gallon, when the ceiling price was 17.6 cents.

He also filed proceedings against the six stations with Kenneth Lemmer, regional hearing commissioner, asking suspension of all for the duration of rationing. Defendants named in both actions included Thomas W. Martin, president, and Harold T. Martin, secretary of the firm, whose Chicago office is at 1625 S. Western av. Its main office is at Carbondale, Ill.

41 HIGH SCHOOLS TOP OLD RECORD IN PAPER DRIVE

More than 110,000 pupils in 41 Chicago high schools collected an estimated 1,750,000 pounds of waste paper yesterday in a one day drive, John R. Robinson of the waste paper salvage committee said last night. The estimated figure was the largest ever recorded, and easily topped that of the last drive: 1,490,000 pounds.

At Kelly High school, 4136 S. California av., scrap paper was taken to the school in wagons, trucks, and even baby buggies. Pupils there attempted to repeat for honors won in a previous campaign.

Meanwhile, elementary schools completed a five week drive. Altho the results had not been tabulated last night, Robinson said the total would reach 5 million pounds. The figure, he added, was 500,000 pounds less than the last drive, but attributed the slump to winter weather. A new drive will begin Monday and end March 23.

Baron Uchiyama, Retired Japanese General, Dies

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Baron Kojiro Uchiyama, 85 year old retired Japanese general, died in Japan Wednesday, the Domei news agency reported today in a broadcast recorded by the federal communications commission. Uchiyama was chief of staff of the Japanese army's 1st division in the Sino-Japanese war of 1894-'95, was military attache in France and Russia, and aide-de-camp to the late Emperor Yoshihito.

Ice Cream Executive Leaves $8,968,170 Estate

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Harry C. Horton, Horton Ice Cream company executive, left a net estate of $8,968,170, an appraisal indicated when it was filed today. Horton died in January, 1941. His widow is the principal beneficiary.

TRIPLETS ARE 4 TODAY AND THEY WILL HAVE PARTY

The Manzella triplets, Jean, Joan, and Judith, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Mario Manzella, 1534 Melrose st., are 4 years old today. Their mother said yesterday they wouldn't have to go out of their own immediate family to get enough guests for their party—there are four older children by her previous marriage and a baby brother, Mario Jr., a year old. However, neighborhood children are going to share the triplets' cake, and their cousins, including one set of twins, will be over. The little blue-eyed girls are gradually becoming dark haired, their mother said, as strands of brown replace the blonde. The triplets spoil their baby brother, according to Mrs. Manzella.

Woman's Committee to Mark 10 Years of Symphony Work

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHEN the woman's committee of the Chicago Symphony orchestra passed its 10th birthday anniversary last year, its members were too busy selling subscription tickets and helping to sign up sustained members for the orchestra to take time out for a celebration. To observe the completion of 10 years of work and also to start its spring activity, the committee will meet for luncheon at 12:30 p. m. March 7 in the Casino club.

Mrs. Ulysses S. Schwartz and Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood are making plans for the luncheon, at which Edward L. Ryerson, president of the Orchestral association; Désiré Defauw, musical director and conductor of the orchestra; Hans Lange, conductor, and George A. Kuyper will be guests. The luncheon will mark the first appearance before the woman's committee of Mr. Kuyper, who recently became manager of the Chicago symphony.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham became chairman of the woman's committee when it was formed in 1934. Later she passed her duties along to the former Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, and when the latter was married to Henry S. Sturgis and moved to New York, Mrs. Telfer MacArthur took up the post. Mrs. MacArthur and the honorary chairmen, Mrs. Upham, Mrs. Clyde Carr, and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, along with other officers and heads of the Chicago and suburban committee, make up the executive committee of the woman's group, which numbers about 300 members. Mrs. Robert McDougal Jr. recently became publicity chairman, replacing Mrs. William H. Mitchell.

Wedding News.

Every member of the Donald R. McLennan family who is able to obtain transportation to New York will be there next Saturday for the marriage of Lt. Comdr. Donald R. McLennan Jr. of the naval reserve and the widow of his younger brother, Lt. Noyes McLennan of the marine air forces, who lost his life in the Solomons in September, 1942. The wedding will be a quiet one, and Comdr. McLennan and his bride will live in Washington, D. C., where he is stationed after serving in the Pacific.

The bride-to-be, the former Margaretta Purves, is the daughter of George T. Purves of Hewlett, N. Y. Mrs. McLennan Sr. and one of her daughters, Mrs. Woodbury S. Ober, hope to be able to go to New York from Palm Beach, Fla., where Mrs. McLennan is spending the winter. Comdr. McLennan's other sisters are Mrs. Keith S. Brown and Mrs. John B. Morse of Lake Forest. The youngest son of Mrs. McLennan and the late Mr. McLennan, Ensign William L. McLennan, is serving in the Pacific.

Miss Mary Macalister and Pvt. Perry L. Smithers III. will be married this afternoon in the Wilmette Congregational church, with a reception following in the Michigan Shores club given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nye Macalister of Wilmette. Mrs. Raymond Underwood of Niles, Mich., will be her sister's matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Donald Clark, a former classmate of the bride at Duke university; Miss Harline Ward, and Miss Gertrude Weinstock. Pvt. John Nau will be best man, and among the ushers will be Ensign Richard Idler, at home on leave from the Caribbean, and the bride's brother, Lt. Richard Macalister, stationed in Boston. Pvt. Smithers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Smithers of Winnetka, will return to duty in Canada next month.

Today's Events.

Each guest at the Saddle and Cycle club's annual Valentine's party tonight will hear a personal valentine written by Thomas Underwood, Mrs. Wells Farnham, and Mrs. James Waller Rogers. The verses will be read over the microphone to the men by Mrs. Farnham, and Frederick L. Spencer will read those for the women.

The young persons who attend the Sophomore Assembly parties will gather tonight in the Winnetka Woman's club for a turnabout dance. Mr. and Mrs. Julien Collins and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wroe will be hosts and hostesses for the evening.

Here and There.

A special Dutch treat luncheon will be served today in the Green room of the Key club for the children of some of the members, who will have their own party with favors and valentines.

Edmund Stevens, foreign correspondent, will speak on "Russia Is No Riddle" at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at 12:45 p. m. today in the La Salle hotel.

The annual Commodore's party of the Chicago Yacht club will be held tonight in the club's downtown station.

Opera Fans Stand By.

Francis Robinson, until recently a naval lieutenant, and before that personal representative for Katharine Cornell, following the death of the gifted and beloved Ray Henderson, will be in town early next week as courier for the Metropolitan Opera, primed with repertory and prices for the Civic Opera house season opening April 30 with Lily Pons in "Lucia." Mr. Robinson was not out of service in time to accompany Miss Cornell on her five months' overseas tour for the American Theater Wing, the trip that fooled wiseacres who forgot that soldiers are people and predicted dire failure for the play about invalided Elizabeth Barrett and dashing Robert Browning. It was a triumph instead, and now that Miss Cornell is back home she may revive that same "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" for just plain civilians.

Katharine Cornell.

"Carmen," Name of Jones.

Whatever the Met decides to bring us, Billy Rose goes on record—on handsome powder blue stationery with "Ziegfeld Theater" stamped in tall white letters at the top—about "Carmen Jones," which he calls "a good show, but not quite as good as Minnie Moon who presides over our kitchen." Having plugged his Minnie as Ashton Stevens plugs his Nellie, which comes under the head of unfair practice in the keeping of cooks, Mr. Rose gives forth: "'Carmen Jones' will open at the Civic auditorium in Los Angeles on June 4 and play there three weeks. It will then play five weeks at the Curran theater in San Francisco. After that, Seattle, Portland, Vancouver, and perhaps a week in either Minneapolis or St. Paul. Around Labor day I hope to present it in Chicago for a run. Right now it looks as if it will go into the Erlanger theater."

"Oklahoma!" and "Carrousel."

Then how about the return of "Oklahoma!" once expected at the same time, same place? It might take another house, say even the Great Northern, which is likely to be back in the United Booking fold by then. Meanwhile, the Theater Guild has chosen Jan Clayton to appear opposite John Raitt in "Carrousel," just starting rehearsals. Miss Clayton is a singing redhead born near the white sands of New Mexico, lately on the M-G-M roster. "Carrousel," by the way, transports Liliom from Budapest to New England.

Notes.

Mike Todd says nothing to that rumor about his buying the Majestic, but it still would be nice if some one would. . . . Marion Anderson ends her season in New York April 29, then rests on her farm until November, except for one radio broadcast in August. . . . Jeanette MacDonald is so busy with concert and opera the Victor Herbert show is reported off. . . . Want to sell a piano? Abe Cohen of the Shubert theaters was flabbergasted when the piano firm renting two theater pianos demanded them back. The rental over all those years would have bought the pianos—if some one had just thought to buy them.

Rev. James Hussey Made Loyola's Acting President

The Rev. James T. Hussey, 40, dean of men at Loyola university and regent of the school of dentistry, was appointed acting president of the university yesterday to succeed the Rev. Joseph M. Egan, who has been granted a leave of absence because of impaired health. Father Egan was appointed president in September, 1942. Father Hussey, who attended school in Cleveland, O., was ordained in the Society of Jesus in 1937 and joined the Loyola faculty six years ago.

Her Marriage Will Take Place Next Month

Miss Roxa Emmons Lee, whose marriage to Edmund Wallace Peakes of Weston, Mass., will take place March 11 in St. James' Episcopal church. After the ceremony the bride's mother, Mrs. William George Lee, will give a small reception in her Astor st. home. Two days before the ceremony Mr. Peakes will receive the commission of ensign as an aeronautical engineer in the naval air forces at Cornell university. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Illinois Judges Redraft Code for Adoptions

Amendments to the child adoption law intended to simplify procedure and to protect identity of the mother and child were drawn up by county judges of Illinois yesterday in the Hotel Sherman. They also drafted suggestions for revision of the mental health law, including in it a special consideration for returned soldiers as requested by the United States veterans administration.

Principally, the judges desire a law giving them more discretion in adoption proceedings, said Judge William S. Ellis of Logan county, chairman of the legislative committee. He said they found themselves in controversy with the state department of public welfare, which wishes to authorize licensed home finding agencies to investigate adoption petitions.

"The downstate judges, especially, feel that they can direct investigation in shorter time and with more consideration because they are acquainted with the people in their communities," he said.

One proposal drafted is intended to eliminate "every intimation of illegitimacy." Whereas the present law designates an unwed mother as "mother," implying illegitimacy for lack of a father's name, the judges suggested that she be described as "surviving parent."

Judge Ellis pointed out that the Illinois Supreme court last month ruled against appeal in adoption proceedings. The judges agreed that an appeal provision should be added.

Judge Harlington Wood of Sangamon county, chairman of the committee to draft the mental health bill, said the committee had produced a "compromise between the 1943 act and the one it superseded." It retains the term "mental illness," but does not include "insanity."

For veterans with mental infirmities, the draft provides admission to state hospitals and treatment without stigma.

Three methods of admission to state hospitals are advocated. A person judging himself mentally ill may go directly to the hospital without first going into County court. Relatives may commit a patient by court proceedings, as at present. A means of "emergency" commitment is provided, thru which a person immediately dangerous may be taken into custody on the word of a physician and confined, not to exceed 30 days, without court hearing.

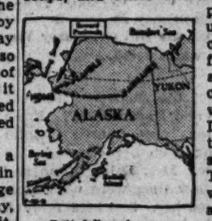
Evanston Girl Will Take Job in Remote Alaskan Outpost

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

If you were bound for a nine month sojourn in a remote Eskimo village near the Arctic circle, what would you take with you in an allowance of 55 pounds of baggage? That is the question Miss Janet Virginia Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Owen Lee of Evanston, has been asking herself since last Saturday, when she decided to go to the Seward peninsula in Alaska, to do vital photographic work with an exploration company which is engaged in government work.

Necessity answered the question: Warm boots, heavy outer clothing, woolen underwear, cold creams, soaps, and other toiletries [" she'll probably be using whale oil," her father says], and a special camera which Miss Lee will not trust to be shipped. The lamb's wool lined army air service boots which she purchased for protection on the flight across Alaska's icy wastes weigh three pounds apiece, and she will wear them as well as a lamb's wool lined coat and hood and double lined windbreaker ski pants when she takes off by plane at 8 a. m. tomorrow from the Chicago airport. She won't need these accessories on the first leg of her flight, to Seattle, Wash., but the heavy garments won't count against her luggage quota, which was raised an extra 30 pounds in these unusual circumstances.



Dotted line shows Miss Lee's route.

From Seattle Miss Lee will fly to Fairbanks and then to Nome, where she will be met by a plane belonging to the Arctic Circle Exploration company, in which she will fly the last miles across the peninsula to Candle, which is as far west as Honolulu. After reaching her new home, a frame shack covered with tar paper and buried 20 feet deep in snow, Miss Lee will travel only by dog sled or airplane and she will be able to communicate with Chicago, in emergencies, by the radio in a nearby army weather station. The message will be wirelessed to Nome and relayed to Fairbanks to be put on telegraph wires.

There are no doctors and no hospital on the peninsula, but in addition to her Eskimo neighbors Miss Lee will find about 25 white people in the tiny community. There won't be fresh vegetables, either, or many other foods and liquids considered indispensable here. Miss Lee is taking along chocolate bars, a good emergency provision in case the plane is forced down. She wanted to take books, but necessary technical books, weighty and sizable, probably will be her only reading matter.

Miss Lee's first acquisition on the peninsula will be a parka and hood, made by Eskimos out of the skins of small animals, with the fur on the inside, and a pair of boots made of reindeer hide, also with the fur on the inside. These boots, a necessity in temperatures of 60 degrees below zero, are stiff, excepting for the feet. Eskimo women chew the leather feet to soften them.

Miss Lee is not particularly apprehensive over the living conditions in store for her, called "rougher and tougher than one might expect" by James S. Robbins of Highland Park, president of the exploration company. She has had much outdoor experience, and "is as prepared as much as any girl of her environment can be for that life," according to her father.

An only child and now 'n her 20s, Miss Lee was graduated from Rockford college and from the New York Institute of Photography. She also took special work in the school of speech at Northwestern university. She tried to join the various women's branches of the services, but was turned down because of inability to pass eyesight tests. She also sought to go overseas with the American Red Cross.

Her duties in Candle will be to photograph and write about special equipment and are of a nature that will contribute to the prosecution of the war. The company is building airports and extracting a certain type of asbestos for the government, with its usual gold dredging operations in abeyance. Miss Lee's father is president of the Great Lakes Paper company which supplies waterproof containers for overseas shipment.

Mr. Robbins expects to leave for the peninsula in about two weeks, flying a new plane which will replace one that crashed. He once crashed in the summer time and was forced to walk 85 miles to shelter. He lost 22 pounds on the walk.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

How Is Your Handwriting?

Letters have come, at different times, from service men telling of the pleasure they've derived from character analysis of their handwriting done at a service men's center by Mary Frances Mears. The fun they've had hearing about their aptitudes, traits, and tastes gave the White Collar editor an idea. Why not ask Miss Mears to tell us something about the handwriting of two of three WCGs, an employer, and—Nosey Parker! So, here they are:

1. [A private secretary.]

Thank you so much for

A topflight business woman, with executive ability, absolute honesty, reliability, and loyalty. Essentially interested in her work, her highly trained mind comprehends all angles of her business and social world. She also is well adapted to meeting and dealing with people. Initiative, capacity for getting down to fundamentals without lost time over trifles, clear objectivity, and justice distinguish this fine character who made her place thru sheer merit and gracious personality.

2. [A bank employe.]

This is a single I am

This young woman would make an art of business or a business of art. She concentrates on her work, has an eye for detail, and a keen sense of humor. Her heaven reaching upper loops indicate high altruism. An independent mind, intuition, fine mentality, and a deep love for the beautiful, with appreciation and good taste combined in her nature show her to be a delightful person.

3. [A woman executive.]

Here's another "feminine finish"

Mental brilliance, outstanding ability with a highly matured intellect. Her high-flying "t" bars show imagination, vision, and ambition. She has a love of the fine things of life and cultural enjoyment—note the Greek "e." A quick thinker, she decides and acts without delay. Sound business judgment, excellent preparation, and unswerving integrity are the highlights in this capable handwriting.

4. [An employer.]

Here are favorably busy days for me.

The complete clarity and objectivity of this writing leave no doubt as to his being a successful business man with responsibilities which need have no fear of loss. His disciplined, matured mind has gone a long way. He deals effectively with people and projects. Literary ability shows in his stylized letters. He prefers reasons to hunches; his judicial mind gets down to cases, but he always has time for friends, even a hobby. Breadth of outlook, tolerance, and energy—a wholesome combination!

5. [Nosey Parker.]

Florence Nightingale lives the

This man understands the gals—he seems to understand most everybody! A friendly person who laughs easily, who likes people. He is adaptable enough, but the firmness in his tenacious backhanded "t" crossings shows him not easily influenced. He has excellent mentality, vital health and personality, is not extravagant, but is careful of many things, can keep a confidence and a friend. Basically his is a critical mind [note the pointed letter tops] but the rounded bases of the letters show him to be kind and helpful.

Spring Gloves Are Attractive and Low Priced

—BY REA SEEGER.

You can put on fresh new spring gloves right now and experience the thrill of color and tailored workmanship for a very small sum of money. The newest fabric gloves are here, lush accents for dark or neutral toned first spring suits, and they can be kept and worn with summer clothes if you give them but average care in laundering. The fabric is smooth, firm, and pre-shrunk, everything that assures long wear thru this season and the next.

Colors are delectable—bon-bon tints of yellow, lime, frail blue, and flush pink, with beige, white, and black also available to make shopping more interesting. Three lengths are shown, the shorties that end abruptly at the wrists [ideal for tailored suits and jackets]; the medium length, to pull over a coat sleeve and to serve as a contrast cuff, and the long gloves that wrinkle luxuriously well above the wrists. Even the long numbers are yours for a sum under $5 and the shorter versions can be had for less. They're grand buys, worth every penny of the price mark.

Most of the collections include new fabrics tailored and fashioned just like leather gloves; that is, the finger seams are flat. This makes for slender finger silhouette and a certain neatness that such sleek seaming assures. Others are made with whipped seams, copied from the casual type leather gloves. Both are for street wear, the whipped seams models for tailored suits and coats, the flat, almost concealed seams for dress parade clothes. If you need fabric gloves for immediate wear or later, this is the time to shop.

Business Women to Cook Dinner for Service Men

A corps of 25 members of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago will tie on aprons and cook dinner for several hundred service men at the U. S. O. center at 131 S. Wabash av. tomorrow. Mrs. Katharine Maddux, the president, has prepared a menu typical of Sunday dinner in many American homes—chicken, whipped potatoes, salad, coffee, and apple pie. Mrs. Anne L. Landry is chairman of the committee directing the culinary venture, and her assistants are Miss Elizabeth Eckert, Mrs. Hazel Ferguson, Mrs. Camille Kathbun, and Mrs. Ora Snyder.

Gadabouts' Outing.

The Gadabouts of the Central Eleanor club have an outing today and tomorrow at Williams Bay, Wis.

Norwegian Club to Hear Canadian Trade Official

The Norwegian Woman's club will have J. M. Boyer, acting Canadian Trade commissioner in Chicago, as guest speaker at an international day program scheduled for 1:30 p. m. Tuesday in the club rooms, 2512 N. Kimball av. His topic will be "Canada, a War Time Survey." Mr. Boyer served as a lieutenant of the royal field artillery in the first world war.

Purcell D. A. R. Chapter to Hold Luncheon Today

The annual colonial luncheon of Henry Purcell chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be held at 1 p. m. today in the English room of Marshall Field & Co. There will be a talk by Miss Aneita L. Tidball on work of the Travelers Aid society, of which she is executive secretary, and a musical program by Miss Lillian Condit.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 16.—When Peter O'Crotty was double-crossed by a hand grenade, he decided to write "Once a Marine," taken from the marine slogan "Once a Marine—Always a Marine."

When Comdr. John Ford heard about the story, he phoned O'Crotty and said, "Wait for me. I want to direct it." Now Bob Burns, Glenn Ford, and Walter Brennan [who lost his teeth while with the marines in the last war] want to be in it. Commandant Ralph Davis is trying to get technicolor film. They're going to give it the works, and should. If you don't know what marines have done, by golly, you're going to when this is released. . . . Ted Donaldson may do Jody in "The Yearling." . . . Ann Miller is telling her friends she will not marry Vincent Fotre. Don't ask me why. I thought he was a catch.

Girls Together—Meow!

John Fredericks' opening sure brought out the women. This year every blasted hat was becomingly feminine, and such variety! From felts to feathers. Crowd was entertaining, too. Mrs. Charlie Chaplin couldn't concentrate on bonnets; kept looking from her emerald chip ring to Sally Wright's 300 carat star sapphire. Mrs. Ralph Blum and Minna Wallis were so afraid you wouldn't know they were with Faye Emerson Roosevelt they darned near smothered her. She kept fanning herself to get air. Constance Collier came in like a ship in full sail, pulled Lillian Gish down on a chair that blocked all models. Cutest model was Ann Hunter. If some producer doesn't grab that girl and star her, then they're more careless than I think they are.

A Salute to Good Joes.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer celebrated its 25th year. Then Ted Saucier showed them how to give a party. I've been to super-parties there, but the one on "Week-End at the Waldorf" set had stars, grips, electricians, painters—Harry, Joe, Mike, and they were all there in the spotlight with Ginger, Lana, Pidgeon, Lucille Ball [whose hair's pretty now], and other stars. These are the pals I'd worked with for seven years. They said, "Heck, Hopper, give up that silly column—come on back to movies! We used to have fun." Then Bob Leonard's chauffeur, Foss, said, "Amen!" Foss, incidentally, used to take my son fishing. I could write columns, if papers had space, about stories the workers gave me on sets. Yes, that was a party. One for all and all for one, and all for the benefit of "Week-End at the Waldorf."

Still in Character?

"Ten Little Indians went to dine, one went to choke himself, then there were nine," was Mischa Auer's exit line when he finished "Ten Little Indians." Then he went out to chase a "peeping tom" and broke his leg. . . . Many letters are taking a crack at Warners because ads for "Hotel Berlin" were written in German. . . . Speaking of that, our first academy award winner was Emil Jannings for "Way of All Flesh." He returned to Berlin to join the Nazi party. . . . Duke Ellington had them swinging from a star at his Ciro's opening. . . . Barry Fitzgerald's asked to have his telephone number changed. His calls are cutting into his sleep. . . . Natalie Schafer goes from "Masquerade in Mexico" to "Gallows Hill" on Broadway. . . . Bobby Jordan, with an honorable discharge, begins a picture here Monday. . . . Friends of Gil Lamb scarcely recognize him since that plastic job was done on his nose and chin. One was taken down, the other built up. . . . Louis Hayward's mother and sister still live in a blasted section of London. His sister's too ill to be moved. Their neighbors were amazed at their lucky escape. Neither has ever gone to a bomb shelter.

And He Acts, Too.

Arthur Treacher defeated Bud Abbott in the recent election at Sherman Oaks. Arthur's now mayor of that city. Said Bud, "He buttles better than I do." . . . Atwater Kent's Bel Air home gets an airing in "Divorce" with Kay Francis. Ben Bogeaus gets seasick every time he goes on the set of his own picture "Captain Kidd." Sure, the boat moves from side to side only—not up and down. . . . Nelson Eddy will sing "O'er Meadowlands," a new composition by Mrs. Enrico Caruso Jr. . . . A worker at the Hollywood Canteen says it's pitiful—the non-appearance of stars there. He suggests they change the name of the place to Hollywood Can't Be Seen.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. Chester D., Clinton, Ia.—In our basement workshop we keep a large strainer, which we use to sow grass seed around the house. The strainer sifts the seed neatly and uniformly over the ground.

Grace T., Chicago—If you are an inexperienced young cook you will find cold water better than hot for washing your bread board. The flour is not apt to gum your dish-cloth if the water is cold.

Mamie L., Danville, Ill.—Place a cup without a handle upside down in a pan if you need a ring mold. I've long used an old cup in this way and it does the work.

Now, Please, Your Idea.

Inbetween Age Child Usually Not Mannerly

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

After writing a recent article about the interest of boys and girls in the subject of manners, I feel, as I so often do, that I must tack on a corollary. In this case the corollary will relieve your worry instead of adding to it.

This real interest in manners that I talked about was evinced by girls and boys in their middle and late teens, not much earlier. I want to make this clear for fear some mothers, distracted mothers of 9 and 10 year olds, will expect this same emotion to be felt on the subject by their inbetweens, and will feel let down and lose faith in me as a consequence.

"One stocking [usually] up and one stocking down"; enthusiasm for some things and appalling indifference to others making them oblivious of etiquet; cleanliness held pretty much in contempt; play and the crowd [or gang] the most enthralling thing in the world; manners in general have no intrinsic interest for the "inbetweens." Those that they have must be pretty much super-imposed by us, and then are observed only in parrot fashion because they want to please us.

If you achieve a moderate amount of mannerliness at this time, be satisfied. But don't expect your 8 to 12 year old to be convinced of the desirability of it. You can set him a good example, and talk him into a receptive frame of mind, and do a reasonable amount of reminding, but there's not much more you can do until a real social sense awakens, and that usually doesn't happen until sometime during the high school years. This is one of the many things in raising children which you have to be patient about and leave to time.

The same patience has to be exercised about dawdling, cleanliness, and orderliness. Sometimes it seems as tho boys and girls between the years of little childhood and adolescence are just too busy living to concern themselves with all these annoying trifles, for it is obvious that that is what they seem to them.

These inbetweens with their love of lusty adventure, with their [usually] intense "gang" interest, and their rough puppy-play have to be understood if one is to live peaceably with them, without nagging, scolding, and making them feel that "nobody loves them."

For Youngsters

Designed especially for the youngsters, these patterns will realize in Mother's clothing budget a really significant saving. One design makes a jumper frock with princess lines, and the other creates a diminutive fashion with frills. A third pattern offers 24 different motifs for appliqué. Style No. 2846 is designed for sizes 10 to 16. Size 12 requires 2⅛ yards of 35 or 39 inch fabric; short sleeved blouse, 1⅛ yards of 35 or 39 inch. Style No. 3656 is designed for sizes 6 months and 1, 2, and 3. Size 2 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 or 39 inch fabric; contrasting, ¼ yard of 35 inch; ruffling, 2¼ yards. Style No. 11215 must be ordered separately. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 18 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

New 'Thin Man' Movie Is Up to Usual Standard

"THE THIN MAN GOES HOME."

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, directed by Richard Thorpe, featuring William Powell, Myrna Loy, Lucile Watson, Gloria De Haven, Anne Revere, Helen Vinson, Harry Davenport, Leon Ames, Donald Meek, Edward Brophy, and Asta, and presented at the Chicago.

By Mae Tinée.

Nick and Nora and the pup are at it again, and they're just as entertaining as ever.

The nonchalant sleuth and his ever amiable wife are much the same except that the former imbibes cider instead of martinis when he heads for Sycamore Springs to visit his parents. The film has provided him with a very charming mother, in the person of Lucile Watson, and a nice old father, as played by Harry Davenport.

Papa disapproves of Nicky and his profession and is not to be swerved from his poor opinion of both—not until the end of the picture, that is. The old home town produces a couple of murders just so the local boy can show off his talents, which he does, notwithstanding his wife's helpful efforts.

All the casting is excellent, but Anne Revere does outstanding work as Crazy Mary, the village idiot. Donald Meek is unwittingly one of the key figures in the puzzle, playing a literal minded old art dealer, and his trouble with such terms as "Good-by, now" is highly amusing. The two stars handle their roles with the greatest of ease, as could be expected after all their work together, and Asta, the wire haired terrier, is as handsome and perky as ever.

After seeing and enjoying the latest "Thin Man" comedy — I thought about the fact that this is the fifth of the series, the plots are always quite similar, the same stars are featured, yet they continue to be refreshing and entertaining, and no one ever seems to tire of them. Methinks the dialog, always fast and funny, is largely responsible, and Robert Riskin and Dwight Taylor can take a bow for the latest episode — any one who can't get a laugh out of this is a sad sack indeed.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"I would like to send some fried chicken to my son overseas. How is this prepared so that it will keep during the journey?"

It is inadvisable to send fried chicken on such a long trip unless it can be sealed in tin cans and processed in the pressure cooker. Altho chicken can be safely processed in glass jars, glass containers often are broken in transit.

"What are the ingredients of a tasty chicken a la king? I would like one which is rich and with a flavor different from just an ordinary creamed dish."

Use half chicken stock and half milk [or cream] in making the sauce. Thicken with 4 tablespoons flour to each cup of liquid, as in making white sauce. Parboil or lightly saute green peppers before adding. Also saute mushrooms until only light brown, as they have a tendency to darken the sauce. The addition of a little sherry and a beaten egg or two improves the flavor and enriches the dish.

"Should flour always be sifted before measuring, and why is this necessary?"

Flour packs down in the container and should be sifted once before measuring in order to get an accurate measurement. Sift onto a large plate or piece of wax paper, then spoon lightly into the cup.

"How are potato nests made?"

Cut large potatoes into very thin strips. Heat in small amount of hot fat until almost tender; do not allow to brown. Remove potatoes from pan, sprinkle with salt, and line bottom and sides of large muffin pans. Press well into place, then bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes. Use in place of patty shells for holding creamed foods.

French Warm in Hospitality Toward Yanks

BY SIMONE DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 16.—The first Frenchman [and it probably was a woman] who, on liberation day, brought home an American soldier to dine unknowingly introduced what has become a popular practice. For the word "Hospitality" now is over one of the sections of the American Red Cross and to it rush French people of all stations in life to invite an officer or a G.I. for a meal.

"I have two daughters who arrange a dance every week with their girl friends," said a demure French mother. "Please send us some well behaved officers."

"I would like to meet some American medical men," a surgeon said, and a French woman who has a brother in California wanted to know some men from Los Angeles if possible. Another hostess asked for boys from Bronxville, N. Y.

Elderly people like to play bridge and students wish to practice their bad English in exchange for good French. Most of them are interested in meeting officers. "They are so sleek and elegant," is the most widely heard comment. All are delighted to know the soldiers and to hear them tell their war experiences and especially their impressions of France.

The busiest people are often the most hospitable. A mother with seven children has made it a regular practice to entertain three Americans once a week at dinner. Others are just waiting for supplies to reach them from the country in order to prove their generous interest in Yanks.

"Mama has just received a chicken," said a broad faced, grinning boy. "We want an American to help us eat it." He does not mention the precious bottle of Moulin-a-vent long kept aside that will go with it.

"Hospitality" deals with problems. Some soldiers may have been seen leaning over the desk, tired and muddy, but happy to be there. They want a room for one night—a real room with real sheets.

Are they on leave? Where do they come from?

"O," they reply airily, "from up there." Their transport order reads from Lille to Rheims. It just "happens" that when they drive an army car Paris is on the way.

Thru the Looking Glass

Easy does it where nails are concerned.

Run like a bunny rabbit from the manicurist who snips and digs until it hurts or bleeds. For one thing, finger infections are too easily picked up. For another, your nails are going to be worse rather than better after such treatment—and don't let any one tell you anything different!

Dirt under the nails is an abomination, but when you clean that area DON'T dig hard, nor use a sharply pointed instrument. Use an orange-wood stick, its tip wrapped in cotton, and draw it gently from one side of the nail to the other so that the skin is not torn and the under side of the nail roughened.

And don't cut cuticle or let a manicurist do it, if you can possibly avoid it. Persuasion is better than force every time. Of course cuticle won't be persuaded if it's rough and tough from lack of oil out there's no reason why it shouldn't be softened up. Using a nail cream or oil every night or at least a couple of times a week will keep it pliable enough to be pushed back gently, without damage, every time you wash your hands. Don't push it back with another nail, tho. Do that with a towel.

Nail troubles appear to be on the increase, and we know of no solution that quite equals oiling. If yours are brittle and much too inclined to break hideously, soak them in slightly warmed oil every couple of nights. Oil the cuticle daily for extra good measure and neither file nor cut with any but the gentlest pressure. Bruised nails and torn cuticle should always be permitted to heal—and oiling fosters healing—before they are further wounded by inept manicuring.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Honey Comb Pudding.
[Serves eight.]

½ cup flour
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
½ cup molasses
½ cup shortening
½ cup hot milk
4 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon soda

Mix flour, spices, salt, and sugar. Add molasses, shortening which has been melted in hot milk, beaten eggs, and soda dissolved in 3 tablespoons boiling water. Bake in greased 8 inch pan in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes. Serve with soft custard, cream, or raisin sauce. When baked this dessert is porous like the honeycomb.

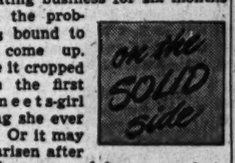
Girl Renders Her Opinion About Petting

BY SHEILA DALY.
[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

By the time a gal has been at this dating business for six months or so, the problem is bound to have come up. Maybe it cropped up on the first boy-meets-girl evening she ever spent. Or it may have arisen after she'd been around long enough to figure she knew the answers to just about everything.



But no matter when it pops into the picture, To-Neck-or-Not-to-Neck is the question that's bothering many a high school honeychile these days. And the decision is important. There are many excuses given for taking that "Well, everybody does it, so why not me?" attitude. But the most tossed-around reason a lot of fast-talking females give is that where there's no necking there's no dates.

Here's a letter from a gal who knows, that puts the skids under that sort of con talk. It goes like this:

"I was acquainted with a boy at school who had a reputation for being very 'fast.' One day he asked me for a date and I accepted, because often stories get around about people that aren't true, and I like to find out for myself whether they are true or not.

"I am one of those girls who's not strictly in the "hand holding-in-the-dark" department—and he knew it. On our first date we had loads of fun and he asked me out again and again. I've been going out with him ever since then, and never once has he shown that his reputation was deserved. We've mentioned the subject a couple of times, and he says he admires me more for being the kind of girl I am.

"So, as far as I'm concerned, those girls who say they can't get dates because they won't neck are almost completely crazy. I don't know why they can't get dates, but I'll wager that it isn't [in most cases, at least] because they don't neck. "What do you think?"

And that's what we want to know—what do you think? Can a gal make the Friday night rounds just as easily if she doesn't neck as if she does? We'd like to check on it, so why not give us the dope, as you figure it?

'Private Investigator Maclain'

By Baynard Kendrick
(Copyright: 1945: By Baynard Kendrick.)

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

EXPERIMENT UNNECESSARY.

"Feeling better, darling?" asked Maclain. "Yes, better," Sybella said. Davis left his chair and moved closer. "You look very pretty in the white turban."

"I have a headache," Sybella said softly, "but I'm not in any great pain. Can I have some water?"

Davis put the glass tube to her lips and she sipped a few times without moving.

Sybella said, "How are you, Duncan?"

"Fine," said Maclain.

"I botched things up," said Sybella.

"I'm the one who's botched them up," said Duncan Maclain.

"There were clippings in the drawer."

She spoke so low that the captain bent closer to hear her. He said, "We know all that, darling. Now go to sleep again."

"The tie came from Hylkers."

Riker wrote it down.

"Go to sleep now," said Maclain. "Felix Nightingale and the widow named Brown and her second son were killed by a taxi, and lots of the clippings had pink paper pasted to the back as tho something had been torn away."

"We know about the paper, darling. Now go to sleep."

He leaned over and gently kissed her, and after a while she smiled and said, "That was worth getting hit on the head for, Capt. Duncan Maclain."

Detective Riker snapped a rubber band around his notebook. "She's gone to sleep again."

"Stick close to her, Riker, until you're relieved," Davis ordered and added, "Are you coming, Maclain?"

The drizzle had turned to a fine Scotch mist.

The captain walked tranquilly along holding to Davis' arm, and offering nothing.

They had gone half a block when Davis said, "What are you cooking? You're too calm."

"There are times, Larry," said Duncan Maclain, "when I view myself with alarm."

"Now what's the trouble?"

"My brain keeps splitting itself," said Maclain. "You look at a person, and listen. I can't look at anybody else. I've been thinking of the word darling, Larry. I've only used it to one person in my entire life and that's Sybella. Yet today, it's a term of endearment which has ceased being a term of endearment because so many people throw it promiscuously around."

"If this has anything to do with the stabbing of that man this afternoon in your penthouse," said Davis.

They entered a lunch wagon and found a booth by one of the windows. The captain went on without interruption as soon as they had sat down.

"Would one woman call another darling, Larry, if she'd never seen the woman before?"

"Who knows what women will do?" asked Davis. "Who did?"

The captain said, "Her name was Troy."

"And who's her darling?" asked Davis.

"Sarah Hanley," said Duncan Maclain. "Troy came into Larmar's cocktail party while Sarah Hanley was sitting beside me. She said, 'Hello, darling,' and just a little later I heard her tell Larmar out on the terrace that she knew nobody there, I think it might pay you, Davis, to find out what the reticent Mrs. Hanley really does know about Troy."

Down 1st av, a hook and ladder swung in from a cross street and started on a run uptown. Under the table, Schnucke pressed closer to the captain's leg and began to tremble.

The captain said, "You see, Larry, that split mind of mine has been working again. Brownie Mitchell was going to hold an experiment for me in his gun shop tonight and now he doesn't need to. I think you'd better work along with me, Larry, and quit being so stubborn. I just found out this minute who murdered Troy."

The captain found Sgt. Archer waiting for him at the penthouse.

Archer, a normally silent man except for occasional wisecracks in keeping with his heavy sense of humor, was in a talkative mood. He followed Maclain into the office.

When Archer was settled in a chair, the captain called Brownie Mitchell on the telephone.

"You needn't waste any more time on experiments, Brownie. I know how that gun was fired. —No, it wasn't by radio. —No, I'll show you tomorrow afternoon in Larmar's apartment. Five o'clock. That'll give us time to set things up. Good-by." He cradled the phone and took his jigsaw puzzle from the drawer.

Archer swallowed noisily and said, "How?"

The captain dumped the 50 piece puzzle out on his desk. "I'm not going to say."

"I don't believe you know," said Archer. "You're not one to keep things from the police when you're sure."

"You wouldn't believe me if I told you."

"We've learned to believe in facts, captain," said Archer.

The captain raised his head and managed to look exquisitely disgusted. "A man with a knife in his stomach is a fact, Archer. Your men are still busy clearing the evidence away."

"So Jordan didn't kill him," the sergeant stated calmly. He put a match to a cigar. "That means that he didn't kill that girl who was blackmailing him or throwing him over, or something. Isn't that what you're trying to say?"

"I'm merely intimating that there might be some connection," the captain offered mildly. "How does one get a man out of jail, sergeant, once you fellows have him in?"

"You prove him innocent," said Archer.

Maclain nodded agreement and found two pieces of the jigsaw puzzle which fit. "But you don't believe he's innocent, Archer."

"No."

"Will you believe it when I show you tomorrow afternoon how that gun was fired?"

"Not necessarily. You still won't have proved anything. The chances are a 100 to one that Jordan killed her, even tho that gun could have been fired in some trick manner, which I doubt."

"It seems rather hopeless, doesn't it?" The captain found a third piece of the puzzle and patted it down into place. "Larmar killed Troy."

"I hope to tell you," Archer muttered.

The captain said with irritation, "For the love of heaven, quit flicking ashes on my carpet and get yourself an ashtray."

UNWRITTEN LAW BOBS UP IN FARM SLAYING TRIAL

Shooting Called Accident but 'Motive' Is Told.

BY PAUL HOLMES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Princeton, Ill., Feb. 16.—The unwritten law was brought into the Dhamer murder trial by the back door today as defense counsel argued to the jury that Harry and Lucille Dhamer would have been justified in killing Charles Neufcour last April.

Atty. Josef T. Skinner, representing the defense, insisted that the fatal shooting of Neufcour last October was the accidental result of an attempt by Lucille to protect herself and her husband from assault, but he asserted "no jury in Christendom" would have blamed them if they had shot him down purposely a few months earlier.

Lucille, 27, an attractive brunette, and Harry, 42, well to do farmer-business man, are jointly accused of murder as a result of Neufcour's death. He was 32 and a hired man on the Dhamer farm near Sheffield.

Death to Be Asked.

Skinner occupied the entire day in his closing address. When court convenes at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, State's Atty. Joseph Peterson will sum up the prosecution's case. He indicated today he will ask for the death penalty for the pair. The jury is expected to get the case tomorrow afternoon.

"If Harry or Lucille Dhamer had had murder in their hearts against Neufcour, they would have killed him in April within a few days after Lucille confessed to her husband that she had been intimate with the farm hand," Skinner told the jury.

"They had the chance to kill him at that time. They went to the farm and called him out to the car to talk things over. Harry had a loaded rifle. But instead of shooting, he offered to set Neufcour up on an 80 acre farm and give him $1,000 if he and Lucille were in love and wanted to marry.

"Neufcour would have accepted that offer," Skinner said, "but Lucille already had realized her mistake and wanted no more to do with him. She had proved her penitence by getting down on her knees confessing to Harry."

Went West to "Forget."

Skinner said Harry and Lucille then took a trip to the west to "try to forget." He asserted they were successful and that they held no particular bitterness against Neufcour when they returned in the fall.

The argument which preceded the fatal shooting of Neufcour in a bean field on the Dhamer farm last Oct. 14 was due to a belief by Dhamer that his tenant, Andre Driessens, brother-in-law of Neufcour, was cheating him out of part of his share of the bean harvest, Skinner said.

QUIZ BLONDE ON ARMY WIFE'S FOXHOLE BURIAL

Lake Charles, La., Feb. 16 [Special].—A 20 year old blonde employed in a war plant here was disclosed by police today to have been a friend of army Lt. S. C. Epes, 29, who is charged with murder in the bizarre death of his wife at Columbia, S. C.

Sheriff Henry A. Reid Jr., said he had questioned the local girl in efforts to establish a motive in the death of Mrs. Mary Lee Epes, 26, whose body was found in a maneuver foxhole near Fort Jackson, at Columbia, S. C. Her husband, who attempted suicide, led officers to the grave and admitted he buried his wife the night of Jan. 27, but denied he killed her.

The blonde, whose name was withheld, turned over to the sheriff a score of letters she said she had received from Lt. Epes. She received some of them since the death of Mrs. Epes.

Authorities did not detain the girl after she was questioned here yesterday afternoon, the sheriff said.

My gosh! Another one! I told you it was a mistake to build our house so close to that ski slide.

THE QUESTION.

What effect has the brown-out had on you?

WHERE ASKED.

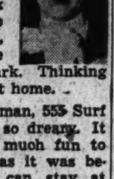
Continental hotel, 505 N. Michigan av.

THE ANSWERS.

Sam Zia, waiter, 1321 Lawrence av.—The fact that it's considerably darker doesn't bother me. My only trouble is that it's taking me a while to find new landmarks. Four times I've ridden past my stop on the way home because the signs weren't on. The first night of the brown-out I rode 13 blocks beyond my bus stop.

Barbara Merkle, transportation clerk, 225 Leicester rd., Kenilworth—I think it has caused every one different, small inconveniences. Mother and I looked forward to seeing a movie for about six weeks. When it came to the neighborhood, we drove past the theater and it was dark. Thinking it was closed, we went home.

Steve Shiedlak, bellman, 555 Surf st.—Everything looks so dreary. It isn't as much fun to go out as it was before. I can stay at home and turn off the lights, so I stay at home more and listen to the radio. The darker streets have certainly made driving more hazardous because it's hard to see pedestrians.



Mal Remington, advertising salesman, 315 Fairview, Park Ridge—My wife and I were looking for a place to eat and went by a couple of restaurants, believing they weren't open. Finally we tried the door of one and discovered it was not closed. I know there's a brown-out, but it's not easy to get used to it.

Phyllis Fruitt, addressograph operator, 5642 Wayne av.—I've been saving money since the shop window lights haven't been on. I used to go window shopping at night, see something I liked, and return the next day to buy it. Now the neighborhood is dark and I'm not too keen about going out alone.

GETS 6 MONTHS IN COUNTY JAIL.

Cornelius Granada, 20, of 707 S. Paulina st., arrested Jan. 30 when he was found trying to hack a hole thru the back door of an apartment at 1251 Flournoy st., was sentenced to six months in the county jail yesterday on a petty larceny charge.

MOTHER KILLED WITH SKILLET; SON, 16, QUIZZED

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 16 [Special].—A high school junior was held without charge here tonight for questioning in the slaying of his mother, a Bible class teacher, whose battered and slashed body was found last night in their home in suburban Redford township.

The student, Elvin Kent, 16, son of Franklin Kent, 47, a war worker, was being held in the Wayne county juvenile home where Russell C. Gregory, chief detective of the Wayne county sheriff's department, said he told a confused story. Gregory said questioning was difficult because the boy was hysterical.

His mother, Ida, 43, had been bludgeoned about the head with a frying pan and stabbed in the chest, arms, and back, Gregory said.

Frying Pan Shattered.

Almost everything in the kitchen, where the body was found, was bloodstained and scattered about, indicating a violent struggle. Gregory said the cast iron frying pan had been swung so viciously that it had been broken into pieces, some of which were found under the sink. Officers believed the pan handle, which was not found, had been used as the stabbing weapon.

Police found Mrs. Kent's body after a call from the Nash Kelvinator plant, where the woman's husband had collapsed after receiving a call from Elvin last night that Mrs. Kent was dead.

Elvin told sheriff's officers he had found the body on his return from a movie and later changed his story to say he had been visiting a friend. State police from Redford said they had stopped him in his father's car earlier in the evening and asked for his driver's license.

On Way to Prayer Meeting.

They said he told them he was en route to a prayer meeting and had left his license at home. He was told to go home and bring the license to the police.

"He just can't seem to explain what he did after he and his mother had supper together," said Gregory.

Blood stains were found in the family car, officers said. They quoted young Kent as saying he had burned his stockings, which became blood stained in the kitchen after he found his mother's body. He told officers he had taken off his shoes because the floor was slippery with blood.

Scrapings from Elvin's fingernails and samples of his clothing were being analyzed tonight, officials said.

Elvin was described by his teachers at Redford Union High school as a "normal boy interested in his studies and athletics."

A second son, Arven, 18, is in a Mississippi army camp.

Tom, Dick, and Harry, singing trio well known to W-G-N listeners a few years ago, have returned to the air with two new men. Gordon Vandover, one of the original trio, now is supported by Fred Meisner and James Hutton. James Cassidy is accompanist. They are regulars, along with Dorothy Claire, songstress, and Harry Kogen's band on the new Whirligig show aired over WENR at 9:30 p. m. Fridays.

The Brownstone theater, reviving plays of the gaslight era, will be introduced over W-G-N-Mutual at 8:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Jackson Beck, who has been playing the Cisco Kid on Mutual, will take the male leads in the new [old] shows.

Price of admission to the Jack Benny broadcast from St. Joseph, Mo., tomorrow is the donation of at least a pint of blood to the Red Cross. When the Red Cross opens its annual drive here next Monday, Johnnie Neblett, who broadcasts "So the Story Goes," will stage two shows when the campaign leaders meet in two sections on Monday and Tuesday evenings in the Blackstone hotel. The goal is 12 million dollars.

Artie Shaw, the band leader, back in civilian life after three years in the navy, will tell about some of the experiences of his service orchestra in the Pacific on Report to the Nation over WBBM at 12:30 p. m. today.

BAKER'S SUPPLIES STOLEN.

ALLMAN TO SEEK 1,000 MORE COPS AFTER WAR ENDS

Police Commissioner Allman said yesterday that the city will need an additional 1,000 policemen to check an expected increase in crime after the war. His announcement was supplemental to the Chicago crime commission's post-war plan for fighting crime as announced Thursday.

Commissioner Allman said that the department needs about 6,700 patrolmen to give the necessary protection for the city. Before the war, he said, there were 5,650 patrolmen. The war has reduced that force to about 5,300.

"I don't think that crime will increase to the extent that many believe, but in normal times, even before the war, the city needed that many policemen, a large part of them walking beats," he declared.

Forced Into Navy Wedding by C. O.'s Wife, Officer Says

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 16 [Special].—Protesting that he was the victim of a navy "shotgun" wedding, Lt. Clyde Monaghan, 30, a navy air pilot, filed suit in Superior court today seeking legal freedom from the anxious bride he declared was forced on him by his commanding officer's wife.

The flyer, from the Brooklyn naval air station, said he was offered a choice of facing a navy court martial or marrying a pregnant house guest of his C. O.'s wife.

Tho Monaghan denied he was the father of the girl's unborn child, he said he decided he'd better take her as his wife. The ceremony, he said, was performed at the home of his commanding officer on Nov. 16, 1943, in Atlanta, Ga., where Monaghan then was stationed at a naval air field.

Tells of Threat.

The girl, whom Monaghan allegedly knew only as "Nancy," had accused him of being the father of the baby she was to have, and told him, he complained, that "I will be Mrs. Clyde Monaghan by this time tomorrow or you will be on your way out of the navy."

Her threat, the suit for annulment charged, was backed up by the warning of his C. O.'s wife that he must marry the girl that day and "take her away and live with her as man and wife or suffer the humility of being court martialed."

Their rush, he said, resulted from the fact he was being transferred to New York. And when he tried to get the signatures of certain officers, necessary for his transfer, he was met with refusals, he declared.

When he finally agreed to the marriage, the flyer said, his commanding officer told him the ceremony would take place in his home that evening. Monaghan was told to get the license and the ring and the C. O. said he would take care of all other arrangements, the complaint disclosed.

Guests Are Strangers.

From then on everything was taken care of to speed the matter to a climax. The wedding guests and even his best man, all strangers to Monaghan, were waiting for him when he went to the C. O.'s house that evening, the flyer related.

His attorney, Henry Jacobsen, said that the bride, Mrs. Nancy Monaghan, who now lives in Washington, D. C., is collecting about $175 a month allotment and wants to stay on the marital pay roll altho she had promised to divorce Monaghan when her child is born.

In the capital, Mrs. Monaghan was reached by telephone and asked about the wedding. She said: "The whole thing is utterly ridiculous. I have no further comment," and hung up.

FLYING SON OF CARD MANAGER DIES IN CRASH

B-29 Mishap Takes Southworth Jr.

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—With tear-dimmed eyes, more accustomed to squinting in sun-lit baseball parks, Billy Southworth looked out over Flushing bay tonight as a salvage crew hovered about the water where his airman son went to his death yesterday in a bomber crash.

Maj. Wm. Southworth.

Shadows were gathering when Southworth and his wife, who wore black, arrived by plane from Columbus, O., at La Guardia field—where the Super Fortress piloted by Major Billy Jr., was about to land when it plunged into the bay.

Grief overlaying his usual geniality, the manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals said he last saw his son on Nov. 28 when "he dropped over for a visit." The Southworth home is in Sunbury, O., and young Billy attended Ohio State university for three years.

Asks About Survivors.

His first questions were about the five survivors of the crash. His relief was evident when he learned that all would recover.

Southworth once said he took more pride in his son's war achievements than in the Cards' world championships. He and Mrs. Southworth, Major Bill's stepmother, were no less proud as they stepped slowly into a taxi tonight.

Young Billy, a promising baseball outfielder, was believed to have been the first professional baseball player to enlist in War II. He had been in the air corps since December, 1940.

He went overseas in October, 1942—just before his dad's ball club whipped the New York Yankees for the world championship. He won the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with three oak leaf clusters.

Signs Film Contract.

Quite naturally, young Billy virtually grew up with a baseball in his hand. At the time of his enlistment he was the property of the Toronto club of the International league.

Young Billy also was credited with having made a baseball cap a popular item of wearing apparel among bomber crews.

He also had been signed to a movie contract to go into effect after the war.

"I suppose if there had been no war I might have made the major leagues," he said at the time of a furlough early last year, "but since grabbing an airplane stick instead of a bat, I want to stick to aviation and be just another baseball fan."

Hoosier Is Rescued.

The others missing in the crash were identified by the army as 1st Lt. Carl D. MaGee, Las Vegas, Nev.; 1st Lt. Martin Li Cursi, Hulberton, N. Y.; 2d Lt. Ralph Lewis Stickle, Butler, N. J., and Staff Sgt. Joseph Yabrodi, New York.

Survivors were listed as W. A. Burkus, technical expert for the Bendix corporation, South Bend, Ind.; Tech. Sgt. Lewis Munford, Detroit, Mich.; Maj. W. L. Anken, Grand Island, Neb.; 2d Lt. R. M. Worcester, Pasadena, Cal., and Pvt. Howard Card, Riverdale, N. J. Munford, suffering from shock, was said to be the only one injured.

ZAVALA LOSES TO BARTFIELD IN GARDEN FIGHT

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Danny Bartfield of New York, got his left eye and right cheek cut, but punched out a clean cut decision tonight over Humberto Zavala of Mexico in a give and take 10 round bout at Madison Square Garden. A crowd of 11,680 contributed to a gross gate of $42,241.

Bartfield dropped his Mexican opponent for no count in the first round then went on to pile up a wide margin on clean effective counter punching.

Ralph Hodgin Inducted, Sox Office Reports

Ralph Hodgin, White Sox outfielder and the club's leading hitter last season, has been inducted by the army, Harry Grabiner, Sox vice president, said yesterday. Hodgin is 29 and his home is in Guilford college, N. C. He batted .295 last season.

No thrill of combat spurs them for the fray
Nor bars from mind the keen edged shafts that prey
Thru waiting hours. It is not theirs to know
Reward for gallantry against the foe.
Their armament is fortitude, and high
They raise the shield of prayer toward the sky.
Unheralded, an unseen part they play
While steadfastly they carry on each day;
And soldier hearts are girded with new might
Because the hearth of home is kept alight.

The Common Touch.

I like a man with the common touch,
Whose voice rings sincere and true,
Who, with your hand in his hearty clutch,
Will talk eye to eye to you.

The fellow who never goes "high hat,"
When he starts getting the breaks,
The kind who will stop for a friendly chat,
When you're in or out of the "stakes."

The kind of lad who will shoot a straight game,
With both humble and mighty alike,
The kind who is not ever seeking lone fame,
In another man's luck takes delight.

The one who can be as tough as a goat,
With a chiseler, cheat, or a sneak,
But gets a painful lump in his throat
When he sees some one hurt, sick or weak.

The kind who is never ashamed to aver,
That he's proud of his creed and his birth,
And on bended knee will say a prayer
To God, for all creatures on earth.

BUCKEYE FIVE BEATEN, 56-41, IN CHAMPAIGN

Iowa Takes First Place in Big 9.

Buckeyes' Test

THE Ohio State basketball team, which suffered its second Big Nine conference defeat last night, well may drop out of contention if it loses to Indiana tonight in Bloomington. The other two conference games tonight are Northwestern at Minnesota and Purdue at Wisconsin. Neither can affect the title battle.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 16 [Special].—Illinois defeated Ohio State, 56 to 41, tonight before 7,100. The victory knocked Ohio out of a tie for the Western conference basketball lead.

Iowa now leads with seven victories and one defeat. Illinois moved into second with six and one, followed by Ohio State with seven won and two lost.

Centers Share Scoring Lead.

Rival centers led the scoring, as Walter [Slip] Kersulis of Illinois and Arnie [Stilts] Risen of Ohio State made 14 points apiece. Risen fouled out with 6½ minutes to play, but Illinois already was in front, 47 to 36.

The lead changed hands eight times in the first 31 minutes and was tied twice, 11 to 11 and 18 to 18. Ohio's biggest margin was five points—35 to 30—but as soon as the Buckeyes hit their peak the Illini countered with a terrific burst of scoring, outracing Ohio State, 17 points to one, in the next four and one-half minutes. It was the fastest exhibition of scoring this year by the Illinois team, which has now won six of its 12 victories by coming from five or more points behind.

Orr Puts 'Em Ahead.

A one hand shot by Johnny Orr, 17 year old freshman, provided the points which overcame Ohio's lead for the last time and gave Illinois a 37 to 36 margin. Illinois made 10 more points—five by Walton [Junior] Kirk, three by Kersulis, and two by Howie Judson—before Ohio State scored again.

After Kersulis, Illinois scorers were Kirk with 12 points and Jack Burmaster, freshman guard, with 10. Warren Amling of Pana, Ill., followed Risen with 13 points in the Ohio column.

Illinois shot 61 times for 23 baskets, a .377 percentage. Ohio State made 17 of 80 shots, a .213 average.

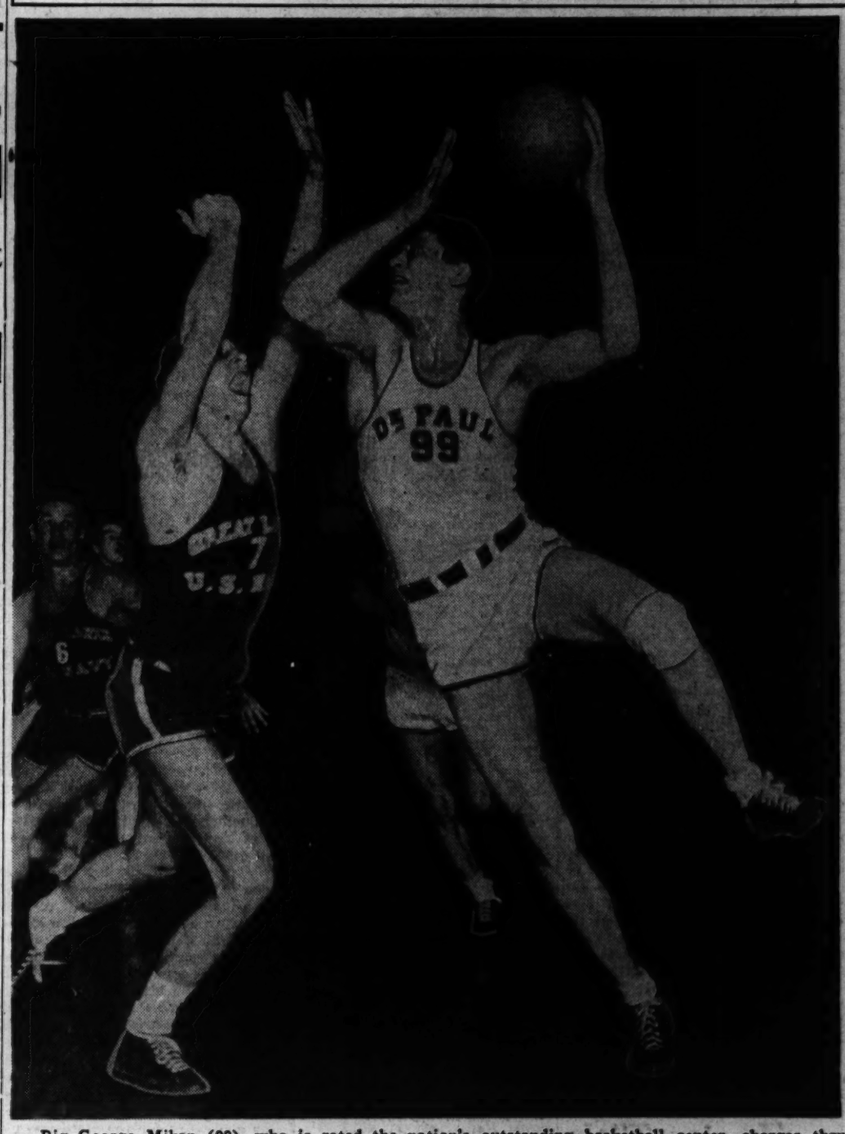
ONE BLUE DEMON THEY COULDN'T STOP



Big George Mikan (99), who is rated the nation's outstanding basketball center, charges thru the Great Lakes ranks in the second game of last night's Chicago Stadium double header. The Bluejackets beat the Blue Demons, 64 to 56, but Big George made 24 points, 12 of them from the free throw line. No. 7 of Great Lakes is Walt Budko and No. 6 is Mickey McGuire. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

PROVISO DROPS WAUKEGAN FROM 1ST PLACE, 36-32

Proviso High school last night knocked Waukegan out of the Suburban league lead, and possibly from the ranks of the state's leaders, by upsetting the Waukegan heavyweight five, 36 to 32, in Maywood. It was the fourth loss of the season and the second in Suburban league play for Waukegan, which early this week was ranged 12th in a state-wide poll.

Morton, meanwhile, took undisputed lead of the league by routing Oak Park, 52 to 24. Evanston trounced New Trier, 50 to 36.

Proviso started out slowly against Waukegan but rallied in the second quarter to score 16 points and establish a 26 to 17 lead. From there on Proviso maintained its edge. Herb Blumenthal led the scorers with 17 points.

Morton's victory, its eighth in nine games, probably will give the team a better standing in the state poll this Sunday. Already rated sixth, the Morton victory over its Oak Park rival was much more impressive than a 10 point decision Decatur took from Oak Park several weeks ago. Decatur has been ranked first since the season started. The Oak Park team, while giving Decatur trouble in the first half, never seriously threatened against Morton.

The lanky Riverside-Brookfield quintet, also ranked among the state's leaders, which clinched the West Suburban title last week, added its 12th league victory to its impressive season record by downing LaGrange, 54 to 45.

Kankakee, winner of the South Suburban title, also added another victory to its list, routing Thornton, 47 to 17.

Howlingwolf Is on Gloves Trail Again

Gloves Activity

GOLDEN GLOVES programs thruout the nation tonight follow:

Fort Worth [Tex.] Star Telegram, fourth round; Kansas City [Mo.] Star, Los Angeles [Cal.] Times, and Fort Huron [Mich.] Times Herald, all finals.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Oklahoma City, one of the strongest and most colorful out-of-town contenders in the Golden Gloves' annual Tournament of Champions for the last 10 years, is ready to whoop it up again when the best boxers from 28 cities in 23 states gather in the Chicago Stadium on the nights of Feb. 26, 27, and 28.

Hal Middlesworth, sports editor of the Daily Oklahoman, reports that his tigers are rarin' to throw punches against a field hailing from California on the west to Florida on the east, and from the Canadian border on the north to the Gulf of Mexico on the south. Hal allows that his charges are ready to repeat intercity team victories they already have registered this season against Chicago's Catholic Youth organization, Kansas City and St. Louis, all of whom will be among their rivals.

Howlingwolf Leads Team.

Battlers from Oklahoma's Indian schools at Concho, Chilocco, Riverside, and Fort Sill have kept the southwest Golden Gloves pot boiling since last September. The climax, which drew 6,500 to Oklahoma City's Municipal auditorium Tuesday night, was a financial and artistic success, hundreds of latecomers being turned away.

Heading the squad of Oklahomans will be Asa Howlingwolf, light heavyweight; Kenny Wiles, 112 pounder; Virgil Franklin, featherweight, and Gilbert Howell, lightweight. The last named three are all high school lads, but Wiles is the only rookie of the trio. Franklin, a Kiowa-Arapaho Indian youth, won the state A. A. U. championship last year, and Howell has been the Golden Gloves 135 pound title holder the last two years.

Sooners Strong Contenders.

Howlingwolf, 175 pound Cheyenne Indian, is the oldest man on the squad at 26. Asa is no stranger to the big show, having won the Oklahoma City Golden Gloves and Oklahoma A. A. U. crowns in 1941 and repeated this season.

Oklahoma has been a strong factor in previous Golden Gloves tournaments. The Sooners put over a double two years ago when they produced the flyweight champion in Barry Darby and the bantamweight boss in Earl O'Neal. In addition, two Oklahoma fighters have won the Joe Louis trophy, awarded to the Tournament of Champions heavyweight who displays the best sportsmanship and ability. The Oklahoma recipients of this honor were Francis Shoulderblade in 1938 and Tom Proctor in 1941.

SAILORS GAIN EARLY MARGIN, TRIUMPH, 64-56

Wolverines Defeat N. U. in Overtime.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Blazing speed, clever ball handling, and a pair of forwards who scored 20 field goals, earned Great Lakes a decisive 64 to 56 victory over De Paul last night in the second game of the Stadium doubleheader. The defeat ended the Demons' long rule of the Stadium court and was their second setback in 19 games.

The evening's entertainment, witnessed by 11,107, opened with Michigan's 46 to 45 overtime conquest of Northwestern which evened the series between these rivals and gave the Wolverines a final conference rating of five triumphs and seven defeats.

Cloyd, Majorki Lead Attack.

Paul Cloyd and Luke Majorki, who set the Bluejackets' terrific pace, accounted for 20 fields goals, evenly divided between them and between the periods of play. While attending to most of Great Lakes' scoring, they also fitted into a system of defense which held George Mikan to one field goal in the second period. De Paul's big center, however, hit at better than his 21 points average.

Mikan scored six field goals, five in the first half, and also dropped in 12 penalty shots in 18 tosses. Twenty-four points, against almost any other quintet, might have carried De Paul to victory, but not last night.

Great Lakes' phenomenal long distance shooting—Cloyd and Majorki scarcely missed for 10 minutes—plus a cleverly designed defense spelled victory. De Paul never was ahead. This defense set Walt Budko, and his replacements, Jim Ove and Bill Downey, against Mikan. Ove and Budko fouled out, but before the latter left the game he had proved the best defensive man against Mikan on the Stadium floor this season.

Long Passes Ineffective.

Great Lakes' second half strategy consisted of picking up De Paul's ball handlers, Jack Allen and Whitey Kachan, in midcourt. This meant long passes on most occasions to Mikan under the backboard, and these frequently were intercepted or permitted Mikan's guard to get assistance.

Mickey McGuire, who with Cloyd and Majorki gave Great Lakes many 2 on 1 and 3 on 1 offensive situations, played steadily and contributed 10 points. Allen, save for Mikan, was De Paul's star as the lithe guard gave his best performance of the year.

De Paul lost the game in the first eight minutes as subsequent events proved. Cloyd and Budko hit set shots as the Bluejackets raced to a 16 to 2 lead before Gene Stump scored the Demons' first field goal. Cloyd and Budko opened the second half with field goals, but De Paul drove to within five points at 46 to 41 and 48 to 43.

First Game Tied Six Times.

Northwestern got away slowly against the Wolverines, but after trailing, 12 to 6, took the lead at 13 to 12 and finished the half ahead, 19 to 18. The score was tied five times before the Wildcats negotiated a sixth tie at 43 to 43 on Frank Wright's field goal just before the end of the regulation period. Max Morris, Northwestern's center, who leads the Western conference in scoring, got 17 points.

Morris committed his fifth foul after two minutes of the overtime and then John Norton scored for Northwestern, but Bob Geahan tied it for Michigan. Kell fouled Benny Schadler, who missed the free throw. Johnson fouled Mullaney with 30 seconds to play and he made the shot.

BIG 9 GRAPPLERS SEEK TITLES IN N.U.'S GYM TODAY

Fifty-nine wrestlers from nine schools will come to grips today in Northwestern university's Patten gymnasium for Western conference championships. Preliminaries are set for 10 a. m., semi-finals for 2 p. m. and the finals for 7:30 p. m.

Michigan's Wolverines, the defending champions, base their hopes of repeating on Capt. Jim Galles, veteran 175 pounder, and Robert Johnston, 128 pounds, both undefeated this season.

The Illini, winners of four straight conference matches, undoubtedly are the team to beat. Two strong contenders wearing the Orange and Blue are Bob Burwell, 121 pounds, and Roland Harkness, 165 pounds, both freshmen.

He's a Big, Big Boy.

Outstanding candidate for heavyweight honors is George [Dreadnaught] Bollas, 345 pounder from Ohio State who has won six matches this season, five by falls and one by a decision. The ponderous freshman is expected to pack too much avoirdupois for his rivals. The Buckeyes also have two other undefeated candidates in Sam Schmittle, 145 pounder, and Capt. Seymour Well, 155 pounder.

Two of last year's champions are returning. They are Capt. Rometo Macias of Iowa, 128 pounds, and Hugh Wilson of Indiana, 155 pounds.

Purdue Could Win.

Purdue, beaten for the championship last year by a point, has a season record of two victories, two losses and one tie. The Boilermakers' leading contenders are Robert Folk, 145 pounds, and Bob Roberts, 155 pounds.

Minnesota is expected to make a strong showing with several outstanding performers in Rod Lister, 175 pounder; Dick Nelson, 155 pounder, and Bob Aldworth, heavyweight who placed fourth last year. Northwestern's outstanding performer is Duane Hanson, 136 pound freshman, who has won all of his matches this season.

N. U. SWIMMERS HOSTS TODAY TO THREE WAY MEET

Ohio Gets Stern Test at Great Lakes.

In its last home meet before the Western conference swimming meet in Evanston March 10, Northwestern will entertain Wisconsin and Indiana this afternoon.

The Wildcats enter the meet as favorites, largely because of Freshman Bill Heusner's record in five previous engagements. The Northwestern star is undefeated in his specialities, the 220 and 440 yard races.

Ohio to Get Test.

Ohio State's undefeated squad will face its sternest test of the season today at Great Lakes in another preparatory meet for the the conference title event. Last year's Great Lakes squad won the National A. A. U. indoor title and numbered the Buckeyes among its dual meet victims.

Making the trip to Great Lakes with Coach Mike Peppe are Hobart Billingsley, Martin Costello, Robert Dennis, Prosper Hill, Burton Katz, Joseph McCracken, Robert MacGregor, Keo Nakama, Lowell Paffrath, Seymour Schlanger, Robert Stone, and Stephen Thompson.

ILLINOIS AT PURDUE.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 16 [Special]. —Illinois' swimming team, undefeated in three starts, will travel tomorrow to Lafayette, Ind., to meet Purdue's strong squad. The Illini have lost one of their star performers, Tony Kosakiewicz, former Chicago's Lane Tech star, who has withdrawn from school pending imminent call to service.

Snead Leads in Gulfport Open with 65

Gulfport, Miss., Feb. 16 (AP).—Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., got back into his stride by shooting the first round of the $5,000 Gulfport Open in a six under par 65 today.

Snead, who won three of the first seven P. G. A. sponsored winter tournaments before retiring temporarily to rest an ailing back, tied the course record set by Jim Wilson, course pro, in 1923.

Snead was three under par on both the front and back nines. His card showed an eagle on the 252 yard sixth hole, four birdies and 13 pars.

Harmon, Laffoon Get 67.

Snead's closest competitors were Claude Harmon, Grosse Point, Mich., and Ky Laffoon, Chicago, who carded 67s. Leonard Dodson, San Francisco; Frank Strazza, Greenwich, Conn., and Harold McSpaden turned in 68s.

Grouped at 69 were Professionals Chick Rutan, Birmingham, Mich.; Byron Nelson, Toledo, O.; Jimmy Gauntt, Ardmore, Okla.; and Ed Furgol, Detroit amateur.

Hamilton One Under Par.

Four completed the first round at one under par 70. This group included Milton Demaret, Houston, Tex.; Bob Hamilton, P. G. A. champion from Evanston, Ill.; Bob Stupple, Chicago, and George McAllister, Dayton, O.

Six strokes behind the leader at par 71 were Willie Goggin, New York City; Sam Byrd, Detroit; Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Joe Zarhardt, Norristown, Pa.; George Kunes, Hollywood, Fla., and Sam Schneider, Corpus Christi, Tex.

FOUR PAIRS LEFT IN FLORIDA TWO BALL GOLF MEET

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 16 (AP).—The Florida open two ball golf tournament at the Dubsdread Country club reached the semi-final stage today.

Roy Horan, Orlando pro, and Marian Lyon, Orlando, will play Mildred Schwab, Miami, and Denny Champagne, Orlando, while in the other bracket, Peg Kirk, Findlay, O., and Herb Smith will take on Louise Suggs, Lithia Springs, Ga., and Earl Christiansen, Miami policeman.

The Kirk-Smith team is the defending champion in the fourth annual event which carries purses amounting to $2,500. Championship flight results follow:

Mildred Schwab, Miami, and Denny Champagne, Orlando, defeated Georgia Tahnier, Rollins coeds, and Carl Dann, Orlando, 3 and 2.

Peg Kirk, Findlay, O., and Herb Smith, Orlando, defeated Janne Cline, Bloomington, Ill., and Gerald Walker, Orlando, 4 and 3.

Marian Lyon, Orlando, and Roy Moran, Orlando pro, defeated Joe Kirkwood, Hollywood, Fla., and Jean Hopkins, Cleveland, O., 3 and 1.

Louise Suggs, Lithia Springs, Ga., and Earl Christiansen, Miami, defeated Ruth May, New York, and Frankie Sarro, Mount Plymouth Country club, 3 and 1.

ROWLAND ASKS LUDWIG TO SELL BASEBALL STOCK

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 16 (AP).—Harry Ludwig, owner of the largest block of stock in the Sacramento Baseball club, has been asked by Clarence Rowland, president of the Pacific coast league, to dispose of the holdings.

"There is no room in baseball for any one, particularly a stockholder, who is connected in any way with a gambling enterprise," Rowland declared.

At the request of Leslie O'Connor of the National baseball commissioner's office, Ludwig, who owns $22,500 of the $125,000 outstanding stock in the club, recently was deposed as president and director.

This order was made public at a league meeting in San Francisco where the reason given was that Ludwig had not made known his asserted interest in a Sacramento cardroom.

Ludwig was not immediately available for comment.

SMILIN' JACK

HAWKS RETURN HOME TO MEET LEAGUE LEADERS

The Chicago Blackhawks, their hopes of earning a Stanley cup playoff berth worn a bit thinner by Thursday night's defeat in New York, will arrive today to ponder their chances against the world champion Montreal Canadiens in the Stadium tomorrow night. Ordinarily, the Chicagoans would have been here yesterday, but train trouble which delayed their 6 to 2 defeat by the New York Rangers in Madison Square Garden made it impossible for them to leave on schedule.

Long Time No Victory.

The Hawks' cogitations on the advent of the Canadiens shouldn't be too bright, for they haven't been able to trim the Frenchmen since Dec. 6, 1942, when they engineered a 5 to 2 Chicago victory in Montreal. This stretches out to a span of 29 games without a decision over the champions, the only solace being seven ties.

This season Montreal has won 31 games out of 39, losing five and tying three. Six of the victories have been registered against the Hawks, the latters' only achievement being a 1 to 1 draw on Montreal ice on Feb. 1. The Canadiens, during those seven games, have scored 32 times to the Hawks' 10.

Seven Points Behind Bruins.

The Chicagoans have 12 games remaining in which to close the gap between them and the fourth place Boston Bruins, who now lead the Hawks by seven points. The 13 contests left include three against Boston and two against the fifth place Rangers.

Williams to Get Shot at Zurita Title

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Championship matches in wartime have been as scarce as beefsteak and cigarets, but fans today were assured of two title scraps within 50 days when Juan Zurita, the N. B. A. lightweight king, agreed to meet Ike Williams, dusky Trenton, N. J. challenger, April 9 in Philadelphia.

Pep vs. Terranova Monday.

Almost overlooked in the reshuffling of Madison Square Garden dates was Monday's duel between Champion Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., and Phil Terranova of New York for the featherweight crown. It will be the first title fight of 1945.

Pep is a 3 to 1 choice and is reported to be drawing down almost half the gate.

N. B. A. Ordered Action.

The Philadelphia bout, announced by Lou Jaffe, publicity director for Promoter Herman Taylor, was arranged by George Parnassus, Zurita's manager, after negotiations collapsed for a New York bout with Bobby Ruffin.

The N. B. A., thru President Abe Greene, set a Feb. 21 deadline for the Mexican to sign for a championship battle.

101 BADMINTON PLAYERS ENTER EVANSTON MEET

The North Shore badminton tournament, which opens today in Evanston Township High school and concludes tomorrow, has attracted 101 entries, a record for recent years.

Adding interest to the individual event is the interclub competition in which the winner will receive the Starrett-Ketcham trophy, donated by the two badminton pioneers in the Chicago area.

Walter Weigand of Evanston is seeded No. 1 in the men's singles and will defend his tournament title. Three Glencoe players also are seeded No. 1. They are Bibsy Cook in women's singles, Miss Cook and Betsy Siefkin in women's doubles, and Leber and Billow in men's doubles. Play begins this afternoon at 1, with semi-finals scheduled at 6 this evening, and finals tomorrow afternoon at 2.

PITTSBURGH TO MEET GEARS IN COLISEUM GAME

A victory over the Pittsburgh Raiders tonight in the Coliseum would assure the American Gears, Chicago's pro basketball team, of at least a second place tie in the western division of the National circuit. The Gears have won four out of five in previous games with the Pittsburgh club.

In 11 games at the Coliseum this year the Gears have won eight. Over the same stretch the Chicago five and its opponents have averaged 103 points a game. Preceding the main game at 9 o'clock tonight the White Liners and Pepsi Cola girls will play.

Bummy Davis Knocks Out Canadian in First Round

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 16 (AP).—Al [Bummy] Davis, 151½, of New York knocked out Roger Marquette, 159, Montreal, tonight in 2 minutes 22 seconds of the first round of their scheduled 10 round bout. Marquette was down for counts three times before the knockout.

Milwaukee Five Beats Cooks and Bakers, 44-36

The Milwaukee Allen-Bradleys basketball team defeated the Fort Sheridan Cooks and Bakers, 44 to 36, in the Fort Sheridan gymnasium last night. The Milwaukee team led at the half, 23 to 20. Bill Stickler scored 12 points for the army team to boost his total for the season to 424. Walt Sprangers paced the winners with 13 points.

NEW TRIER SWIM TEAM SEEKS NEW LAURELS TODAY

BY DAVID CONDON.

New Trier High school's swimming team, already winner of the Suburban league title, today is expected to carry along on its business as usual basis and monopolize the annual Suburban league individual meet, much as it has done for the last 13 years.

The New Trier squad won the team title in league dual meets, and today, playing host with an afternoon and evening schedule in its pool in Winnetka, will be after whatever individual honors it may collect.

Lepman May Break Mark.

Six of the seven Suburban league senior records already are held by New Trier swimmers, and there is a possibility the seventh, the 50 yard free style mark, might be in New Trier's possession after today. Dick Lepman several times in practice has bettered the 0:24.3 mark held by Capouch of Oak Park since 1940. Lepman is state 100 yard champion, and also is expected to win in that division.

The Oak Park team, tho it may surrender the 50 yard record, is given a chance to claim one that has been held by New Trier since registered by Bob Bennett in 1940. This is the 100 yard free style event, in wihch Dave Tittle of Oak Park has approached Bennett's time of 0:56.

A third mark, the 100 yard breast stroke time of 1:09.4, might be bettered by Chuck Solberg of New Trier, who is state champion in that division. Solberg, along with Lepman, is counted on heavily to gain the points for New Trier to win the meet for the 14th straight year.

At the same time, the league will run off its fresh-soph meet, with New Trier again the favorite.

State Meet Next Week.

One hundred and seventy-five entries have been received in the swimming meet, which should serve as a preview for the state meet, to be held in the New Trier pool next Friday and Saturday, with New Trier defending its title.

Meanwhile, with the league's swimming teams congregating at New Trier, two of the strongest track teams in the circuit, Oak Park and New Trier's defending state champions, along with Crane Tech of the City league, will hold a triangular meet in the Oak Park fieldhouse, with the performances registered possibly giving some indication of what may be expected in future indoor and outdoor meets. New Trier is in the role of favorite, but this edge is slight.

Harvard Five Wins Private School Title

Harvard school won the heavyweight basketball title of the Private School league last night by defeating North Shore, 44 to 39, on the Harvard floor.

It was Harvard's ninth victory in 10 games, the lone defeat coming from University High, 43 to 28, on Jan. 29.

Harvard led, 23 to 16, at the half, and Forward Jerry Neff, of Harvard, led the scorers with 17 points.

CHICAGO, N.U. IN TRACK MEET AT IOWA CITY TODAY

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 16 [Special]. —George Bresnaham will celebrate the opening of his 25th year as Iowa track coach tomorrow night, by sending the Hawkeye representatives against Northwestern and the University of Chicago in a triangular meet which will mark the first indoor competition here in two seasons.

NORTH CENTRAL, WHEATON MEET IN TRACK TODAY

The North Central track team will meet Wheaton college in the Cardinal fieldhouse at Naperville this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The contest will open the indoor season for Wheaton, but will be the second meet for North Central.

Lukko Radio Bowls 2,755 in State Women's Meet

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 16 [Special].—The Lukko Radio team of Chicago, only Windy City squad entered on the first squad, rolled a handicap total of 2,755 in the Illinois Women's State Bowling tournament tonight. The Pabst Blue Ribbons of Bloomington lead the standings with 2,821.

YOU'VE HAD YOUR CHANCE!

Austin Beats Crane, 44-29; Ties for Lead

Crane Tech's senior basketball team lost its first City league game of the season yesterday as Austin won, 44 to 29, to gain a tie with Crane and Wells for first place in the west section. It was Austin's seventh victory in eight games and left Crane with the same record.

Paced by Bill Mann, who scored 17 points, Austin moved into the lead at the start and by the half time held a 21 to 9 advantage.

In junior play Lane Tech won the north section championship by routing Von Steuben, 52 to 30, for its ninth straight victory. Lane still has to play Steinmetz before the playoffs, but cannot lose out since the qnly rival, Waller, has already been defeated by Lane. Don Simon scored 26 points in leading Lane to victory.

The second place tie in the north section senior division was broken as Von Steuben defeated Lane, 51 to 26, with Gene Schanbaum scoring 15 points. It was Von Steuben's eighth victory in nine games.

SET UP LIMITS FOR CHICAGO'S BOWLING MEETS

Chicago bowling leaders, meeting yesterday in the office of Louis P. Petersen, 624 S. Michigan av., agreed to restrict the limits from which tournaments may draw entries. The distances set were 20 miles from the city limits for men's events and 25 miles for women's tournaments.

These are areas over which jurisdiction is held by the Chicago Bowling association and the Chicago Women's Bowling association, respectively.

Those in attendance were Petersen, Jack Ripple, Charles Messenger of Congress recreation, Barney Hochstadter of Archer-35th recreation, Jack Samuelson and Ralph Olsen of Bowling Lanes, Jerry Peck of the Arena, James Danek of Windy City, Roy Davis, secretary of the city and state associations, Fred Fagenholz and Don Taylor of Marigold Arcade and William Lawson.

LAUDS COUNCIL ACTION.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16 (AP).—Col. J. Monroe Johnson today commended the National Bowling council for cancelling many tournaments and relieving the burden of civilian transportation.

The director of the office of defense transportation said he was particularly gratified in that the council's action was entirely voluntary. He added that if such action is followed generally, it will obviate the necessity of further governmental restriction.

PORDENA SMITH KNOCKED OUT BY EVANS IN BOSTON

PROFIT CASHING TRIPS STOCKS, THO MANY RISE

Recovery by Rails Fails to Go Far.

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—The stock market ran into profit cashing today and, tho assorted favorites reached new highs for the last seven years, many recent gainers weakened.

The market turned irregular after a steady and active start. Rails then recovered but failed to hold. Selling increased in the last hour. Altho gains of fractions to more than 2 points were well distributed at the close, they were outnumbered by declines. Transfers approximated 1,900,000 shares compared with 1,870,000 yesterday.

Trimming of commitments was ascribed partly to expectation of a technical correction. Good war news from almost all fronts helped some peace rated issues but did not depress armament groups unduly. Recognition of the huge reservoir of idle investment funds bolstered bullish psychology.

Index Off After 4 Day Rise.

The Associated Press 60 stock index dipped 0.1 to 61.3 after four successive advances.

New highs for 1944-'45 or longer were set by Chrysler, up ¾ at the close after an earlier 2 point gain; Barnsdall Oil and Baltimore and Ohio preferred. Dow Chemical and Philip Morris each rose 2½ and United States Gypsum was up 3. Smaller gains were retained by American Telephone, Northern Pacific, Curtiss-Wright, and Sears Roebuck. Declining were Santa Fe, New York Central, United States Steel, General Motors, United Aircraft, and Anaconda.

BONDS EDGE HIGHER.

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Altho price movements were irregular, averages of most of the major bond groups showed slight gains today.

Selective demand raised prices fractions to about 2 points for a long list of rail loans and investment-rated corporate issues continued well supported. Bids were substantially higher for long term treasury bonds, but turnover was small. Brazilian issues scored new gains. Transactions totaled $11,560,000, compared with $9,630,000 yesterday.

CHICAGO LIST RISES.

Prices rose again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange and turnover climbed to 78,000 shares. Most actively traded were Marshall Field, up ¾ to a 1944-'45 peak of 20¾; Sinclair Oil, up ⅛, and Admiral corporation and Chicago corporation common, each off ¼. New highs also were set by Union Carbide, up 4⅞; Chrysler, up 3½; Elgin Watch, up 2, and Goldblatt, up 1⅞.

REFUNDING LOAN IS REGISTERED BY LACLEDE GAS

Registration statements covering 19 million dollars of first mortgage bonds and 3 million of serial debentures were filed with the securities and exchange commission yesterday by the Laclede Gas Light company of St. Louis.

Proceeds from the sale of these securities, plus funds received by Laclede and its parent, Ogden corporation, from the sale of certain properties, will be used to the extent necessary to retire at par $9,246,000 of 5 per cent bonds, due April 1; 17½ million dollars of series C 5½ per cent bonds, due 1953, and 5½ million of series D 5½ per cent bonds, due 1960.

The interest rate on the new loan will be given in an amendment to the registration.

January Milk Delivery Price Below December

Producers covered by the Chicago federal milk marketing order will receive a uniform blended price of $3.10 a hundred pounds of milk of 3.5 per cent test, f. o. b. 70 mile zone, for all January deliveries, H. H. Erdmann, acting market administrator, announced yesterday. This is 4 cents below prices paid for December and January, 1944.

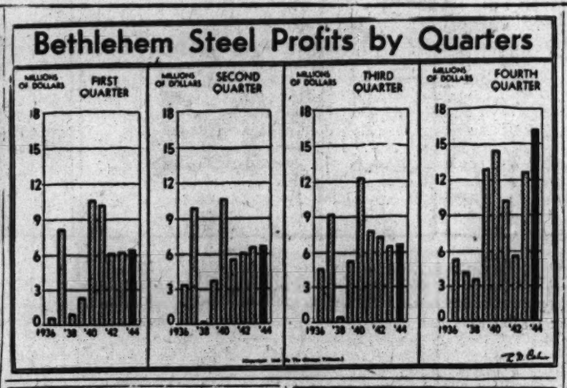
INDIVIDUAL PROGRESS PERILED BY FEDERAL CURBS, SAYS LINCOLN

The opportunity for development of latent abilities of the individual that has been the foundation of this country's greatness is threatened by the policies of the present administration, James F. Lincoln, president of Lincoln Electric company, Cleveland, O., said last night.

Speaking to an audience of industry and business representatives and army and navy officers in the Lake Shore club, Lincoln said the administration's whole attitude toward the individual is to keep him from rising above the common level. Thru restrictive regulations the individual, no matter what he produces, is kept at a certain level, he said.

He assailed the system whereby, he charged, profits were taken from a producer on the whim of an individual. He gave instances of wide variances in profits permitted various producers doing the same type of work, asserting that it all was the result of the whim of the negotiator.

He strongly criticized the trend of thinking of the people and industry which he said has brought them to accept governmental domination without raising a voice in protest, saying it could not have happened 15 years ago. This country will not attain the freedom it once had unless it changes its present attitude he warned.



Exports Held Prime Part of U.S. Economy

Foreign markets should be considered integral parts of the domestic economy and not as expedient outlets for unwanted surpluses, Amos E. Taylor, federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce director, told the Executives' Club of Chicago yesterday in the Hotel Sherman.

"Export markets too frequently are looked upon as a kind of reservoir which is always conveniently at hand for the absorption of goods and services which our domestic market is unable to absorb," he said. "Policies based strictly on this line of reasoning can easily lead to serious difficulties. The profitable sale of goods abroad should be viewed as part and parcel of an operation which is beneficial to our domestic economy as well as to the economy of the importing country.

Imports Stimulate Exports.

"There is a special reason for dealing with export markets in connection with an appraisal of domestic markets. The two are interrelated. In the long run the real source of export financing lies in our imports. Payment for imports provides the buying power which is so essential to foreign buyers if our goods are to move in world trade.

"It is not only illogical but economically unsound to think of our domestic activity and our foreign trade as operating on uncoördinated and unrelated levels. It follows from this that policies designed to stimulate domestic employment and full production must be consistent with policies aiming to develop and maintain foreign markets for American goods."

Stake of 7 Billions.

Taylor said this country has a sizable stake in foreign lands, estimating that industrial and so-called "direct" investments abroad are valued at approximately 7 billion dollars.

"These developments need not be looked upon as detrimental to our own interests," he said. "As standards of living rise in foreign countries the need for our goods as well as the ability to pay for them will rise accordingly. Our effort to guarantee an orderly shift from a war time to a peace time economy therefore requires that we operate simultaneously on a domestic front and an international front."

BRITISH REPORT 100 MILLION GAIN IN 1944 EXPORTS

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP). — Great Britain's exports during 1944 rose to 1 billion 32 million dollars, an increase of 100 millions over 1943, the board of trade announced today.

The year's exports, however, were only 54 per cent of the pre-war total of 1 billion 883 million and fell short of the 1942 total of 1 billion 83 millions despite war time price increases.

Britain's South American trade fell 44 millions.

PERSONAL INCOME TAX—3.

Of the kinds of income to be reported for tax purposes, those which pose the least difficult problems for taxpayers as a rule are wages or salaries, dividends, and interest. Even in connection with these items complications sometimes arise in cases where exemptions or deductions are to be taken into account.

Compensation for services includes not only wages but commissions, fees, bonuses, and tips. The value of prizes is considered taxable. If you are paid in whole or in part in any other form than money, the fair market value of this compensation must be reported as income. An example is the value of meals and lodging provided by an employer for an employe, if the latter could readily obtain meals and lodging elsewhere and still perform the duties required. If these items are provided for the employer's own convenience, however, they are not taxable income to the worker. The rental value of a parsonage provided for a minister is exempted by law from tax.

The annual increment in the redemption value of a war bond, series E or F, or a United States savings bond, series A thru D, is regarded as income for tax purposes, but if you report your income on a cash basis you are not required to include such income until you cash the bond or it matures. Certain exemptions apply to the interest on savings bonds issued prior to March 1, 1941.

If the taxpayer is in business for himself or practices a profession, he determines his net profit or loss by deducting from his total receipts all ordinary business expenses, in accordance with schedule C on page 3 of form 1040. No allowance is made for the labor of the taxpayer himself. If an automobile is employed both for business and personal uses, only the portion of such expense allocable to business is deductible. Farmers on a cash basis use form 1040F in lieu of schedule C, and this form must be filed along with form 1040.

Rents received are an item of gross income and to determine the adjusted gross income from this source depreciation, repairs, operating costs, and taxes are deducted.

Directions regarding the treatment of commercial pensions, annuities, and payments under a life or endowment policy during the lifetime of the insured person, are given in the instruction sheet which accompanies form 1040. The method is the same as in earlier years.

Capital gains and losses will be dealt with in a subsequent article of this series.

[Items specifically exempt from income tax will be discussed in Monday's article.]

CLASH ON RULES FOR MORE LOW PRICED CLOTHES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16 [Special].—Projected government orders to force increased production of garments deemed essential and to roll back prices to levels of the first half of 1943 were argued today at an informal hearing by representatives of WPB and OPA, manufacturers, and congressmen from wool states.

Precise terms of the forthcoming orders were not disclosed, but government witnesses said the purposes were to get into such lines as children's and work clothes more of what they termed a short supply of fabrics. No representation was made that there was any wool shortage, but WPB representatives said mills were processing all they could handle.

In answer to apprehension in western wool states, government spokesmen denied any intention to channel fabric production into relatively low cost clothing to result in decreased use of virgin wools. Some industry representatives charged discrimination would result against companies not equipped to make low cost goods.

MILLS COMPANY FORMS NEW UNIT USING OLD NAME

Directors of Mills Industries have formed an affiliated company, Mills Novelty company, for the manufacture and sale of pinball, slot, game, and vendor machines, Ralph J. Mills, chairman, said yesterday. Officers are Vincent C. Shay, president; Arthur V. Cooley, vice president; John P. Ryan, treasurer; Elmer E. Jacobson, secretary, and P. A. Tennis, assistant treasurer.

The affiliated company, which takes over the name used by the original company until a few years ago, will be operated as a separate unit.

Mills Industries, at present about 97 per cent engaged in war work, plans post-war manufacture of ice cream freezers and hardeners, air and water cooled condensing units, two types of moving picture machines, coin controled coolers for soft drinks, juke boxes, and candy and gum vendors.

WEATHER HELPS RETAIL VOLUME EXPAND IN WEEK

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Improved weather and excellent consumer response to new merchandise displays brought increased retail volume this week, Dun & Bradstreet said today in its review of business. Purchasing of seasonal lines was heavy, particularly the advanced buying of women's apparel and millinery.

"Shortages continued to exert a definite influence on retail habits," the review said. "Retail inventories remained low. New shipments were quickly taken up by the public. Delayed shipments again hindered wholesale trade."

Retail sales thruout the country were estimated at 8 to 12 per cent above last year. Middle west gains were put at 11 to 17 per cent.

Chicago Area Plants Get 78 Prime War Contracts

Seventy-eight prime war contracts valued at $1,861,000 were awarded to 71 Chicago area companies in the week ended Feb. 14, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday.

CHANGE IN OPA POSITION HELD KEY TO PROFIT

Armour's Finances 'Best in Years.'

The financial condition of Armour & Co. is the best in a generation, but the profit outlook this year is partly dependent on a change in the policies of the office of price administration, George A. Eastwood, president, told shareholders at the annual meeting yesterday.

George A. Eastwood.

The company believes every department should stand on its own feet, he asserted, and not expect its losses to be offset in some other department of the business.

"Penalizes Diversification."

"This theory is now a matter of litigation between the industry and the office of price administration, which thus far has taken the position that if a company's operations in the aggregate produce a profit, it is not entitled to redress from regulations which compel certain divisions of the company to operate at a loss," said Eastwood.

"The OPA contention penalizes diversity of operations and I regret to report that our profit outlook in 1945 is dependent in part on a change in viewpoint in the OPA regarding our right to earn a margin on the fresh meat which we supply to the government and to the consuming public."

Eastwood contrasted the company's financial condition at the end of the 1944 fiscal year with that at the end of the 1923 fiscal year. He said long term debt and preferred stock outstanding had been cut to $161,951,100 from $276,919,700.

Fixed Charges Are Slashed.

Fixed charges in 1923 for interest on long term debt and for dividends on guaranteed preferred stock amounted to $13,871,000, against $5,401,000 last year for interest on long term debt, with guaranteed dividends eliminated. Working capital was reduced only $413,705 in the period.

Referring to the company's recent refunding of 30 million dollars of debentures, he said interest savings would amount to $900,000 annually.

He said an over-all decrease of 15 per cent in meat production expected this year means the civilian supply will be cut further, that unit costs will advance, and because of numerous government regulations and restrictions the company's opportunity to operate at a profit may be curtailed.

Predicts 30 Per Cent Fewer Hogs.

Eastwood estimated that 30 per cent fewer hogs would be processed in the fiscal year, and that lamb supplies would be reduced 14 per cent. However, he predicted increases of 5 per cent in the supply of beef and 1 per cent in veal.

"About the middle of 1944 the government's live stock authorities became concerned about the prospective feed supplies for 1945, and possibly because there was a widespread belief that the European phase of the war might end in the fall there was launched a campaign to guard against an over production of live stock," Eastwood said.

"The chief effort was aimed at hogs, and farmers were asked to reduce the supply 17 per cent. I regret to report that the goal seems to have been greatly exceeded."

Stockholders elected James R. Leavell a director for one year to fill the vacancy caused by the death of D. R. McLennan last year.

Fewer Live Stock on Farms; Hogs Decrease 28 Pct. in '44

The shortage of meat ahead for American civilians was emphasized yesterday by the department of agriculture survey of the number of animals on farms as of Jan. 1. It showed the trend that stock yards experts had predicted many months ago, a record breaking slump from a year earlier, and the largest supply of feed grains per live stock unit in 20 years.

The report showed a decrease during 1944 of more than 22 million in the number of hogs, the largest one year decline on government records. The Jan. 1 total was 60,660,000, compared with an all-time high of 82,852,000 a year earlier, a decrease of 28 per cent.

Sheep Decrease 7.4 Per Cent.

Farmers had 7.4 per cent fewer sheep and lambs than a year earlier, a drop of 3,824,000 head. The department said it was the biggest drop in sheep numbers for one year in this century. The Jan. 1 total was 47,945,000, against 51,769,000 last year.

The number of all cattle was 81,760,000 head, a decrease of 604,000 head, or nearly 1 per cent from the all-time high of 1944. It was the second largest total on record. The survey found more older cattle, but a near record decrease in calf numbers.

Included in the cattle total were 27,785,000 milk cows, a few more than the 27,656,000 on farms last year. Younger cattle being kept for later milk production decreased substantially.

Fewer Horses and Mules.

The number of farm horses dropped to 8,897,000, a reduction of 4 per cent from Jan. 1, 1944, and the smallest total since 1874. Mules decreased 3.5 per cent, to 3,408,000. Horse and mule colts under one year of age showed a larger decline than other mules or horses.

As a result of the rise in grain production and the decline in animal numbers, the supply of feed grain per animal unit [including chickens] was 27 per cent larger than a year earlier and the largest in 20 years, the department said.

Wheat Climbs on Outlook for Price Support

Low prices for the 1945 wheat crop will be impossible, members of the Chicago Board of Trade commented yesterday on a statement attributed to Sen. Bankhead [D., Ala.] that the government would support the market during the coming crop year. The statement was construed as favorable for a higher range of prices and short covering and professional buying lifted the deferred deliveries of wheat about 2 cents a bushel. Despite profit taking the close was 1¼ to 2 cents higher, the former on May.

Other grains rose with wheat. Rye closed 1⅞ to 2¼ cents higher with professional traders aggressive buyers. Corn gained ⅞ to 1⅛; oats, ¾ to 1, and barley, 1 to 1½.

Box Car Supply Tight.

Selling pressure was lacking on wheat futures, and ceiling prices continued to be paid for cash wheat in leading markets. The box car supply remained short and brokers expressed doubt that wheat areas would get cars soon in view of the pressing need to move damp corn from country elevators before warm weather.

Sen. Bankhead's assertion called brokers' attention to the fact that the deferred deliveries of wheat had been selling below the prospective government loan on the 1945 crop, which is set by law at 90 per cent of farm parity, or about $1.56 a bushel at Chicago.

Distiller Buying Reported.

Distillers were reported buying carlots of corn in the cash market and there has been a gradual narrowing of the spread between the damp grade and No. 2 yellow as a result. The latter was quoted at ceiling prices plus permissible markups and was difficult to obtain as the bulk of the 1944 crop grades No. 4 yellow or lower.

Winnipeg rye futures closed 1⅛ to 2½ cents higher with May selling at a new seasonal high.

NON-FARM JOBS DIP MORE THAN MILLION IN YEAR

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16 (AP).—The labor department reported today that employes in nonagricultural establishments decreased 1,113,000 in the last year. Those in bituminous mining declined 32,000. Total employment in all these lines was 37,852,000 in January, against 38,965,000 a year ago.

During the same period there was a net increase in military service of 1,500,000.

People and Events

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, dean of the division of physical science and chairman of the department of physics at the University of Chicago, will receive the Washington award Wednesday night in the Stevens hotel, the Western Society of Engineers announced yesterday. The award is given by the society in recognition of devoted, unselfish, and preëminent service in advancing human progress. It was awarded Dr. Compton for his research and teaching in the physical sciences, increasing knowledge of X-ray and cosmic-ray action.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton.

Earl L. Hadley, who began his business career with the Cable company in Chicago, has been named director of advertising and sales promotion for AM and FM radios and radio-phonograph combinations to be produced by the Bendix Radio division of Bendix Aviation corporation, Leonard C. Truesdall, general sales manager, announced.

The board of governors of the Chicago Mercantile exchange admitted to membership W. C. Cassens and T. J. May, St. Louis; Henry M. Miller, Brooklyn, and S. L. Maduff, Atlantic, Ia. Joseph Godow & Co. and Great Western Distributors, Inc., were admitted to the exchange's clearinghouse.

The plant protection department of Zenith Radio corporation has received the national security award of the office of civilian defense. Last August the 6th service command awarded Zenith its green and gold guidon for "superior war plant protection."

William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, will address members of the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association Tuesday night in the Hotel Sherman.

Commonwealth Edison company last night entertained 180 members of the employe committee which conducted the utility's war bond, Red Cross, and Community and War fund campaigns.

Alfred N. Guertin of Trenton, N. J., has been appointed actuary of the American Life convention effective March 16 when he will begin his duties in the convention's headquarters in Chicago.

T. J. O'Shaughnessy, public relations officer of the Rock Island lines, will address the Chicago Financial Advertisers Wednesday in Huyler's at 308 S. Michigan av.

H. M. Coover has become associated with the Eze-Orange company as sales manager, C. J. Howell, president of the Chicago company, said.

HOG OFFERINGS DWINDLE AGAIN; CATTLE STRONG

After rising slightly during the first four days of this week, hog receipts at the stock yards yesterday fell off to the second smallest Friday supply since early last November. The run showed a drop of 10 per cent from a week earlier, and 38 per cent from a year ago.

Buyers continued to pay OPA ceiling prices for almost all the hogs offered. The average was only 5 cents under the ceiling, at $14.70, where it has been for many weeks.

Cattle offerings largely were cleared except bulls, which ruled weak to unevenly lower. Steady to strong prices prevailed for most beef steers, heifers, beef cows, canners, cutters, and calves. Lambs dipped 15 to 25 cents in a slow trade.

WLB Grants Pay Raise to White Cap Co. Workers

Six hundred employes of the White Cap company of Chicago were awarded wage raises of 4 to 43 cents an hour by the national war labor board, Edgar L. Warren, regional chairman, announced yesterday. The national board upheld the regional board in six other cases it reviewed, including one which disapproved increases for 500 AFL union workers employed by the Chicago Meat Packers and Wholesalers association.

U.S. GYPSUM'S PROFITS DIP TO $3.07 A SHARE

Report Price Rules Affect Earnings.

Net income of United States Gypsum company last year decreased to $4,227,187, or $3.07 a common share, from $5,038,450, or $3.75 a share, in 1943, Sewell L. Avery, chairman, disclosed yesterday in his annual report to stockholders. Profits from operations dropped to $9,702,998 from $12,195,130 a year earlier.

An item in the financial report by Avery was that of $110,426 last year for expenses arising from federal anti-trust suits. In the preceding year this charge was $164,105. Provisions for income and excess profits taxes decreased to $3,556,000 from $5,116,000 in 1943.

Renegotiation for 1943 Settled.

Avery said cash dividend payments totaled $2,941,834, of which $547,554 went to preferred stock holders and $2,394,280, or $2 a share, to common stockholders. Expenditures for additions and improvements to plant properties totaled $1,089,141.

He reported that the company's renegotiation proceedings for 1943 had been ended by an agreement with the war department's price adjustment board that resulted in a charge of $14,199 against 1944 expenses, and a cash refund of $7,473 to the government. He said it was believed no adjustment would be required on 1944 business subject to renegotiation.

"Volume of new building construction is at depression levels, and the government is at present continuing and extending its restrictive control over building activities," Avery said. "Profit margins are adversely affected by price ceilings and high war time operating costs."

Dredge Firms' Profits Fall.

Two Chicago companies engaged in construction of river and harbor improvements and other waterway operations reported lower profits.

Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company's net income fell to $173,962, equal to 32 cents a share, from 1943 profit of $1,730,867, or $3.21 a share. Federal income tax provisions amounted to $102,880, against $1,110,000 the year before.

Fitz Simons and Connell Dredge and Dock company, whose main operations are in the Chicago area, reported 1944 net income of $2,329, or 4 cents a share. Its 1943 profit was $102,029, or $1.67 a share.

Continental Steel corporation reported 1944 net income was $508,661, or $2.54 a share, against 1943 profit of $762,610, or $3.46 a share. Sales of the Indiana steel producer were $22,474,066, compared with $22,264,078 in 1943.

Net income of General Cigar company last year was $965,170, or $1.30 a share, compared with $1,295,964, or $2 a share, in 1943.
